Pilgrim Church entry top winner

The accent appropriately was on youth Saturday night as the City of Pomona's 24th annual Christmas parade moved smoothly eastward along Holt Avenue.

Although the temperature was in the chilly 50s, an estimated crowd of 12,000 lined the parade route to applaud the floats, drill teams, bands, novelty units and horses participating.

Boys and girls dressed in large Christmas-wrapped boxes played around a 16-foot Christmas tree, and were awarded first place as a float by the judges.

The tree, topped by the traditional star and made of old newspapers, was entered by the Junior High Fellowship of the Pilgrim Congregational Church.

Second place among the floats went to the National Federation of the Blind, the Pomona, Ontario, Chino and Montclair chapters, whose entry was a gingerbread house with the words on the side: "Sugar, spice and everything nice."

Preceding the float and carrying the sponsors' sign were two blind people, Otis Pettifoot of Pomona, and Ruth Potter of Ontario, led by her seeing-eye dog Sheri.

The blind had made 4,000 paper flowers to decorate the float.

The First Church of the Nazarene of Pomona entered a float portraying the Spirit of Christmas in fact and fancy and that was awarded third place.

Part of the float was a Nativity scene with live lambs, while the other part of the float was boys and girls playing in snow.

Parade celebrities included Donald Duck as grand marshal, and Los Angeles Dodgers star Burt Hooton, Superfly Albert Sandoval, and Los Angeles County Fair Queen Mary Frances Douglas as division marshals.

Trophies were awarded to the top three special units in each of the four divisions as follows: Division 1 — Old Baldy Shrine Club, first; Pomona Public Library, second; and All-States Picnic and the Tiniest Elf, tied for third. Division 2 — Wyoming Wild Bunch, first; YMCA Indian Princesses, second; and McMahan's Furniture, third. Division 3 — Humane Society of the Pomona Valley, first; Hi-Grade Plating, second; and Pomona Fire Department, third; Division 4 — Pomona Truck Electric, first; FMC Sweeper, second; and the Golden Nuggets, third.

Another award winner among the float entries was a white Christmas float of a Christmas tree and snowman by residents of Logan Street, Pomona, which took fourth.

Other floats entered were Christmas Memories, portraying the yuletide from 1929 through 1975, sponsored by VFW Post 2018; and the Night Before Christmas, sponsored by the YWCA.

Edison High of Garden Grove was awarded the sweepstakes trophy for bands, with Corona High given first place, and Pomona High second. Alda took first place among junior high bands, with Bethune second.

Composer Britten dies at 63

ALDEBURGH, England (AP) — Benjamin Britten, the nation's best-known composer whose music writing career began at age 5 and culminated in operatic greats such as "Peter Grimes" and "War Requiem," died Saturday at the age of 63.

With commemorative concerts and special tributes, Britons paid homage to their lean and tweedy countryman who was an accomplished pianist and conductor as well as a composer of a wide range of music.

A semi-invalid after undergoing heart surgery in 1973, Britten had continued working at his country home until the heart condition worsened several months ago and forced his hospitalization.

Solon to re-introduce proposal

New try to ease property tax

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State Sen. Peter Behr, R-Tiburon, said Saturday he will re-introduce his proposal for homeowners' property tax relief when the legislature reconvenes Monday.

His proposal, similar to one which passed the Senate but was defeated in the Assembly at the last session, would abolish property taxes on owner-occupied houses.

The estimated $1.1 billion-a-year revenue loss would be replaced by a 5 per cent transfer tax on house sales and a 20 per cent surcharge on homeowners' state income taxes.

The senator said his proposal would mean no increase in taxes, but would relate a homeowner's tax bill more to his or her income.

Behr said it would mean a $352-a-year tax saving to a family with a gross income of $12,000 owning a $27,000 house, provided they didn't sell the house.

He estimated it would mean $553 a year to a family earning $18,000 owning a $40,000 house, and $963 to a family earning $36,000 with a $75,000 house, also providing the houses weren't sold.

The percentage saving would be greater for low income families. Behr estimated it at 50.2 per cent for the $12,000 income family and 27 per cent for the $36,000 income family.

His proposal would freeze assessments on land under owner-occupied houses and limit future annual increases in those assessments to a formula based on the cost of living and population increases.

Behr said his proposal would protect senior citizens from being forced out of their homes, eliminate yearly crippling increases in property taxes, permit home improvements to be made without increasing taxes, reduce the burden on county assessors, and leave unchanged the amount of funding for schools and local governments.

Unselfish request in little girl's letter wins hearts of parade judges

Two friends ride with Santa as 'gift of love'

The special treat of riding With Santa Claus in the Pomona Christmas parade Saturday night went to two little girls because one wrote a letter asking that her handicapped friend be allowed to ride in her place.

Robin Rose wrote a letter to the contest "Why I Would Like to Ride With Santa Claus," and made her unselfish request, which won the contest.

Robin's letter went as follows:

"Mommy said a gift of love is worth more than anything. I would like this to be my gift to Ellie, my skating friend, who is so special God made her handicapped. Please give her my place to ride with Santa as my special gift of love. Robin Rose."

It was a great thrill for Robin Rose and her friend Ellie Hamilton to ride next to Santa Claus in the last float of the big parade, and to wave happily at the crowds.

Body of kidnaped woman found

ARCADIA (AP) — The body of a pregnant woman, kidnaped from her Arcadia home was found near the Rose Bowl in Pasadena Saturday, Arcadia Police Lt. Tom Bednark said.

The report came after an announcement that police had called off their intensive search in the Angeles National Forest for Renee Kane, 26.

Mrs. Kane, wife of an attorney, was kidnaped Thursday when she apparently surprised a man [illegible] the act [illegible] burglarizing their h[illegible] here, police said. She was six mo[illegible] pregnant.

Earlier Saturday afternoon, Arcadia Police Sgt. George Secrest had announced that the search for Mrs Kane had been called off until new information was received.

Secrest said the man arrested in connection with the woman's kidnap accompanied search teams Friday and pointed out three sites where she might be. "He did not say what condition she was in when he left her," Secrest said.

Secrest said Emery Sowells Riddle, 24, of Pasadena, is now back in the county jail ward following Friday's trip to the area, particularly the Chantry Flats region where the search centered.

He has been booked for investigation of murder, kidnaping and burglary.

Mrs. Kane's purse and one shoe were found in Riddle's car after he wrecked it while fleeing police, authorities said.

Police said they feared "foul play" because a rifle was found in Riddle's possession and one shot had been fired. Authorities said they did not believe the shot was fired during Thursday's chase.

Judge's order carried out

End comes as life-support cut off

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A 26-year-old woman whose vital functions were controlled by machines for two weeks stopped breathing Saturday 13 minutes after she was disconnected from the devices on the order of a judge.

The machines attached to Celia Cain were disconnected at 12:25 p.m., according to John Corrigan, a spokesman for St. Vincent's Medical Center. A death certificate was signed about 1:15 p.m., he said.

"The order from the judge said she died on Nov. 20, when her brain activity stopped," Corrigan said. "So there can be no official time of death on Saturday."

Circuit Judge John S. Cox, acting at the request of Mrs. Cain's family, signed the order Saturday morning.

Jerry Cain, the woman's husband, said after a hearing Friday that he was "pleased with the judge's decision."

"This is what we asked for. Now my (two) children and I can pick up and continue our lives," he said.

Mrs. Cain, described by a close friend as "a beautiful girl, very sweet and kind," underwent a hysterectomy Nov. 19. The following day, she developed breathing problems, was rushed to intensive care and placed on a respirator, where she has been ever since.

Dr. Jacob Green, a neurologist, testified that he diagnosed the woman's brain as dead that night and asked the family for permission to disconnect the respirator Nov. 23.

"I said absolutely not," Cain testified. "I prayed that God would give us a sign."

But a week later, he changed his mind.

"I felt we got the sign when her condition worsened and the doctors convinced me her brain was dead," Cain said.

He gave his permission Nov. 30, but Green became uncertain if he had the legal authority to disconnect the machines and Cain's lawyers then petitioned the court to intervene.

In announcing his ruling, Cox said, "This lady is dead and has been dead ... and she is being kept alive artificially through the use of supportive devices that not only from the medical but a humane standpoint should be discontinued."

But he warned that his ruling is "no attempt at a blanket criteria or guidelines for future cases."

Diverts campaign funds to own use?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., has acknowledged converting thousands of dollars in campaign contributions to his personal use, the Washington Post said in its Sunday editions.

The Justice Department, which is investigating South Korean efforts to buy influence on Capitol Hill, "is known to be gathering information on Wilson, although he is not now a primary target of the probe," the Post said.

It described Wilson as one of the leading supporters in Congress of the South Korean government of Park Chung Hee. And it noted Wilson's "extensive personal travel to South Korea," including a 1975 trip during which he married his Korean-American wife.

The story said Wilson acknowledged during an interview that he has withdrawn $14,740 from his campaign funds during the past two years. He said he used only "perhaps half of it" for his personal use.

Such diversions of campaign funds are not illegal under federal or California law, officials said. But they are prohibited by the House of Representatives' standards of conduct, the story noted.

It quoted Wilson as saying he saw nothing improper with his personal use of the money or what the Post said were other unexplained transfers of his campaign funds.

Wilson said he reported the money he took on his tax returns, but the Post said it was unable to obtain copies of those returns from Wilson or his staff.

Wilson, 59 and a seven-term congressman, was not opposed in the general election in November and had only nominal primary opposition. However, his campaign treasury raised about $50,000, the Post said.

It said unnamed lobbyists characterized Wilson as "Congress' most aggressive seeker of contributions."

Wilson told the Post his wedding trip to South Korea in 1975 was arranged by Gen. Ho ShuKuang, a minister in the Taiwanese embassy in Washington. He said it was paid for by the Pacific Cultural Foundation, a Taiwan-based group.

Leader of Africa nation proclaims himself emperor

NDJAMENA, Chad (AP) — Jean Bedel Bokassa, president for life of the Central African Republic, has renamed his country the Central African Empire and made himself Emperor Bokassa I, the government said Saturday.

The change gives even more power to the 55-year-old Bokassa, who has held near-total control of the small, undeveloped nation since he took over in a 1965 coup.

As well as president, Bokassa has been leader of the country's only political party, army chief of staff and head of 14 of the government's 16 ministries.

Negligence denied in hospital deaths

There is no indication of culpable negligence in any of the 44 deaths during the past three years at Pacific State Hospital in Pomona, a hospital official said Saturday.

"Claims that these 44 deaths fall into the 'questionable category' concern me a great deal," said Ken Harrison, assistant to the hospital medical director.

"In our minds perhaps six would fall into the questionable category, but not 44.

"We know for certain 23 of those deaths were placed in that category due to the fact coronor's reports or autopsy reports or outstanding information from a lab technician or a physician were not complete."

Harrison said it is not yet confirmed, but an infection which may have spread through the children's unit may be accountable for 11 deaths there. "But we don't have those reports yet," he explained.

Harrison said two nurses, one from the state Department of Consumer Affairs and another from Patton State Hospital arrived at Pacific State on Nov. 4 and spent nearly a month going over the death records.

"They impounded our records to do this research," said Harrison.

He pointed out that deaths had occurred at the hospital as far back as six months ago and "we have not yet received reports on them" from the coroner's office.

"I feel we may have as many as 36 deaths over the three-year period at Pacific State which really fall into the category of 'incomplete records' and not the 'very questionable' category," said Harrison.

Severely retarded, physically deformed children usually do not experience long life spans and medical records show they are highly susceptible to infectious diseases.

The claim that 44 Pacific State Hospital deaths were in the questionable category was made Friday by state investigators who said 139 deaths in nine state institutions over the past three years would be investigated.

Would-be flower child...

FAMOUS MOMENT Mary Ann Vecchio, kneeling in the blood of a dead Kent State University student in this famous 1970 photograph, was 21 Saturday. She was a symbol of troubled youth.

...travels troubled path as adult

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Happy birthday, Mary Ann Vecchio.

Happy birthday, sobbing girl in the Kent State photograph.

Still troubled and still in trouble, Mary Ann Vecchio turned 21 on Saturday.

"I hope my birthday separates my old life from the new one I'm trying to put together," says Mary. "I'm trying to change, trying to grow up. It's not easy, and sometimes it scares me.

"I just want to be known as Mary, not Mary from Kent State."

She has come a long way from that day in 1970 when she kneeled in the blood of a student killed by National Guardsmen during an antiwar demonstration at Kent State University.

She was a 14-year-old runaway and would-be flower child when she cried over his body and threw up her arms in despair and disbelief.

She says it turned her life into hell, with torrents of hate mail and harassment. She was called a "Communist bitch," a "dirty hippy," a whore.

"Too bad it wasn't you that got shot," said one venomous, anonymous writer whose sentiments were echoed many times.

Six years later, growing up is coming slowly to Mary Ann Vecchio, the girl who was equated by some with the youth movement.

"Now, I can read those things about me and not burst into tears," says Mary. "I can feel sorry for the person who wrote them. I can accept that some people don't like me.

For the first time in years, the high school dropout is thinking of school and has registered for junior college in January.

Her once heavy face now looks strikingly gaunt, with hollow cheeks and deep but lively eyes. Friends say she looks a little like Joan Baez or Cher Bono.

But the record isn't good, and Mary has a long way to go. She is out of work and out of money.

She faces charges of prostitution and massaging without a license stemming from her arrest in October at a Miami massage parlor. She pleaded innocent and was ordered to stand trial on Dec. 16.

She refuses to discuss it except to say it marks the end of a time she she wants to leave behind.

In 1973 she pleaded no contest to a charge of offering to commit prostitution.

Today, Mary is living in a suburb with the family of Allen Lerner, former manager of the massage parlor where she was arrested. She moved in after they were arrested and the place closed.

"Mary Ann is a wonderful person who needs love and understanding and needs to be left alone," says his wife, Denise.

Mary Ann is dating their 20-year-old son, Bif, who is in training to be a security guard. Their 19-year-old daughter, Leslie, convinced Mary Ann to enter junior college.

She wants to study acting and theater. Having already achieved a certain dubious stardom, Mary admits: "I'd like to be a star, but a good star, someone people really admire."

Standing outside their tiny tract home at night, listening to the rustle of palms and grasses and looking up into the warm sky, Mary says: "I'm glad to be out here and away from the city. It was driving me into the alleys and corners and crevices of life."

"Out here, it's more peaceful. I can watch the shooting stars at night and wish on them. I'm into astrology."

The years since Kent State have been confused. "I've been so wrapped up and troubled," says Mary, petting one of the six family cats. "It's been like trying to get out of a big paper bag.

"I've been wary and holding back from people. I'm just starting to relate to people now."

Mary sees herself as a victim. She is bitter about "bad publicity, bad breaks, bad luck and the way my life turned out so far."

She compares her situation to that of Patty Hearst, another symbol of radicalism, saying: "Patty shouldn't have gotten breaks, but she had money. I didn't. If you're poor like me, they nail you to the cross."

She complains of police and press harrassment.

But some people who have known Mary say that from the beginning, she was a troubled girl from a troubled family and was headed for trouble with or without Kent State.

Mary herself admits: "I don't know if I can blame it all on Kent State, but that started it." And, she laughs, "It sure put Opa Locka on the map."

One of six children of a strict port authority foreman, Mary was restless and bored in Opa Locka, a fading, stucco city out of Hollywood and the Arabian Nights.

She wanted out of an uneasy family, was captivated by the antiwar movement, and ran — away from home, rather than toward activist politics.

She almost strayed into the Kent State protest, stumbled upon death and slammed into reality.

"I didn't know what it meant to die," she said, driving toward a North Miami Beach night club where she wanted to listen to music and dance.

"After that, I sort of went crazy," she said. She ran some more, was sent home to her parents, went to a juvenile home, couldn't settle down and ran away again.

This time, her travels took her hitchhiking around the country, and she crossed it seven times between her 16th and 17th years. It read like a counterculture travel log: the Haight-Ashbury in San Francisco, Telegraph Avenue in Berkeley and the East Village in New York.

"I had a great time traveling around," says Mary, "and I wouldn't want to be too settled down.

"But it's time to put away the dolls and grow up. I'm trying."

Chino teachers to vote on choice of labor negotiator

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

More than 500 Chino teachers will cast ballots Tuesday to decide which of two rival certificated groups will represent them in labor negotiations with the school board.

They also will have the option of choosing "no representative" as specified in the state's new collective bargaining law.

The law says an election must be held if two teacher groups are claiming to be sole representative. Each has noted that it represents more than 50 per cent of teachers within the Chino Unified School District.

An important factor has been that since two teacher groups were vying to negotiate with the school board, teachers have had no negotiations and thus no salary increase this year.

Campaign rhetoric has heated up in recent weeks between the two rivals, the Chino Federation of Teachers (CFT) and the Associated Chino Teachers (ACT).

Both groups brought in their state president for talks with local teachers. The ACT brought in Stephen H. Edwards, Jr., president of the California Teachers Association; and CFT welcomed Raoul Teilhet, head of the California Federation of Teachers.

Edwards proclaimed that ACT would win the election. "What I see and hear in Chino convinces me that our affiliated chapter will win," he said.

He noted the ACT deserves credit for challenging the right to have absentee ballots allowed by the Educational Employment Relations Board (EERB) for the first time in a collective bargaining election in California.

EERB did grant that right to Chino because of unusual scheduling in the district due to the year-round school program.

However, Craig Watkins, president of CFT, said both teacher groups had a hand in gaining approval of absentee ballots.

Edwards claims CTA has won numerous elections around the state, but Watkins said only 19 elections have been held in which CFT was one of the rival groups. Others were voluntary recognitions by school boards, he added.

Both local teacher groups claim to provide superior services for Chino teachers. "Teachers identify with superior services, negotiations know-how and political success of CTA and NEA that have resulted in higher salaries, better working conditions and educational improvements for their pupils," said Edwards.

Watkins, meanwhile, says he does not care how many elections CTA has won. "Teachers must decide which group will do better in negotiations with our school district.

"CFT has proven over and over again that we are the most active, aggressive and effective teacher organization in bringing about positive change for students and teachers."

The Chino election is the first to be held in the valley among two rival teacher groups. Ballots will be cast Tuesday from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. on three campuses, Don Lugo and Chino high schools and Gird Elementary School.

Jobless cabbies ask right to run own firm

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Taxi drivers left unemployed by the shutdown of the Yellow Cab Co. demanded in a rally at MacArthur Park Saturday that the City Council grant them a franchise to operate a cooperative cab company.

A spokesman for the drivers said they would seek a lien in Superior Court Monday against Yellow Cab to insure receiving their back pay.

The drivers were to have been paid Friday, but the company said a "cash flow" problem would delay the checks.

Yellow Cab shut down its operations in Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego, Oakland, San Jose and Oceanside Wednesday when it was unable to obtain insurance.

The City Council voted Friday to offer the Yellow Cab franchises to one or more companies. But the drivers urged the council to grant them the franchises to be operated under a driver-owned cooperative.

Bill Griswold, president of Griswold Group Ltd., financial consultants to the drivers, said the main concern was a requirement that the drivers bid for the franchise in competition with other companies. He said the drivers were out of work and should not be required to put up any money for the franchises.

'I don't know how much money the City Council wants to have to put these men back to work, but I'm trying to keep them off welfare," he said.

Census vote slated

The La Verne City Council may call for a special census Monday night.

City Manager George Caswell thinks La Verne's population may have gone up nearly 50 percent in the past six years — from 12,965 to about 19,000 — and if he is right the city will more than make up the cost of the special count through higher state allotments.

He estimates the cost of the special census at $23,000. Contending that the city will make up that cost within a year, he will recommend to the council that approval of an application for the count to the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Also included on the agenda are 10 public hearings, most of them involving annexations and zone changes.

Other items include consideration by the chamber of Commerce to set up a Community Redevelopment Agency in La Verne, and to hear a report on the future of the Foothill Freeway, east of La Verne.

Four persons have been arrested by Chino police after a 2:43 a.m. shooting incident at Twelfth Street and Schaefer Avenue Saturday.

Booked at West End jail on a charge of investigation of attempted murder were Anthony Edward Ramirez, 18, of 1403 S. Sultana St., Ontario, and Ricardo Cacatian, also 18, of 626 S. Palm St., Ontario.

Two 17-year-old boys were taken to Juvenile Hall on similar charges.

Chino police pieced together a story about the youths in two vehicles chasing Joe Negrette, 18, south from Monte Vista Avenue and B Street to Twelfth Street and Schaefer Avenue where the Negrette car was boxed in and shot at. No one was hit, police reported.

Brown: bigger staffs for mental hospitals

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. Saturday approved larger staffs for the state's troubled mental hospitals.

The state Health Department said it will mean about 700 more employes at the 11 hospitals by next June 30.

Most will be psychiatric technicians or nurses, but a few more psychologists, social workers, teachers and rehabilitation therapists will be hired, too, the department said.

State hospitals have been the target of a widespread investigation of reported patient abuse.

On Friday, Raymond Procunier, Brown's troubleshooter, reported that 139 patient deaths were "very questionable" and that some cases might be referred to district attorneys for prosecution.

The department said the additional employes will be hired with money saved from the current budget.

The increases will boost the state hospital staff to 11,610 employes by June 30, an increase of 1,000 since last June 30.

More parental control urged

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

Upland Chief of Police Coy D. Estes urged parents not to leave their minor children alone for weekends without proper adult supervision because of several recent major disturbances in the city.

Estes said in recent months police have been called to a number of large parties involving 250 to 500 young persons at private homes where the partygoers spill over into neighboring properties, causing damage to shrubs, lawns and sometimes into other homes.

"In some cases residents of the neighborhood returning home after an evening out have been unable to get to their homes due to the streets being blocked by vehicles belonging to the young partygoers," he said.

"For the past two weekends when police have been sent to disperse large gatherings, they have been met with barrages of rocks, beer bottles and cans. Two Upland officers have received minor injuries and several police cars have been damaged as a result of this activity."

Investigations revealed that most of these parties were occurring when the parents had left town for the weekend and have their teen-age children in charge of the residence during their absence. The young persons decide to have a party, but without responsible adult supervision and the situation gets out of control, said Estes.

"There have also been instances of parents attempting to have a small get together for their son or daughter, and before they knew it, there were 200 to 300 uninvited guests at the party.

"During the past two weekends the police have made more than 20 arrests at these large gatherings for such offenses as assault with a deadly weapon, possession of alcoholic beverages, drugs and narcotics, disturbing the peace and malicious mischief."

Police will continue to take strict enforcement actions to apprehend those violating the law, said Estes. He encouraged parents of young people not to leave them alone for the weekend without proper supervision by adults.

Energy campaign planned in D.B.

Southern California Gas Co. employes will be visiting residents in several Diamond Bar neighborhoods Monday, Wednesday and Thursday to personally spread the word about energy conservation.

Don Crawford, local district manager, said the objective of the campaign is to explain to customers the tightening energy supply situation and the urgent need for energy conservation.

"We will show residents how to help 'stretch' existing energy supplies by using home appliances most efficiently," he explained.

Gas company employees conducting the door-to-door conservation counseling are giving people they contact a home energy planning guide. The guide contains material designed to help residents develop their own home energy conservation program.

While reviewing the contents of the guide, gas company counselors will offer to show residents the proper ways to use furnace thermostats, set water heater controls, change furnace filters, turn off or relight pilot lights on gas appliances and offer to turn off non-essential gas appliances such as patio heaters or tiki torches.

The arraignment on murder and robbery charges of a 17-year-old Pomona youth has been continued one week by Pomona Superior Court Judge Sam Cianchetti.

The defendant is Miguel Perez, charged in the slaying July 26 in Pomona of grocer Howard R. Reese, 65. Reese was assistant manager of the Lucky Star Market at 1600 W. Mission Blvd.

Another youth, 15, of Diamond Bar, also charged in the slaying has been committed to the custody of the California Youth Authority after pleading guilty in Juvenile Court.

The pair was accused of robbing Reese at the store and then driving him to a remote area in southwest Pomona where he was shot in the back of his head.

Cianchetti scheduled Perez' arraignment for Dec. 9 and ordered him to remain in custody in Juvenile Hall.

Better work conditions: Automation not always productivity key, job satisfaction spells better business

EDITOR'S NOTE: It has always been assumed that automation increases productivity. But now many American businessmen are finding that productivity also rises when jobs are designed so that labor has a greater sense of satisfaction and respect.

By T. KIRKPATRICK
AP Business Writer

Some old notions about work are changing.

Like the idea that labor and management must always be at odds. Or that a person will produce more if he is placed before a bigger, faster machine. Or that many jobs will always be dull and routine, their holders consigned to lives of quiet desperation.

In there stead, a new philosophy of work is developing at hundreds of factories, mines and assembly lines across the country.

To many workers it has ended the 4 o'clock rush to the parking lot; and to many employers, it has lead to the discovery that fewer workers are calling in sick or showing up late or filing grievances or that output is rising and the accident rate is declining.

It wasn't that way three years ago in the hot dirty tunnels of the Rushton Mining Co.'s mine thousands of feet beneath Oceola Mills, Pa.

"When a machine broke down or a shuttle car got busted, or supplies were late, or the boss wasn't around, the guys would just sit around and wait, until told what to do next," miner Mark Naylor recalled.

"We did what the boss told us to do and only what he told us to do. If we goofed, it was his fault."

Accidents and absenteeism were rising while coal output was falling, and traditional management methods weren't working. Warren Hinks, Rushton's president, heard about the "autonomous team" concept being tried in British mines, and jumped at the idea.

In stages, on an experimental basis, the three seven-man crews that clawed at one of the mine's coal faces around the clock were expanded to nine members, each of them boosted to top scale pay.

On Mondays and Fridays, work in the experimental section stopped and the miners were brought to the surface for classroom instruction in each of the jobs on the crew and in safety rules.

The three foremen, once strapped with the contradictory duties of pushing both production and safety, were told to help with planning but concentrate on safety. The responsibility for how much coal was dug fell to the miners. They now could make more decisions about their jobs and the knowledge to make them intelligently.

More important, perhaps, was that the mine's management was learning a new attitude toward the miners.

"Generally the worker will reflect what management feels about him, and taking that same idea, we can say that ... he can in fact make a significant and competent and intelligent and creative contribution in the work effort," Hinks told a U.S. Senate subcommittee.

"The best management motivation in any organization is that we emphatically recognize the value of the worker as a person and ... (brings) to the job intelligence, his attitude and feelings and beliefs, and not just his hands and feet and muscles."

Something clicked.

The number of federal safety law violations in the mine declined. There were once 50 to 55 lost-time accidents for each one million man hours worked, but the number fell to 12 last year.

Output in the mine remained about the same.

Productivity improved about 10 per cent in the two original mine sections in the experiment, but that may have been due to other factors.

"We began to feel somebody up there trusted us," he told a labor management conference. "And in a week or two we were busting our hump in a way I've never seen guys work underground before.

"The funny thing is, in the new system, the crew, we don't get really tired anymore. We probably work about twice as hard as we ever did before, but we don't get tired."

Hinks uses the term "quality of work" to describe the project, since expanded to the rest of the Ruston mine, but it goes by many other names: human resource development, job enrichment, codetermination, worker participation, industrial democracy.

Each is a variation of the theme: redesign the job — who does what and how, who makes the decisions. Or adopt a new attitude of mutual trust, respect and goodwill between employer and employe and let job design changes follow. Or both, as was the case with Rushton.

"This is a new kind of culture, in which everybody — worker and manager comes to have a completely changed view of himself," says Ted Mills, director of the National Quality of Work Center in Washington.

That group, funded by government and private grants, helps develop quality of work experiments such as the Rushton project.

Because of the diversity of names for the concept, locating the companies adopting it is something like asking a haystack what it calls needles before starting to search for them, Mills says.

Confounding the effort is the fact that many companies have experienced such a sharp increase in productivity after instituting quality of work programs that they don't want their competitors to hear about it, he says. Others see them as a way to keep a union out or weaken an existing union, and don't want their motives publicized.

Nevertheless, Mills estimates between 2,000 and 3,000 companies, large and small, have made serious efforts to make work more satisfying, meaningful and productive.

"We get more and more calls every day from companies who are feeling that they've got to get into this field in a hurry," he says. "And I think organized labor is going to get more involved."

Enthusiasm in industry is not altruistic. Executives have found it makes good business sense. That realization may have been induced by the recent recession, Mills believes.

It has always been assumed that an increase in plant machinery will make each worker turn out more units in the same amount of time.

In the recent economic slump, when money for new machines was tight, many managers turned to improving the other key input of production — human labor — to increase productivity. It cost very little to try.

"We want to increase human productivity by designing work for humans," said Louis O'Leary, of the human resource development department at American Telephone & Telegraph Co. "We do know that there are productivity payoffs when work is designed properly."

In the more than 10 years it has been studying job design, AT&T's efforts have reached tens of thousands of operators, telephone installers and engineers in every part of the country.

The company's in-depth analysis of its jobs has led to three basic concepts, loosely tagged modular, feedback and power to act.

The modular approach is to make each job naturally complete. Employes who assemble phone books, for example, are sometimes assigned the entire book, A to Z, instead of just a part.

Installers may be assigned a regular "turf" or territory, where they become acquainted with customers and get feedback from them.

Granting employes the power to act, to make decisions, giving enough responsibility "to really do your job," is also a key component of the program, O'Leary says. Engineers in many cases no longer need as much approval by superiors of their work as before. Operators are allowed to handle some calls, such as emergency calls, that once were passed to their supervisors.

"It generally amounts to shoving responsibility down in the organization, giving the power to act to the person doing the job," O'Leary said.

Another early entrant to the field was the Eaton Corp., a big international manufacturer of auto and truck parts and other items. In 1968, the manager of a new facility asked the company's personnel executives how to avoid in the new plant the deterioration in employe-employer relations that had occurred in the old.

Their answer, that a person at work should be accorded the same dignity and trust he experiences in his family and society, has been implemented in more than a dozen Eaton plants built since then involving more than 5,000 workers.

Often unclean, occasionally dangerous

Nursing homes plagued by drug use, lack of concern

By BOB EGELKO
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Too many drugs, too little care, and living conditions that are sometimes unclean and occasionally dangerous typify most nursing homes in California, state officials say.

Many nursing homes and smaller private facilities for the elderly, mentally ill and retarded are "just as bad, if not worse" than state mental hospitals, says Kathy Nater, the state Health Department's patients' rights advocate.

Health officials say state supervision of the homes was lax under Gov. Ronald Reagan and was no better under Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. until a crackdown started several months ago.

Nursing home industry officials say conditions are bad in only a small fraction of homes, and blame most of their problems on the state's refusal to increase Medi-Cal funding.

Most attention in the health field has centered recently on reports of brutality, neglect and unexplained deaths at state mental hospitals.

But last week Brown said he expected to get even more horrifying reports from the 1,200 nursing homes and 41,000 community care facilities the state licenses for long-term care.

His prediction appeared to be borne out in interviews with regulatory officials and patients' advocates, who gave accounts of:

— Nursing home residents lying for hours, or even days, in their own excrement and urine, devloping huge, festering bed sores that sometimes left them dangerously ill.

—So few controls on the dispensing of strong tranquilizers that patients were sometimes given entire bottles to take on their own. In at least five cases in the past year, Ms. Nater says, those drugs were used to commit suicide.

— A home that "treated" retarded and autistic children by slapping them, beating them up, and in one case forcing a boy to take a cold shower outdoors in winter.

— Many doctors who visited nursing homes only once a month, and paid little attention to the treatment or condition of their patients.

Nursing homes serve 107,000 Californians who are judged to have no acute illness that needs hospitalization, but who need long-term care that can't be given at home. Their average age is 85.

Community care facilities, with more than twice that many residents, care for other elderly as well as the mentally retarded and mentally ill who have been discharged from institutions. Many of them are private homes run by families. The state started licensing them only recently, and has no training standards yet for their staff.

Both institutions have proliferated in the nearly 10 years since Reagan started his state mental hospital cutbacks.

And from the start, there have been complaints that the state was spending little money or attention on the patients who were released from the hospitals to the community.

The horror stories aside, what are typical conditions like?

Dr. Chalene Herrington, the new deputy state health director in charge of licensing nursing homes and community care facilities, says she thinks more than half of them are substandard.

"There are a lot of people in the nursing home business and board and care business that shouldn't be there," she says. "They cut corners to increase their profits."

She also says virtually every nursing home resident is overdrugged, a situation she blames on doctors as well as the homes.

But the nursing home industry says only 5 to 10 per cent of the homes are bad, and that percentage would drop if Brown would increase state funding.

"The state isn't willing to put the same dollars into nursing homes as they are into their own facilities," says Dr. Howard Worley, executive vice president of the industry group, the California Health Facilities Association.

Worley, who until 1972 held the Health Department job Ms. Herrington now has, says the recently increased state reimbursement rate of $24 per MediCal patient each day wasn't enough for adequate staffing.

"That's for meals and 24-hour care," he says. "Have you stayed in a hotel lately?"

But Ms. Herrington says many nursing homes are managing fine on the current state allotment. And Brown isn't likely to increase it.

Community care facilities get even less from the state — $9 or $10 per patient for family homes in Los Angeles, said Max Factor, a deputy city attorney.

Factor was hearing officer at recent city hearings on the subject. He said administrators of 11 nursing homes, nearly one of 10 in the city, and three board-and-care homes have been prosecuted and convicted since the hearings.

Some of the violations were sanitary, Factor said, but a more central problem was underpaid, untrained and insufficient staff.

"Patients come from hospitals with emotional problems and orderlies, who are getting the minimum wage in most cases, don't know how to cope," he said.

"The ward becomes like a zoo. One of the normal responses is to give everybody a little extra Thorazine."

The hearing records also show three cases of nurses' aides accused of assaulting emotionally disturbed patients. In one case, witnesses said, an aide dumped a bowl of ice cream on the face of a taunting patient.

Factor said there were other cases of suspicious injuries, but it was difficult to prosecute with an elderly and sometimes mentally disturbed patient as the only witness. He said some injured patients also were reluctant to testify for fear of retaliation.

Los Angeles County licenses its own nursing homes, though the state has started studying them. Factor said that until recently, the state's attitude has been to try to educate the industry instead of regulating it.

"It's government by crisis," he said. "Unless people are dying and the press publicizes it, other things have a higher priority."

Ms. Herrington, who was promoted to her job three months ago, said, "There was confusion in the past about whether we were a consultation unit as opposed to enforcement."

But some of the Health Department's recent activism has touched nursing homes.

Armed with an 18-month-old law that hasn't been used much, state inspectors have started dropping in on nursing homes unannounced. Some violators are getting stiff fines, and in at least two cases the

The new attitude has meant replacing rules and penalties with counseling, eliminating time clocks and buzzers, having regular meetings to seek employe opinions, and equalizing benefits and disciplinary measures for factory and office workers.

Writing in the Harvard Business Review, an Eaton executive said that absenteeism at the new plants where the concept was tried ranged from 0.5 to 3 per cent, compared with 6 to 12 per cent at old locations.

An average 4 per cent of the workforce at the new plants quit their jobs annually, compared with up to 60 per cent at old locations. Hourly output at some places rose as much as 35 per cent.

Numerical comparisons are difficult, both because many variables can't be measured and measurable results must await more experience.

A more subtle motive for businessmen to consider is the perception that America's work force has changed, its members are more sophisticated, better educated and have higher expectations.

"Managers in the United States are realizing that their work force is not what their jobs were designed for," Mills says. "Something is changing and they don't quite know how to cope with it. They are aware that it isn't working the way it used to."

"American employers have treated their workers as children ever since the start of the Industrial Revolution," Al Warren, a General Motors Corp. executive, says. "What we're talking about is, whatever you do, you ought to have the opportunity to do it as an adult and not as a child."

Four years ago, a GM auto assembly complex at Lordstown, Ohio, drew attention to what was labeled "the blue-collar blues." The complex contained the world's fastest, automated assembly line.

The workers at the complex struck. A number of issues were on the table, but the real dispute was attributed to the increasing mechanization and dehumunization of work.

"We pay the highest wages but we've never gotten our money's worth," Warren said. "We've excluded the people and tried to lean toward technology."

In 1973, GM and the United Auto Workers formally agreed to work together to improve the quality of work. Since then, projects have been instituted at nearly every GM plant and have involved in some way nearly 40 per cent of the work force.

The GM approach is based largely on team work. Assembly line employes who once handled just one small part of a car are being split into small groups that build an entire subassembly — a transmission or engine, for instance.

More freedom to make decisions on the line is being granted. And in one case employes participated in the design of a new plant.

Warren, who is director of human resource development at GM, describes his job this way: "What do you like about your job? What don't you like? If I could do away with what you don't like. . ."

Punishment:

Death machine's demand may soon be increasing

EDITOR'S NOTE: The main business of Eaton Metal Products Co. is the manufacture of petroleum tanks and anti-pollution equipment. As a sideline, Eaton is the nation's only maker of gas chambers, and now business might be starting up again.

By BILL PARDUE
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — Under the blanket of indecision on capital punishment there slumbers a market for death machines.

So Horace Jackson still keeps the faded, three-page instructions on how to operate a gas chamber in a drawer of his cluttered desk at Eaton Metal Products Co.

It's been more than 20 years since Eaton, the only domestic producer, turned out one of its lethal chambers. But Jackson has the diagram of valves for the chamber his company built for the state of Maryland in 1955.

Since the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in July that capital punishment is constitutional in certain cases, he's had a number of inquiries from prison officials around the country, and even abroad.

The latest was from a Taiwan prison official who had seen the Eaton chamber at San Quentin and wanted to know how to get one for his country. Before that, Jackson, vice president of manufacturing, had a query from Kansas and Oregon. Capital punishment in Kansas is by hanging. Oregon doesn't have a death penalty, but some in that state were thinking about enacting one.

"Inquiries, but nothing firm," Jackson says, adding he isn't eager to start production again.

For one thing, he expects environmentalists will be looking over the company's shoulder.

"I presume they're going to get a good deal fussier about the type of material we use. I think we'd have to enlist the aid of chemists to decide how much gas could be dispersed in the air after the execution."

Eaton has built all gas chambers since 1933, mostly for the 11 states whose laws specify this form of execution; Arizona, California, Colorado, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, Rhode Island and Wyoming; 21 states use electric chairs, six hanging and one — Utah — death by firing squad or hanging. Eleven states don't have the death penalty.

Gas chambers were only a sideline for Eaton, which makes many far less exotic items — petroleum tanks and antipollution equipment.

At any rate, you don't go out and sell gas chambers, Jackson says.

"Usually our inquiries come from persons responsible at the penitentiary. We certainly don't push it."

DEATH MACHINES — Horace Jackson of Eaton Metal Products Co., Denver, Colo., reviews plans on how to build and operate a gas chamber. He is the vice president of the company which is the nation's only producer of gas chambers.

Besides environmental concerns, Jackson has other reservations.

He favors changing the mechanics of the machine so that the identity of the executioner is never known. The last chamber had only one lever that dropped the cyanide pellets into acid, releasing the gas.

"We are somewhat disturbed about who pulls the handle," Jackson says. "He's bound to have mental problems . . . We're trying to fix a way so no one knows who's the one . . ."

Jackson refused to discuss his view of capital punishment. "My own personal opinion regarding it has no bearing on the company's decision to make gas chambers," he said.

department is trying to revoke their licenses.

Another center of activity has been Ms. Nater's office, established this summer to seek out cases of patient abuse, and credited by the department with the first discoveries in the state hospital scandal.

"The state needs to retrain its entire licensing division to think of themselves as enforcers...friends of the patient instead of friends of the industry," says Ms. Nater, who adds that Ms. Herrington has brought a needed change.

As an example of the department's problems, she cites a case of last January, in which an 83-year-old man was found in a Vallejo nursing home caked in his own feces and urine, in which he'd been lying for three days.

Although the man was taken to a hospital in serious condition, Ms. Nater says, the department's local office in Berkeley apparently never learned of the case, and no action was taken against the nursing home.

Another problem is the blurred line of responsibility that seems to pervade the nursing home field.

Nursing homes are regulated by the Health Department, but their doctors and administrators are licensed by the Consumer Affairs Department.

"The lack of communication between those two organizations allows lousy administrators to continue to function," says one state investigator, who asked not to be identified. "They get fired from one home and go to work in another."

Within nursing homes themselves, responsibility for medical decisions can be difficult to pin down.

HOMEMADE — Dan Holtel, left, and Walter O'Bryant look over the homemade electric chair they built for a display. "Dan volunteered to do the carpentry work and I did the wires," said O'Bryant, a former deputy now teaching law enforcement at a Cincinnati vocational school. The electric chair is capable of delivering 100,000 volts of electricity.

"But we don't want to hide behind the cliche that if we didn't do it, someone else would ... We do think it's a far more humane method of execution than the gallows."

Thirty-two men — no women — have been executed in the two gas chambers built by Eaton for the Colorado State Penitentiary. The first one, manufactured in 1933, was replaced 22 years later. The original machine was used as a grain storage bin for a while.

Three men are now residents of Colorado's Death Row, with preparations being made for a fourth. All four cases are on appeal. Throughout the nation, more than 200 men and women wait on Death Rows, sentenced to death. North Carolina, which uses a gas chamber, has the most: more than 60.

The last man executed in the United States — before the Supreme Court outlawed capital punishment until last July — died in the state penitentiary at Canon City, Colo., on June 2, 1967. He was Luis Jose Mange, 49, a native of Puerto Rico, who confessed to murdering his pregnant wife and three of their 10 children.

Monge died in a six-sided chamber with five bulletproof windows. With its dome and vault-like door, the machine looks like something out of a Jules Verne fantasy.

Nine years after Monge's death, the pale green chamber is hidden behind a plywood screen on the fourth floor of the prison.

Eaton got into the gas chamber business after the legislature voted to stop hanging condemned men and kill them with hydrocyanic acid gas instead. Instead of bringing quick death with a snap of the neck, hanging often killed by strangulation lasting almost half an hour.

The gas chamber was billed as a more humane method. And so Colorado followed Nevada, which had abandoned its electric chair in 1921. The first attempt was made in 1924 in a 40-year-old stone shed that was once a butcher shop.

Authorities had mixed feelings about the results. The victim apparently died six minutes after the gas was turned on, but it was more than two hours before the shed was clear of gas and physicians could certify death.

But Colorado's top prison official, Roy Best, was convinced of the new method's merits and worked with Eaton officials to design a chamber — one with three seats.

The closest the state came to using all three chairs at once was in 1935. Leonard Lee Belongia asked to die with two friends by moving his execution up three weeks. His request was denied.

The last Eaton gas chamber, bought by Maryland in 1955, cost about $25,000, Jackson said.

"The current price would be easily three times that," he said.

Jackson expects testing procedures will remain the same if another chamber is built. "They usually test with a pig," Jackson said. "Our oldtimers say a pig is the hardest thing to kill. Pigs can eat propane. they can even eat cyanide but cannot steadily breathe it."

Eaton was granted a patent for its original gas chamber design in 1957. The patent has since expired.

'Neon glad' passe

'Deck the halls' with tennis balls

NEW YORK (AP) — "Deck the halls with tennis balls" seems to be the popular theme for Santa Claus on this year's Christmas greeting cards, according to the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

While the jolly chap from the North Pole is expected to make house calls as usual on Christmas Eve, it may take some doing to get him off the tennis court and into the sleigh, according to Harry J. Cooper, executive director of the association, who adds, "It's obvious that Santa's heavily involved in the sport that's bounced across the nation."

Santa's current interest in tennis is among the findings of an informal survey of the group, whose members are quick to spot trends on the American scene, Cooper says.

Among other trends he reports are: a distinct return to the traditional; closer ties with family and friends, and a less cynical lifestyle than in recent years.

A marked difference in attitudes is reflected in this year's cards as compared with 1971, the survey shows. Five years ago, the motion picture "Easy Rider" praised the nomadic life of motorcycle drifters. At that time, one card publisher portrayed a supercharged Santa astride a hopped-up motorbike. Another Santa of that era wore a gas mask as a protest against pollution. Still another advised his followers to "deck your pad with neon glad."

"The tenor of the times has changed," notes Cooper. "During the Vietnam war, cynicism was widespread and protests were rampant. This year's cards seem to be a harbinger of a more peaceful era, a desire to reunite family and friends and to celebrate the joy of living with taste, discretion and understatement."

Religious themes, the Nativity and the tableaux of the Three Wise Men continue in popularity, according to Cooper. He points out, however, that there are literally thousands of designs and sentiments to choose from this year.

Notable is the prominence of black and Hispanic greetings, and he predicts that a black Mother and Child will gain immediate favor among a vast segment of the population. In a similar vein, Spanish language cards are expected to be popular in the Puerto Rican, Cuban, Mexican and Dominican communities throughout the nation.

Of the more than 40 greeting card publishers who responded to the survey of their association, only one thought that Santa was being "phased out."

"Never," declared the vast majority.

This year's cards show Santa in a variety of roles: checking a Dow-Jones ticker for a financial report; whizzing over the landscape in a sporty convertible; emerging — covered with soot — from the chimney, only to find no one at home; and lofting lob after lob on the tennis court.

David Forer, a New York publisher and a former animator of cartoons for Walt Disney, declares that Santa's here to stay. "And for the next two years," says Forer, "we'll see Santa spending more time at tennis than with his elves in the workshop."

ALL THAT GLITTERS — Is plexiglass, the medium chosen by architect-designers Nader Aralan and Karl Schlamminger to create a sacred room in New York's Cooper-Hewitt Museum. It is part of an exhibit, "Man Transforms," by 10 artists from eight countries financed by a grant from Johnson Wax.

Earthquakes fact of Southland's life

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

"We've got to face the fact that Southern California is earthquake country," says Alfred B. Focke, professor emeritus at Harvey Mudd College in Claremont who has had seismology as a hobby for 50 years.

"We can't predict earthquakes. We can't prevent them, either. But we can make preparations which will reduce the number of deaths and the amount of damage from them."

Focke, a widely recognized physicist and educator, debunks the boasting of Henry Minturn who has appeared on a number of television programs claiming that he predicted the recent earthquake in South America and telling Californians to expect a major earthquake on Dec. 20.

The Claremont professor says he can find no listing for Minturn in any of his professional journals.

The seismometer and other equipment at Harvey Mudd College recorded the South American earthquake Monday, pinpointing the time, location and intensity.

"There are continuous earthquakes along the western border of South America," Focke says. "It would be safe to predict one in that area almost every day if you didn't take into consideration the intensity."

"Five years ago, the Russians announced that they MIGHT have something which MIGHT predict earthquakes," Focke says. "A geological survey station in Menlo Park followed the Russian research and did predict an earthquake which occurred near Hollister. Of course, there are almost daily minor earthquakes in California, too."

Focke says that China is a leader in the field of earthquake prediction. The study of earthquakes has been given high priority in China because of the tremendous loss of life from them over the years.

"Chinese geologists observed three to four-inch bulge over an area of some 100 square miles and studied its effect on earthquakes. They have been looking at what happens to the earth before the quake hits and during the eruption."

The professor says that Chinese scientists did foresee one major quake and were able to warn the people to evacuate buildings, thus probably saving many lives.

"But I wonder how many heads rolled when the Chinese scientists missed the recent major quake southeast of Peking," says Focke. "So much for predictions."

Focke adds that Chinese, Russian and other scientists around the world willingly share their research on earth-quakes.

The prediction of a Cal Tech professor that a major earthquake would occur in the area between Fillmore and Mt. Baldy and the coast and San Andreas fault before April of 1977 has been highly publicized.

"Now Cal Tech is saying that the continuing data is confusing, but the possibility still exists," says Focke.

He, too, feels that there should be a sizeable quake soon, based upon the past history of earthquakes in the Southland.

There have been 14 major earthquakes in the area between Santa Barbara and San Diego since records started being kept in 1899. These include a 1901 quake which leveled the Alberhill Brick Co. south of Corona, the 1925 quake which destroyed much of Santa Barbara and the 1933 quake which almost leveled Long Beach.

More recent damaging quakes have occurred in Desert Hot Springs in 1948, in Bakersfield in the early 1950s and in Sylmar in 1971.

Many of the more serious and lesser quakes have occurred along the

New vistas opened

Chaffey adult school: new opportunities for older students

By BOB SWETNAM

Patricia Nare is probably a typical 17-year-old high school senior. She worries about the usual things, who to date, what clothes to wear, whether to go on to college or get a job and, of course, the biggest worry of all . . . grades!

But another one of Patricia's constant worries this year is if she will graduate from Upland High School next June with her friends.

Earlier this year, Patricia was forced to miss five weeks of school due to surgery. There is a possibility she may need another operation before the school term is over.

CREATIVE ENDEAVOR

Gil Butt of Cucamonga makes brazed sculptures in a creative metalworking class he takes at Montclair High School. The class, taught by Earl Ramsey, an expert in metal working, is one of the more popular classes at the adult school.

So what can a person do in such a situation?

"This is a good example of what adult education is all about," said Principal Al Schoenborn. "It allows a student who has suffered a serious illness an opportunity to catch up."

A look at the Chaffey adult school program, however, reveals there are many examples of what the program is all about. And the examples are as interesting and varied as the students themselves.

More than 2,500 students attend classes sponsored by the adult school. Classes are taught at 29 locations in the district, including schools: five high Chaffey , Upland, Montclair, Ontario, and Alta Loma .

Other locations where classes are offered include convalescent hospitals, churches, elementary schools and mobile home parks.

Schoenborn explained the reason for offering classes at a number of locations was to allow elderly, non-English speaking, and culturally disadvantaged adults the opportunity to take advantage of the program.

"Our primary goal is still to offer an academic curriculum for those persons who never had the chance to finish high school," said Schoeborn. "But we do have a number of students taking classes for reasons other than a diploma.

"What we try to do is meet the needs of the community. If enough people express an interest in a particular area of study we will attempt to add it to our program."

Included in the adult school offerings are such classes as business, psychology, automotive, sewing, metal and jewelry, photography and foreign languages.

One of the fastest growing areas of instruction is in the basic education program funded by the federal government.

"This program is composed primarily of Spanish speaking adults and is novel in that it attempts to educate people to speak the English language, to learn about our culture and to be aware of the opportunities that exist to improve their own health, education and welfare," said Schoenborn.

For those interested in a diploma, however, Chaffey adult school is one place to get it.

"We usually graduate between 80 and 100 students a year," said Schoenborn. "The high school diploma our students receive is as good as any other. To our students and their families and friends, however, there are few things more meaningful.

"In June, we hold a graduation ceremony and it is often a very moving affair. To see an adult who may have never dreamed of graduating from high school, walk down that aisle to proudly get his diploma, is indeed a sight to see."

The Chaffey adult school operates with a very small staff. There are approximately 60 teachers involved in instruction and an office staff of three, Schoeborn, a counselor, Dave Radcliff, and a secretary, Lorraine Branson.

"Adults are capable of answering the question 'Why am I here?' and seem to have a much more positive approach to education than the kids," says Radcliff, who has worked with both.

"The adults have a purpose in mind . . . a goal they want to achieve."

Radcliff believes the goal of adult education should be "to whet the appetite of the student in his pursuit of knowledge."

"We have graduated over a thousand persons from adult school and many have gone on to junior college or even a four-year college and earned a degree there," says Radcliff.

"So much of schooling is not so much your intelligence as your attitude . . . and it seems to me the vast majority of students I have talked with have that positive attitude."

One of the unique aspects of adult education is the relaxed and informal atmosphere of the classes. There seems to be more interpersonal involvement between teacher and students than would be found at the regular high school level.

But the seriousness of purpose is perhaps more profound.

"I see this as a way to better my chances for a good job," says Donna /

New controls?

Area economic experts fear trend by Carter

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

President-elect Jimmy Carter's request to major steel producers to roll back their announced six per cent increase in flat-rolled steel prices indicates his probable actions on wage and price controls during the first year in office.

Or so say two economic advisers, A. James Meigs, director, and John Rutledge, associate director of the Applied Financial Economics Center at Claremont Men's College.

"There are two obvious reasons for our concern," Meigs said. "Carter has not assumed office, but could not wait to start playing a role in industrial pricing decisions, and the steel price increase was not far out of line of the average rate of increase in the prices of other goods in the economy, which averaged about five per cent so far this year."

Rutledge said "We are worried that this increases the chances that we will experience the overexpansion-price control scenario we outlined at a recent conference of economists on the campus."

"Carter has said all along that he wants the power to impose wage and price control," Meigs said.

"While Carter said he would be unlikely to exercise that power, this is reminiscent of Kennedy's attempts at 'jawboning'," he added.

The economists said that prices are rising faster now than they were in Kennedy's days, and businessmen have been burned in recent price control experiments.

Rutledge said that many businessmen now understand that price controls can generate shortages, bottlenecks, and recessions.

"Hence, they feel little moral responsibility to cooperate with government price control efforts," he continued.

"As we learned from Kennedy's attempt to pressure the steel companies, price controls are bad news for the stock market."

Meigs said that strong controls will also quickly depress bond prices, the value of the dollar on international markets and increase the prices of commodities.

"In fact, the recent gesture toward controls should be quickly reflected in many wholesale prices, and in wage negotiations over the next two months as producers and workers try and protect themselves against future controls," Meigs said.

Local impact report due

A specific area plan and an environmental impact report for the proposed development of the old Phillips Ranch property in southwest Pomona will be reviewed and considered for adoption by the Pomona City Council Monday night.

Both documents have been approved by the city's planning commission and approval by the council will move the large scale development a step closer toward formal acceptance.

Masses ignore mass transit

Three transit engineers went to Washington the other day to lecture other engineers and designers at a seminar on Mass Transit Structure Design, sponsored by the American Iron and Steel Institute. They looked into the crystal ball and saw, among other things:

— By the year 2000, commuters gliding to work inside streamlined tubes in cars balanced on a cushion of air.

— Personal rapid transit vehicles carrying 10 to 15 people directly to and from downtown and their homes without intermediate stops.

— Computer - controlled systems enabling passenger car drivers to enter a highway, plug into the system and be automatically directed to their destinations.

— Mass transit cars floating on a magnetic field, permitting intercity train speeds as high as 300 miles an hour.

"This is not idle dreaming," said one of the three. "All of these ideas and others are the subject of extensive study and research, both in the U.S. at American Iron and Steel Institutes and elsewhere as well as abroad."

It is no idle dream, that is, in terms of the technology needed to make it come true. In terms of whipping up public enthusiasm for mass transit, however, at present it seems to be the impossible dream.

Transportation experts have learned from urban mass transit experiments that just having what appears to be a very useful system doesn't mean people will be waiting in line to use it, observes Princeton University engineer Alain Kornhauser, a member of a team investigating the feasibility of automated highways.

"We've built plenty of great mass transit systems in this country that no one is using," he says.

In fact, over the past decade the federal government has spent about $16 billion in subsidies to improve or shore up existing transit systems and experiment with new ones.

The results of all this effort in city after city suggest that mass transit has been a costly failure, charges M. Stanton Evans, writing in the conservative weekly, "Human Events."

For example, $120 million has been spent to upgrade and supplement rail transit systems in Chicago, a city geographically suited to fixed-rail transit and with a considerable history of rail commuting.

But while the new or enlarged rail systems have attracted more passengers, for the most part they have not attracted them out of automobiles. A study of one new rapid transit line in Chicago found that 80 per cent of the passengers had previously used bus, rail or a combination of the two; only 8 per cent had previously driven private automobiles.

The experience of San Francisco's $1.6 billion Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) has been similar. The proportion of BART riders attracted from autos is higher than in Chicago — 35 per cent vs. 8 per cent — yet some 50 per cent of BART's patronage comes from people who used to ride buses.

BART had a deficit of $40 million in fiscal 1976, and its effect on total automobile usage has been slight.

Meanwhile, in the nation's capital, work is slowly progressing on the Washington Metro System, an elaborate 100-mile subway grid. Estimated final costs are now at better than $5 billion, the project is years behind schedule and only 4.6 miles of the system are in use.

Yet even on this limited basis, the Metro is losing some $55,000 a day.

Maybe when fuel becomes scarce enough, automobiles become expensive enough, pollution becomes bad enough and our highways become congested enough we will embark on a new era of mass transportation.

Until then, the futuristic vision the engineers see in their crystal ball remains just that — a vision.

Just in jest

Do you want to know why some teachers seriously consider taking early retirements? Well then, here's the way one of them explained it to me.

"Trying to carry out the edicts issued by the powers that be is going to drive me to an early grave. When it was officially decided to do away with prayers in school rooms, I was able to cope with the questions some of my little hopefuls raised as to the reason why. But on "share day" when one of them brings her praying doll to school and is about to press its stomach so that it will recite, 'Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep,' for the edification of her little classmates, how oh how do I explain that all-wise Supreme Court justices have ruled prayers in school rooms, even dolls' prayers, are unconstitutional?"

Helms to the rescue again

WASHINGTON — The United States embassy in Tehran, we've discovered, has attempted to help the Shah of Iran quash unfavorable press criticism in the United States.

Classified State Department cables reveal that former CIA Director Richard Helms, who recently resigned as ambassador to Iran, tried to help the Iranians halt the publication of an anti-government newspaper.

We reported earlier that Helms had cabled Washington about closing down the "Iran Free Press," an often outrageous anti-shah newspaper published in the United States.

The helpful Helms was told by State Department officials that the "matter had been carefully studied, but lawyers had concluded that under U.S. laws, there was regrettably no basis for such action."

Helms also asked for information on Nasser Afshar, publisher of the newspaper, who is an American citizen.

Now, additional cables in our possession indicate that Helms at times turned the U.S. embassy into a branch office of the Iranian government.

In a confidential telegram dated May 12, 1973, Helms told the State Department that an official of the Iranian Ministry of Foreign Affairs had demanded to know how Afshar acquired American citizenship.

The Iranian also petulantly asked why the U.S. government would "permit a U.S. citizen (to) undertake political activities against a friendly country like Iran . . . ?"

The State Department obligingly responded that "Afshar immigrated to the U.S. in January, 1946, and was naturalized as a U.S. citizen on Aug. 28, 1952." Afshar, confided the State Department officials, had been issued a passport in 1970 after checks with the FBI and other federal agencies.

Helms then reported that one of his diplomatic aides had been summoned to the Iranian Ministry of Foreign Affairs for another lecture about Afshar.

His aide, said Helms, told the Iranians that "we have been exploring with Washington for some time whether action could be taken against Iran Free Press, but without success so far."

On May 30, the State Department authorized Helms to tell the Iranians that "the department agrees that the Iran Free Press is a scurrilous publication filled with libelous, irresponsible and inaccurate statements."

"However," warned State Department bureaucrats, "there are no legal steps the U.S. government can take against this paper unless and until it violates federal law."

But, the Washington officials added, "we are looking into Afshar's background through the appropriate channels."

The message was passed on to Iranian officials, reported Helms two weeks later.

"Should any further information be developed regarding Afshar's background, cabled Helms, " . . . we would appreciate having it."

MICRONESIAN OIL — Giant international oil interests and the Interior Department are joining forces to defoliate a lush tropical paradise. Both want the tiny Pacific island of Palau to become a petroleum superport between the Middle East and Japan.

"Port Pacific" is the brainchild of Robert Panero, a jet-setting American businessman. Panero wants to be the middleman in a deal that would ship Mideast oil to Palau for refining. The oil would then be transported by tanker to Japan.

The petroleum project, of course, would lay waste to a good part of the island's beautiful tropical surroundings. And most of Port Pacific's high-paying jobs would go to foreign workers imported from outside Palau.

Worse yet, Japanese industrial interests allied with Panero are conducting their own "feasibility study" to guarante themselves exclusive development rights. Much of the study will be kept under wraps for the next five years.

The Interior Department, nevertheless, has given its enthusiastic blessing to the project. Fred Zeder, Interior's territorial development chief, told us he sees nothing unusual or secret about the deal.

The Environmental Defense Fund, though, may challenge the proposal in court.

DISABLED LOBBY — A secret study by Ralph Nader's new Disability Rights Center shows that makers and sellers of artificial breathers, home respirators and wheelchairs often ignore the needs of those who use them.

The study shows that despite sky-high prices, there is often little or no training provided for those who buy the products. Emphysema victims, for example, buy home "breathers" but may die from oxygen overdoses for lack of instruction on how to use the units.

The center is headed by a tough California lawyer named Deborah Kaplan who broke her neck in a diving accident and is now a partial quadraplegic. She has mapped a campaign to rally the 10 million seriously disabled into a massive consumer lobby.

PHONY LINCOLNISM — For years, a poster with a pious quotation attributed to Abe Lincoln has stared down at visitors to the office of Rep. Caldwell Butler, R.-Va. It says, in part, "you cannot help the poor by discouraging the rich."

The major problem with the homily is that it's a fake, often used by Big Business to justify excess profits, but proved phony in 1950 by the Library of Congress. Butler's staff says the congressman knows it's a fake, but "he didn't care who said it, he thinks it's pretty good."

POLITICAL REWARD: President Ford has replaced a distinguished career diplomat as Ambassador to the Bahamas with a political crony.

The appointee is Wisconsin's former lieutenant governor, Jack Olson, who is better known for his political connections than his diplomatic skills. He labored hard for Ford's nomination last month at the Republican convention.

Olson will replace Seymour Weiss, a perceptive State Department strategist, who has the special skills needed to deal with the crisis in the Caribbean. The Bahamas are wracked with internal problems, ranging from gambling and narcotics to political turmoil.

There is also a growing anti-white, anti-American sentiment.

By all accounts, Olson is an honest, decent businessman, with political experience. A White House spokesman described Olson as a "good and well qualified" appointee. But the deposed Weiss is far more qualified for the post.

LOCKHEED STORY: The giant Lockheed conglomerate must be considered a quasi-public institution. As the nation's largest defense contractor, Lockheed couldn't exist without government work. The company was also saved from being blown, headlong, down its own wind tunnel when Congress bailed it out with a quarter of a billion dollars.

Thus Lockheed is on the public dole, and its activities, therefore, deserve close public inspection. This is a report on one small activity.

In 1969, a corporation now known as EMMS-Biolex embarked on a joint venture with the California division of Lockheed to develop a purification process for fossil fuels. By treating oil as a microbiological compound rather than a mineral, several organic impurities could be removed.

The results, according to Lockheed's own data, were astonishing. For a fraction of a penny a gallon, a corrosive slime could be removed from jet fuel and gasoline. This improved the efficiency of the fuel and made auto exhaust emissions cleaner.

Now Lockheed has been slapped with a $10 billion lawsuit because the company has done little in seven years to develop the process. The reason, Biolex charges, is that Lockheed is trying to steal the process from Biolex before developing it.

A Lockheed spokesman minimized both Lockheed's involvement with the project and the lawsuit. The project had been shelved for some time, he said, because the company considered it not worth pursuing.

Subject Carter to 3rd degree?

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — It should come as no surprise that Jimmy Carter is, cross his heart, vowing unprecedented cooperation with Congress during his presidential term. Every executive since Mr. Washington has made the pledge. One can't very well begin service in the White House by saying Congress is a collection of scoundrels, the foster child of special interests, which should be quietly ignored.

And yet such promises have about them the stuff of gossamer fantasy. It's remembered that Jerry Ford promised love, honor and obedience to Capitol Hill, then became the most prolific user of the veto in history. Gentle words aside, most presidents feel, as did Andrew Jackson, that they must secure both liberty and the "integrity of the Constitution against the Senate, the House, or both."

So it is that the feud between the executive and legislative branches has become the longest continuously sardonic crap game in town. Seventeen presidents have served in the House, 16 have been in the Senate, and 10 have had membership in both bodies, but over the decades even the familiarities have served to breed contempt.

In some respects the contempt is healthy. The division of strength is the taproot of democracy. But it can also begat excess, which may begat isolation, which may begat a crippled system. Carter knows this well; as governor of Georgia his contempt for his legislature led in the end to near paralyzing leadership confrontations.

It is in an effort to avoid past mistakes, then, that the president-elect is opting for a better idea. Already he has given his private telephone number to dozens of congressmen. And he's talked of bipartisan consultation. Of more interest, however, and meaning, is his assurance that members of his cabinet will be required, when invited, to go to Congress to respond to questions and demands.

The cabinet commitment seems solid enough. Carter is not suggesting his lieutenants appear merely for cozy committee meetings. He says he will direct them to appear before "joint sessions of Congress, preferably with national television coverage." Quite bold. And unique. Besides, the plan is unusual in that it is somewhat of a steal from another — i.e., parliamentary — form of government.

It may be that Carter's thoughts for this proposal were formed the first time he saw the parliamentary system in action. That was in 1973, on a visit to London. Carter toured Parliament, and was apparently impressed by the body's "question hour" when either the prime minister or members of his cabinet are challenged in the chamber.

For an American observer, used to the blahs of congressional debate, the parliamentary interrogation can be astonishing. Government officials are not only questioned, but on occasion are abused. Often the assault is accomplished by both friend and foe of the administration. Fisticuffs are not unprecedented. When he gets especially raucous the Speaker will rescue order by clearing the floor.

In spite of the risks to etiquette, Parliament is a continuing fascination for some legislators in America. Scores of bills have been offered through the years which would raid the mother country's lawmaking apparatus for ideas. In fact Carter's vice president, Walter Mondale, has suggested the U.S. "look carefully at those aspects of the parliamentary system which can be creatively adapted (to our own)."

The adoption proposals have inevitably failed to attract wide interest here, however. Chauvinism rather than logic is a reason. "If the founders had wanted to copy from Britain," said a solon of some years past, "they'd have invited King George's suggestions." Still in all, Carter's idea may give rise to more reasoned interest.

Even now there are private opinions in Congress that the new executive might do well to expand his plan. To occasionally appear himself for congressional inquiry. And it's not a bad notion. Whatever the good intentions of new presidents, history indicates they soon enough become dangerously insulated, which is to say imperialistic. There's nothing like the third degree to renew one's humility.

Think on these things

"Some tears belong to us because we are unfortunate; others because we are humane; many because we are mortal — But most are caused by our being unwise. It is these last, only, that of necessity produce more." Leigh Hunt.

For the most part we try to live so that there are no tears. We associate them with hurt — with crying that should be avoided. But tears are a part of us the same as laughter and they so often do a cleaning job that nothing else can accomplish.

One must feel emotion to be able to cry — and to remain in an overwrought state for too long is not right. But to refuse to feel the depth of an emotion and to shed tears, whether it is for joy or sorrow, is to never grow. Those are the tears of wisdom that are soon done with — and the unwise? We must learn.

Food stamps and football

Today's adults remember when one sport made headlines once a year at Series time.

When the highest paid hockey player made less money than the high school principal.

When professional golfers had to change clothes in the caddy shack, were not even allowed in the clubhouse.

And when the biggest football stadium consisted of bleachers on both sides of a patch of pasture grass.

Coincident with the evolution of television the heretofore avocation, "sports," became our nation's highest paid vocation.

The networks brought home 1,200 hours of sports events and sports programs last year; half again more than just five years before.

Historians cannot escape the compulsion to compare today's "food stamps and football" with the "bread and circuses" which kept the ancient Romans preoccupied — while their empire died Television has spawned entire new leagues of professional athletes: The American Football League. World Team Tennis.

Additionally, TV has fed the public hunger for distraction with weekly hours of action — golf, motorcycle stunting, wrist-wrestling, auto demolition derbies and jumping barrels on ice skates

Basketball and hockey seasons have been stretched into June.

Play is suspended in all sports to allow for periodic TV commercials.

The income of athletes has been catapulted from Babe Ruth's once "scandalous" $80,000 to where today most any professional basketball player expects to earn more than the President of the United States.

And exposure to more sports promotes participation.

After television made a star of gymnast Olga Korbut at the 1972 Olympics, the number of American gymnasts increased within months from 100,000 to 250,000.

The current tennis craze dates directly to the 1973 match between Bobby Riggs and Billie Jean King. Today there are 9 million more tennis players than then.

Television's "instant replay" technique has so enlivened each sport from a spectator standpoint that some stadiums have installed giant TV screens so that persons in attendance can have it both ways.

ABC-TV has moved from a weak third to No. 1 in the ratings largely because of its sports emphasis. That network's coverage of the 1976 Olympics swamped the competition.

The undisputed contemporary artist — the impressionist who has best captured "right now" on canvas — is LeRoy Neiman with his action graphics of athletes and sporting events

And while some sociologists and historians suspect that we are all being distracted — by bread and circuses — from more worthy preoccupations, it can also be argued that there are lots worse things we could be watching than contests which reward and inspire physical excellence.

Ann Landers

Perfection has its faults

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sure you've never had a problem like mine before. What troubles me is that I have no problems.

I don't want to sound conceited but I am a very pretty, mature 16-year-old girl. My figure is great. My skin is like peaches and cream. I have all the dates I can handle. Loads of girl friends say they wish they were in my shoes.

My grades are tops and I win everything I try for at school. Something has to be wrong with me because nobody's perfect. What could it be? — Miss Want To Know.

Dear Miss: The fact that you view yourself as flawless is a serious fault right there. Add to that your statement that you have absolutely no problems. What this means is you don't know a problem when you see one, Kiddo — and THAT can be the biggest problem of all.

Dear Ann Landers: A nice neighbor introduced us to a young man who recently moved to town and was interested in renting a room with a respectable family. We liked him at once and we rented him our spare room the following weekend.

Fred (not his real name) is a nice chap but when I clean his room I can't help but notice the magazines he buys. They are so trashy I hate to have them in the house. Of course I can't say anything to him because it isn't my business. Fred also gets mail from all over the country. This DOES bother me because I'm sure the mail is in response to the ads I've seen in those terrible magazines.

You have spoken out against lonely-hearts clubs and warned your readers not to become involved with strangers. I wonder if advertising in magazines and newspapers for social contacts is the result of the lonliness that seems so intense because of the sorry state of the world today. Will you comment, please? — Just An Observer

Dear Just: There have always been lonely people in the world. Searching for friends through magazines and newspapers is not new.

A column in the Chicago Daily News, "Herguth's People," ran an item that appeared 100 years ago. It was an ad among the personals: "Young gentleman, 25 years of age, holding a good situation, desires the acquaintance of a young lady or widow of fair education, pleasing address, and some money. Object, matrimony. No triflers."

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 16-year-old guy who just got his first car. I couldn't wait to take it out on the highway. I was feeling just great and loved everybody.

I spotted a hitchhiker about my age and decided to give him a lift. The guy pulled a gun on me. I was scared stiff but decided to guts it through.

In my calmest voice I said, "Look, I can pull a gun on you just as fast as you pulled one on me. Or I could run this car into a telephone pole and kill us both. You're safe with me as long as I'm safe with you."

The guy put his gun away and got out at the next stop sign. Please tell your readers NEVER to pick up a hitchhiker no matter how harmless he (or she) looks. You never can tell. — Lucked Out.

Dear L.: I don't know when you started to read this column, but I warn my readers at least once a year against picking up hitchhikers. A letter like yours, however, is far more effective than ol' Annie playing the same old tune. Thanks, Pal.

Where speeding tickets abound

Do the lawmen in your state strictly enforce the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit? Officers in most states don't according to the American Automobile Association. An extensive look at the speeding ticket records indicates you're least likely to get away with pushing the pedal to the metal in these states: Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Virginia, Kentucky, Louisiana, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and West Virginia.

GREAT NIGHT HUNTER

See where it's stated in print that the owl is the world's greatest night hunter, and I presume the contention is offered regardless of what might be said about the actor Ryan O'Neal. Claim comes to mind because a client asks if the owl is really as wise as reputed. No. Wildlife experts say the owl actually is stupid. It just sees, hears and flies exceedingly well, that's all.

It's pretty hard to grasp the extent of Thomas Edison's genius, all right. But you get an inkling from a comment he made long long before anybody else ever talked about that thing called the atomic bomb: "There will one day spring from the brain of science a machine or force so fearsome in its potentialities, so absolutely terrifying, that even man . . . will be appalled, and so abandon war forever."

Think safety for climbing hamster

DEAR DR. MILLER: Hermit, my hamster, wants to climb the ladder. Shall I let him? Is a hamster smart enough not to fall? — D.D.

DEAR D.D.: Just how high Hermit Hamster can safely go depends on what he'd have to land on if he did fall, his previous expertise (if any) in this field, and whether or not he's likely to have any interruptions during his climbing expeditions. Hamsters are better burrowers than they are climbers. You couldn't count on his safely scaling a human-type ladder, though they do make hamster-sized substitutes he could safely use.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I don't know why my parents don't want me to have one. They say they're a nuisance. Newt don't make a lot of noise, do they? — J.E.

DEAR J.E.: No. Newts aren't noisy, though they may squeak slightly with a sudden expulsion of air from the lungs if they're quickly grabbed.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My poor pussycat has a terribly sore, ulcerated tongue and mouth. It's all my fault. All I was trying to do was keep her bowls nice and clean. The doctor thought at first it might be a virus, but then he figured out it was detergent left on the dishes. I hadn't rinsed them thoroughly enough after I'd washed them! What a terrible thing to do to my poor baby. She's healing up now, but please warn other people to be sure to rinse their dishes real good, because any detergent left can cause terrible burns on the mouth. Thank you. — R.G.

DEAR R.G.: Thank (ital) you. (unital)

DEAR DR. MILLER: Last year my dog's feet got burned by the street chemicals used to melt snow. This year I'm going to rub mineral oil into her feet before I take her out for a walk. This will protect them against burning chemicals and I can always wash them off if necessary. People should know this, don't you think? — N.H.

DEAR N.H.: Mineral oil's mighty messy, though it would provide some protection. But booties are better. Rubber vinyl or other plastic boots can be left on only a short time because the feet will sweat, but for an outside stroll where irritating chemicals can be encountered, they provide the best protection. Besides, they are far neater than applying oils which may either be licked off (to cause diarrhea) or become a slippery, sloppy mess.

Tailgate buffet primitive fare

Okay, you all know how I feel about camping.

A Motel 6 is about as primitive as I want to get. I just cannot understand people who are turned on by swishing their silverware in a mesh bag through a stream where a dog just relieved himself.

That's why it came as a bit of a surprise when Wanda called last week and said, "Before the football game next Saturday, we're going to have a tailgate buffet."

"How far is the tailgate buffet from my all-electric kitchen?"

"Don't start that again," she said. "You have to be the most boring, unimaginative person I know. Don't you ever like to try anything different? We'll pack a lunch, allow ourselves an hour or two before the game and have a fun time eating off the tailgate of the station wagon."

"You're right as usual," I told Wanda later. "This is fun. I don't think I've had so much fun since I slid down the deck of the Titanic without spilling a drop of my iced tea."

"Well, if you're not having a good time," snapped Wanda, "It's your fault . . . crouching back there behind the spare tire. Why don't you stand around the tailgate like the rest of us?"

"I'm cold! Besides, the sandwich is dry."

"You're eating your glove."

I crawled out of the car and planted my feet firmly in the fresh tar, not daring to believe what I saw. The parking lot was an orgy of campers, folding tables, and tailgates. The entire football field was under siege. One lighted match and the entire place was set to blow.

"Isn't this great?" chirped Wanda. "You know, even the food tastes different out in the air."

"You're right," I said. "This doughnut tastes like it flunked its emissions test." "One of these days," said Wanda softly, her eyes fixed vacantly, "we're going to go to a football game in a camper. We'll have our own stove where we can cook steaks and a refrigerator where we can store salads. And there'll be big, comfortable chairs and sofas where we can sit down and have a drink. We won't even have to climb into coats or boots and sit on hard bleacher seats. We'll watch the game on a colored television set in comfort."

"Wanda! You have just described your own home!"

"I knew you wouldn't understand. Are you coming?"

"A car just ran over my foot," I grimaced.

"Did anyone ever tell you you're a complainer?"

Can't digest sugar products

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would appreciate it if you would give me some information concerning disaccharide deficiencies. I have been diagnosed as lacking lactase, sucrase and maltase. I can't eat any products containing milk, sugar or malt.

I am confused as to what products contain malt and would appreciate it if you could tell me where I could find out this information.

I know I am lacking certain nutrients and am not sure what substitutes I need. As of now I am completely bewildered about how to handle my problem. I know two of my sons have inherited the lactose deficiency and perhaps the entire problem and I am not sure how to feed them.

DEAR READER — While lactase deficiency is fairly common, resulting in an inability to tolerate milk and milk products, lack of the other two enzymes is quite rare.

There are three double sugars that are common in our foods. They are lactose from milk, sucrose (ordinary sugar) and maltose, a combination of two glucose molecules. Maltose is formed from the breakdown of starch from vegetables and cereals.

A deficiency of these three enzymes you mention causes difficulty in breaking down the double sugars into single sugars so they can be absorbed for use. When they are not absorbed the double sugars cause gas, diarrhea and discomfort. Sometimes the deficiency is only partial and the individual may still tolerate a limited amount of the carbohydrates that contain these double sugars.

To help you understand the differences between single sugars, double sugars, starch and how all of these are related I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-8, Sugar and Starch: Carbohydrates. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

What can you eat? You can use honey as a sweetener. It is glucose and fructose, but unlike in table sugar, they exist as single sugars. You do not need sucrase to break down a double sugar into glucose and fructose. Your pharmacist may be able to get you some pure dextrose (glucose) which you can use for sugar.

You may be able to use some well-ripened fruit. Otherwise you will need to avoid all the starches and foods that contain starch. This includes potatoes and cereals. You may want to get some bran for the fiber it contains but you will want pure bran and won't be able to use breakfast foods for this purpose because of their starch content.

Since we don't digest cellulose you can probably eat a limited amount of leafy vegetables. You will have to learn by experience how much tolerance you have to these foods.

You should take daily vitamins because you are not likely to be able to eat a balanced diet. You can eat any protein and fats, which means all the meat group, including fish and poultry. You will probably need to take additional calcium as milk and milk products are the main source for these. You should be able to use eggs but if you have an elevated cholesterol you could use a low cholesterol egg substitute.

If your lactose intolerance is not too severe you might be able to use Lact-Aid that I have mentioned before, an enzyme that furnishes lactase to break down lactose in milk before you drink it (obtained from SugarLo, 3540 Atlantic Ave., Atlantic City, NJ 08401).

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're less competent at mental gymnastics than you think you are today. You may have the enthusiasm, but you lack breadth and vision.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful the next couple of days in commercial dealings. The ground you're standing on is not too firm. Hidden problems could clobber you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't do anything today to alienate partners or associates. They're more important to your immediate success than you might realize.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The way you handle others could be your undoing today. You have a knack of rubbing people the wrong way. You're tactless.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you run into someone socially today who's as strong-willed as you are, don't be afraid to back down. Give an inch and keep a friend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Underestimating your opposition could be disastrous today. Evaluate realistically and deal accordingly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Getting involved with the wrong people today could cost you money. Be wary of those who'd profit through your assets.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try not to push yourself to the detriment of others today. You may easily obtain what you seek, but the wine will turn to vinegar in your mouth.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Pride may lead you to attempt a task beyond your ability, even when you know you're in over your head. Use common sense.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today, it's best you don't gamble on long shots. Put your money on things that you know are within your abilities.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Placing more credence on the efficiency of others than you do on your own credibility is a mistake today. Don't downgrade your high standards.

When guilt is too much

Some years ago, I read a poem about a father who sent his disobedient and unrepentent son to bed. The little boy cried himself to sleep.

A long time later the father went to his son's bedroom to check on the boy. He saw the face still covered with tears and the wet pillow; the little boy was now sound asleep.

Before the little fellow had crawled into bed and cried himself to sleep, he gathered some of his treasured toys . . . a knife, a few shells, an old penny, a nickel, some checkers, and a bag of marbles in his arms. These treasured toys seemed his only friends at the time.

Unknowingly to him, his father came in, wiped the last tear away, kissed him lovingly and said, "Good night, my son."

Know that God does this with you. When the hurts of life are too much, or when we cannot handle our guilt, God, in His mercy comes and loves us.

Glad you asked

Q: Was the Lou Gehrig disease ever diagnosed and given a medical name? — L. Perez, San Juan, Puerto Rico.

A: Yes. It's known as ALS — amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, a progresive neurological disorder characterized by a degeneration of motor cells in the spinal cord and brain. Once called the Lou Gehrig disease because it was thought to be indigenous to athletes, it is now known that ALS strikes either sex at any age. Thanks to grants from the ALS Foundation for Research, some day the mystery may be conquered. (Footnote: Former heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles fought ALS for some nine years before going down for the count in 1975.)

Q: I have a bet going that George Burns once did a TV series with Connie Stevens. I guess it didn't last long enough to remember — what did they call it? And when? — Timmie O'B., Pasadena, Calif.

A: "Wendy & Me" — vintage mid-'60s.

A: No. The Jones boy will be appearing in a film ("Yockowald") playing an undercover agent for the CIA. Says he wants to try all phases of show business, but will never give up singing.

Q: What is Goldie Hawn's real name? — K.P.M., Orlando, Fla.

A: It's Goldie Hawn. She was born Goldie Jean Hawn, in Washington, D.C. Her dad, a resident of Las Vegas, was society orchestra musician Rutledge Hawn. He's a descendent of Edward Rutledge of South Carolina, suh — youngest signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Q: I heard that Playboy phoned Lawrence Welk (among other celebrities) for his opinion on what was to blame for the lowering morality these days. What was his answer? —Mrs. G. Duncan, Columbus, Ohio.

A: "My answer," Welk tells us, "was Playboy itself. The caller didn't hang up but it got awfully quiet on the other end!"

San Jacinto fault, Focke adds.

He explains that the rising bulge in the Mojave Desert is a result of the pressure of the Southern California shelf coastline against the inner areas. Focke says that the San Andreas fault which runs through the mountain range here is actually the boundry between the North American continent to the east and the Pacific plate which includes California west of the fault and the ocean floor.

"Actually, we live on the California Island," Focke says, "and if we could wait long enough, California will separate from the rest of the country.

"But it will never fall into the ocean, as some people have said. There's no place to fall.

"But Los Angeles is gradually moving north toward San Francisco," he adds.

Focke explained that the pressure caused by the shifting of the Pacific plate against the Mojave area does result in a compression.

"The surface rock can be compressed just so much, then it will break and this is an earthquake," explains the professor.

"History shows that earthquakes come in swarms and there have been a number of quakes recently, all over the globe," he adds.

The seismometer at Harvey Mudd College showed clearly the location and magnitude of both the South American and Turkey quakes plus the strength of recent ones throughout California. Much of the computations is based upon the time lag between the compression wave and the shear wave. The directions of the movements of the seismometer also indicates the location.

While Focke says he cannont tell the public when a quake will occur, he can offer some suggestions for survival.

First, don't put heavy objects on high shelves where they will become weapons flying through the air.

Second, stay away from windows which may shatter. Instead, stand in an inside doorway so you can jump or crawl either way.

Third, if you are outside, stay there, but don't run outside and risk being struck with falling roof tiles or chimneys.

Wooden houses are the safest, Focke said, and most structures constructed since the earthquake safety legislation was passed are quite safe.

He also recommends that families keep an adequate amount of water and other supplies stored in case of an emergency.

"But," adds Focke, " we still live in a civilized community and don't need massive stores of food.

"As long as the public realistically understands the problems inherent in living in an earthquake-prone area and acts sensibly, there's no cause for mass panic."

Whatever their reasons for taking adult school classes, most students agreed the experience was a valuable one.

"It's a lot of fun here even though you do have to work," she says.

Mrs. Birkett, who along with her husband lives in Ontario and has one boy in college and another who is a student at Chaffey High School, believes her experience at Chaffey has been very rewarding.

"My husband and children encouraged me to go back to school. But I bet my husband wishes he never had," she joked. "I bet he is tired of washing his own dishes."

Gold Hill News

Shoestring newspaper to give readers mixed fare

GOLD HILL, Nev. (AP) — Harassed newsmen on big city papers often dream of starting a newspaper in some rural hamlet. It's tough but not impossible to do, according to the publisher of the newly revived Gold Hill News.

David Toll says that after more than two years of barely scraping by he is still in business, with subscriptions for the colorful weekly inching upward — and he's only $88 in the red.

Along the way, the paper has picked up more than a dozen Nevada State Press Association awards for community service, columns, photography and other features.

Toll, a journalism school dropout, says the "News" started as a daily in 1863 during the famed Comstock Lode mining boom. Printing stopped in 1882.

Toll revived the paper as a bimonthly in 1974, apologizing for the lengthy delay. The paper, which combines straight reporting with whimsical yarn-spinning, was a quick hit in this area, which had been without any paper for more than a year.

But the total population of Gold Hill and nearby Virginia City, Silver City and Dayton — the paper's main markets — is less than 1,300. Gold Hill is the smallest, with 37 residents.

Toll has tried with some success to broaden circulation and increase revenues. About 2,000 copies are now sold weekly. Even so, the paper went into forced hibernation last winter. Printing on a weekly basis resumed last June.

Toll thinks he can keep printing this winter. But the $10 yearly subscriptions, newsstand sales and advertising revenues still don't quite cover the $700-a-week production cost.

Typical examples of the mixed fare News readers get include a recent edition which carried a straight news story on a miner's death — along with a story which carried the ominous headline, "Tiger Loose." That turned out to be Lois Maxwell's pet cat, named Tiger.

'Shady ladies' stir:

'C'mon good buddy' — prostitution-by-CB

Propositioning by Citizens Band radio isn't new. But CB's popularity with the general public has shown the nontrucker that prostitution may be available in the cab like it is on the curb.

One popular ploy, said James Bigam, chief of detectives for the Medina County Sheriff's Department, is for the hooker to ask a trucker if he wants company. His answer might be a description of his rig and a suggested rendezvous.

In fact, said Bigam, detectives often overhear such prattle between prostitutes and drivers around big truckstops in the county.

Prostitution-by-CB caused a stir recently in the Louisville, Ky., area. A woman calling herself "Shady Lady" told a newspaper reporter she sometimes made $500 a night propositioning truckers over her radio.

She said she would suggest a driver meet her for coffee.

Other women claiming the "Shady Lady" handle began getting calls from truckers looking for a "cup of coffee."

"It ain't funny," said one woman member of a CB club in the Louisville area. "Not every 'Shady Lady' is a shady lady. I know one 'Shady Lady' who's my friend, and she's certainly not a prostitute.

"I hear on my radio what she's been getting. She's been getting asked if she serves coffee, stuff like that."

Said another woman CB-user: "I thought it was just a way women made contact with men and stuff. After I found out more about it, I discovered that wasn't what Citizens Band radio was intended for."

Bigam, in Ohio, said the propositioning is particularly common on weekends.

"One woman we did arrest but couldn't convict told us off the record that there's good money in it. She said she may do it about four times a night for $25 each time," he said.

"Our biggest problem is that it's hard to control and make arrests," Bigam said. He said the drivers usually aren't willing to testify against the hookers, and anyway, they're on the road when the case comes up in court.

A spokesman for the Federal Communications Commission said the government agency is in a bad spot even though CB calls can be monitored. The prostitute has to make a straightforward proposition for it to hold up in court.

In Louisville, "Shady Lady" told the reporter she is licensed to operate a CB radio, but doesn't use her assigned call numbers.

That's against the law, said an FCC spokesman in Washington, and "Shady Lady" could be fined and lose her license.

"I don't know what they could do," "Shady Lady" said in her interview, "but to catch me they would have to borrow a truck."

'No hope of saving her...'

'Death of Venice' ordained by industry, bureaucracy

LONDON (AP) — "Venice is dying and there is no hope of saving her," two British journalists have asserted in a new book.

The Italian city, founded 15 centuries ago on islands in a lagoon and hailed as the world's most comprehensive work of architectural art, is a doomed victim of industrialization and bureaucratic inertia, the authors said.

Stephen Fay and Phillip Knightley, investigative reporters for London's Sunday Times newspaper, dedicate their book, "The Death of Venice," to their children who, they say, "will be the last to see Venice as we know it."

Fay and Knightley put the blame for the dying city on politicians and industrialists, whom they accuse of doing next to nothing to save it. Their book claims that the people who have done the most for Venice are scientists, art specialists and restorers, engineers, diplomats and thousands of ordinary persons around the world who may never see the city, but who care enough for the universal cultural heritage to give money to "Save Venice" appeals.

Other cities have problems but they are not built on water. Some places in Venice have sunk six inches in the past 17 years and the area of the city covered by tides is three times greater than it was 50 years ago.

The authors, citing the reports of Italian and other engineers, said the prime cause of the subsidence is the extraction of underground fresh water for industry by the expanding mainland port of Marghera, across the lagoon.

In a world of exploding cities, Venice is not. In 1950 there were 184,447 persons living in the historic center. By 1974 the population had fallen to 105,656. The main reason for the exodus is bad housing, damp and decay.

The city was safe in the past because its seaward defenses were maintained. Neglect of the sea walls, combined with a rise in the level of the Adriatic sea, subsidence, dredging for ever bigger ships, the growth of industry and chemical pollution have produced "mile after mile of rotting beauty" along the famous canals.

Although it appears to be built of stone, Venice is 90 per cent brick, faced with stucco. The early Venetians knew that brick is porous, taking in water and carrying it up by capillary action. So they built on wooden piles, about seven feet by eight inches.

Several layers of planks were laid over the piles and bricks on top. One or two courses of stone were inserted in the bricks, to make an effective damp course.

But when flooding occurs, the salt water from the lagoon enters the brick work above the damp course and then rises naturally up as high as 10 to 15 feet.

Salt water would be bad enough but the lagoon is polluted with discharges from Porto Marghera. The brickwork is impregnated with salt and chemicals. It continues to absorb moisture from the humid atmosphere, "turns to pulp, the stucco falls off, the ends of floor timbers and of iron tie rods are exposed to the ravages of the atmosphere — and the building is then well on the way to collapse," the book said.

Powers now helicopter pilot for NBC

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Francis Gary Powers, the U2 pilot convicted of espionage when his spy plane was shot down over the Soviet Union, has joined KNBC-TV as a helicopter pilot and news reporter, NBC officials said Wednesday.

Powers was sentenced to 10 years in 1960 in a sensational trial at the height of the Cold War. The downing of his high-flying CIA plane by a missile led to the breakup of a summit meeting between President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev.

He was released in a prisoner exchange in 1962.

Powers will be pilot-reporter for KNBC's telecopter, which transmits live video reports from the air above news scenes.

MARGARET TRUMAN, ponders great women

Margaret Truman...

...President's daughter wonders why she's interesting

EDITOR'S NOTE: Margaret Truman has just finished her fourth book and she's packing in two or three interviews a day to promote it. They are self-deprecating interviews in which the president's daughter wonders why people think she's interesting.

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Margaret Truman was 21 years old when she moved into the White House.

Today, at 52, she says, "Everything has been uphill since."

She never became the singer she set out to be when her father was president. But she has raised four sons as the wife of a newspaper executive and has just finished her fourth book, "Women of Courage."

In that book, Miss Truman tells the stories of 12 women who in one way or another struggled courageously for a cause or belief. Most are unknowns, like Kate Bernard, who fought for the rights of Indian children in Oklahoma, or Prudence Crandell, who pioneered education for black children in Connecticut, or Elizabeth Blackwell, who became America's first doctor, in 1847.

Elizabeth Blackwell disturbed the status quo, Miss Truman writes, much as Miss Truman herself did when she tried to become a singer. "Could I ... have endured the loneliness and discouragement that Elizabeth Blackwell had to put up with in her struggle? ... I doubt it very much."

Still a rather private person, Mrs. Clifton Daniel is packing in two or three interviews a day as she travels the country to promote the book. Not that she is willing to say a lot about Margaret Truman.

"I don't know why people think I'm interesting," she says.

May one ask for whom Mrs. Daniel voted this November?

"You certainly may not," she answers rather primly but with a laughing glint in her eyes. "But you may remember that I'm a Democrat."

Would she care to compare Independence and Plains?

"I've never been in Plains."

She and her husband, an associate editor of The New York Times, live in a midtown co-op with their four sons, aged 19 to 10. Clifton Daniel recently returned to New York after a stint as the bureau chief of The Times' Washington operation. The welcome home parties, plus the many interviews connected with her book, have made Mrs. Daniel's schedule a bit of a nightmare.

"I'm so frustrated. I've only gotten to Bloomingdale's once," said the woman whose father called her Margie, pronounced with a hard "g."

She is not fond of recounting those years in the White House.

"I practically never think of the White House," says Mrs. Daniel. "I recently drove by it and didn't even look at it."

Besides her music, Mrs. Daniel has acted in summer stock and has written about her White House life (one book, "Harry S. Truman," was a best seller) in the years since her famous dad told off the critic who said she couldn't sing.

She dreads being asked to speculate on what her father would have done on this or that situation, a game she refuses to play.

"I never spoke for him while he was alive. I have no intention of speaking for him now," she says in the simple and direct manner her father would have used.

A slender blonde of medium height, Mrs. Daniel says she is pleased by the growing acclaim her father has received in recent years.

But the thing that pleases her most was the timing.

"I'm very happy he was alive to see it," said Mrs. Daniel, whose father died in 1972. Now she says that she tries to get back to Independence as often as she can to visit her mother, Bess Truman.

Her eldest son, Clifton Daniel Jr., is currently working at CBS, taking a year off from college. The next two sons are in prep schools and the youngest is enrolled in a private school in Manhattan.

"They were conditioned to that early on. I told them anyone's grandfather could have been president. As boys, they were around other children who also had famous grandfathers."

In her new book, Mrs. Daniel writes: "The women I've chosen to write about ... share one transcendent quality. All of them in some way, at some time, acted courageously."

COLISEUM FAREWELL?

Merlin Olsen, right, of the Rams, many times an All Pro defensive tackle in his 15 years with the club, battles Atlanta guard Gregg Kindle in the Rams' 59-0 win Saturday. It may have been the last Coliseum appearance for Olsen, depending on playoff schedule.

Rams pour it on against the Falcons

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — Before a national television audience, the Rams, like USC, appeared headed toward the Rose Bowl (site of the Super Bowl game Jan. 9).

The 59-0 dismantling of Atlanta is not really a true gauge of either team's ability. The Rams probably aren't that good and the Falcons can't be that bad.

But on this particular sunny December Saturday afternoon, Chuck Knox's demolition crew sparkled like a Christmas tree ornament while the visitors were totally inept.

As a team, the Rams rolled up 30 first downs to eight, outgained them 569 total net yards to 81, ran off 73 offensive plays to Atlanta's 48 and averaged 7.8 yards on each offensive play to the Falcons' 1.65.

Offensively and defensively the Rams were awesome. The Falcons never were able to get across the midfield stripe. Their best effort was in the third quarter when they moved from their own 34 to their own 48 where the backup (third string?) quarterback was sacked by Fred Dyer, fumbled and Mike Fanning recovered for the Angelenos.

Their longest "drive" (30 yards) was in the final period when they moved from their own two to their own 32 in six plays. But it ended when Bill Simpson intercepted a Kim McQuilken pass at the Atlanta 41 and returned it to the 13 to set up the sixth Los Angeles touchdown.

Jack Youngblood and Larry Brooks led a superb defense that sacked Falcon signal callers six times (two each by Youngblood and Brooks), forced two fumbles both of which the Rams recovered and recorded their 27th and 29th interceptions (Simpson and Rod Perry) of the season.

Ram defenders now have sacked opposing quarterbacks 40 times.

While the systematic pillaging of the southern defensive forces was going on, the Rams' offense marched up and down the field. The 59 points was the most in 26 years when the Angelenos outscored the Baltimore refugees of the old All-America Conference, 70-27.

Knox used all three of his quarterbacks, three backfields and two offensive lines. But whatever unit was in, the Rams did not keep the ball on the ground and they did not try the clock to sit back and run out.

Starter Pat Haden stayed in the game until the Angelenos had built up a 31-0 lead. James Harris came in with five minutes left in the third quarter and drove the Rams to their seventh TD, 50 yards, in four plays.

After Dryer forced McQuilken to fumble and the Rams took over at the Atlanta 38, Harris tried for a 38-yard TD bomb that was incomplete in the end zone. He tried two more before Rusty Jackson was summoned to punt.

In the fourth quarter, Harris got two more TDs for the Rams including an 80-yard bomb to Dwight Scales.

Bryant scored the seventh Ram TD (from the three) with one minute left in the game.

Did the Rams "run up the score" on the hapless Falcons? Announcer Dick Enberg thought so as he voiced first doubt and then surprise as the score continued to mount.

Knox denied pouring it on, but admitted he wanted all those points.

"We were able to score so many points because we had no crippling penalties and because the offense took advantage of the breaks," the Rams coach told writers.

"We didn't intend to pour it on. We just have audibles which we call when the other team is (red) dogging and our three quarterbacks read those dogs and we executed well.

Over in the Atlanta clubhouse, coach Pat Peppiar said simply, "what can you say. We got badly beaten by a superior football team.

"If they want to run up the score, that's their business. I'm just glad for them that none of their players got hurt when they prolonged the game by their passing."

Whichever view you take, one thing is certain. The Rams didn't just "de-feat" the Falcons. They declawed, de-beaked and de-feathered them.

The southern visitors didn't make their first first down until the last play of the first quarter. Their second didn't come until 8:41 into the second half!

Of 66,547 tickets sold, holders of 9,181 saw fit to do something other than attend the game. Admittedly, it was not the most exciting contest of the season.

Members of the media kept themselves awake theorizing why kicker Tom Dempsey missed two more conversion attempts, his seventh and eighth misses of the season. Also, after two good kickoffs, Dempsey's subsequent efforts were both low and short until late in the first half.

"It has to be the beer," one wag remarked. "After a couple of kicks, it all rushes to his leg. I'll bet you can hear him gurgle as he approaches the ball. It must cause him to list to the starboard resulting in a slice."

When the beefy (6-1, 260 lbs.) Dempsey started to get more distance late in the half, one jokester said, "see, he's sweated some of it out in the warm weather. His leg must be 10 pounds lighter."

Well, ALMOST everybody enjoyed themselves.

Merlin Olsen gets a big ovation

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — It was a great day for the Rams and a very moving one for Merlin Olsen.

The giant defensive tackle, who was probably playing his last game in the Coliseum (unless the Rams get a home playoff site) not only spent the afternoon "moving" opposing offensive lineman. He himself was moved by the crowd.

Watching from the sidelines with most of the other regulars late in the game, Olsen heard the crowd begin chanting, "We want Olsen, We want Olsen."

Although his services weren't needed as the visiting Falcons were in the process of being mauled, 59-0, the coaches relented and sent Olsen back into the game to receive his tribute.

The 50,000 fans left gave him a standng ovation and continued to roar and remain standing for one play. The noise increased as "Oley" left the field.

CBS' Biff Elliot stuck a microphone in Olsen's face and asked him what he thought of the tribute.

"It was great," mumbled Olsen and then the 6-5, 275-pounder broke down and began to cry.

Later, fully composed, he thought he should have done better on his last play.

"I really looked stupid," he said. "It seemed like the whole right side of the Atlanta team was sitting on me."

But he had nothing to regret. Last of the original "fearsome foursome," he had starred for 15 years in the NFL after graduating from Utah State. Deacon Jones, Lamar Lundy and Rosevelt Grier had left long ago.

Olsen Saturday played his 207th game for the Rams, a club record. He has been on the Pro Bowl squad 14 times, every one since joing the NFL. He was All-Pro from 1966-70 and in 1974, the Maxwell Club of Philadelphia named him Pro Player of the Year.

"I'd really love to play another 10-15 years and I'm not kidding," he said. "But I think it would be a shame not to be able to continue doing what I've done so far. It wouldn't be fair to my teammates and it wouldn't be fair to the fans. And I don't know that I could stand to play bad football."

Defensive end Jack Youngblood admitted he was excited by Olsen's ovation. "It's one of the most thrilling things I've seen," he said. "Merlin is just the greatest and they (the fans) know it."

Olsen is co-owner of an automobile business but expects to go into broadcasting where he should excel. A literate, intelligent conversationalist, the switch should be a snap.

But right now he has next week's game in Detroit to finish the season and then the playoffs and, hopefully the Super Bowl Jan. 9 in the Rose Bowl.

"It's ironic," he said. "The first Los Angeles team I played on won only one game and tied another. I'm going out with a champion."

Olsen ALWAYS has been a champion.

There were other happy Rams, too. Lawrence McCutcheon gained 121 yards on 20 carries and scored three touchdowns. He now has 1,144 yards in 282 carries, both club records with one game to go.

Pat Haden completed 13 of 21 passes for 214 yards including a 53-yarder to Ron Jessie and a 60-yarder that should have been a touchdown except that Harold Jackson appeared to lose sight of the ball at about the three-yard line.

"I had great protection," Haden said. "I feel more comfortable out there and the players are gaining confidence in me.

James Harris completed four of nine passes for 130 yards and drove the Rams to three touchdowns. Harris threw an 80-yard "bomb" to Dwight Scales for a TD but probably clinched his third-place spot in the signal corps by throwing two others when he was pressured and shouldn't have tried. One was intercepted and the other was a near interception.

Jessie caught four passes for 112 yards and a TD and nearly scored on a reverse that gained nine yards to Atlanta's one.

"I've got to learn to get one more yard on that play," Jess smiled. And that's the way it is after a laugher.

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Mt. San Antonio College had no trouble improving its season basketball mark to 4-1 on its home court Saturday night, disposing of an outmanned Chaffey squad, 93-53.

The game was never really in doubt after the first two minutes. The only Panther lead of the game was at 4-3 in the early moments. MSAC, subbing frequently, continued to build a lead throughout the game until the 40-point final spread.

In all, 10 Mounties made the scoreboard, and nine of them scored.

The Mountie performance seemed to be an impressive one, since they were playing without the services of star forward Angel Santiago, who is still out with the flu. However, MSAC mentor Gene Victor was less than thrilled with the easy win.

"We still have a long way to go," Victor sighed afterward. "It was nice to get a chance to play a lot of guys, I don't imagine that will happen again this year. But we still are not doing the things we should do.

"Santiago should be able to return to practice on Monday, which will help. But we still have a long way to go."

The Panthers, in losing their sixth straight this year and their 53rd in the last 54 outings, are going to have to struggle for every point and every win this season.

There isn't a lot of height or talent on coach Paul Smith's roster, and only two returning lettermen on the team, center Tony Moran and guard LeRoy Fowler.

Moran played well Saturday night, but at 6-4 he gives away too much height. The sophomore from San Diego's Lincoln High finished with 16 points to lead the Panthers.

Freshman center John Deck, coming off the bench, led MSAC with 18 points. Starters Dick Rockwood (15), Steve Nichols (13) and Earner Mays (12) also hit in double figures.

The only other Panther in twin figures was forward Ken Jackson with 13 markers. Jackson, at 6-1, also led his squad with 10 rebounds.

Several San Antonio League cage products got into the game for both sides. Chino's Jim Love looked impressive at times for the Mounties, as did Ganesha product George Terry.

Former Upland High players David Holgate and David Wendergren got into the scorebook in the late going for the Panthers, while Alta Loma's Roger Gubichuk tossed in eight points in a starting role.

Yet another SAL alumnus, Bruce Daniels of Claremont, added four points to the Panther total in the second half, and looked like he could help Chaffey if he gains further JC experience.

MSAC will have to play much better its next time out, as the Mounties will be traveling to Riverside City College. That game will go at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday night. Chaffey will begin play in the Grossmont Tourney on Thursday vs. College of the Desert at 4:30 p.m.

Redlands loses game and championship

REDLANDS, Calif. (AP) — Rick Szuba and Jan Budai scored second-half touchdowns on short runs following Redlands fumbles Saturday to give Westminster a 20-13 victory and the NAIA Division II football championship.

Budai, who also passed for a touchdown, scored the winning points when he crashed over from the Redlands' three-yard line in the fourth quarter to snap a 13-13 tie. A fumbled punt by the Bulldogs' Rick Godinez at the Redlands' 20 set up the score.

The Titans' other touchdown in the second half came on a one-yard plunge by Szuba after Westminster recovered a Redlands fumble at the Bulldog eight-yard line.

Westminster, of New Wilmington, Pa., finished the season with 11 victories and one loss, while Redlands was 10-2.

The Titans scored first on a 40-yard pass from Budai to Dave Hasson, but Redlands came back to pull within a point in the second quarter on field goals of 34 and 39 yards by Reed Myer.

After Westminster went ahead on Szuba's touchdown, Redlands came back to tie the contest on a 29-yard scoring pass from Steve Bento to Brian Deroo.

Redlands, which finished with a 10-2 record, was paced by Bento, who passed for 195 yards, completing 11 of 22, and Deroo, who grabbed seven passes for 152 yards.

Budai passed for 143 yards, hitting seven of 16, and also carried 24 times for 58 yards. Szuba, with 24 rushes for 84 yards, was the leading runner for the Titans, who also won this championship in 1970.

Saints lose another flip

San Dimas High has been great at winning football games so far this year, but the Saints' coin-flipping form is leaving something to be desired.

The locals lost another coin toss, this time to Antelope Valley, Saturday afternoon at the CIF Office. Loss of the flip means that top-seeded Antelope Valley (11-0-1) won the right to host this coming Friday's 2A semifinal game with the Saints (now 11-1).

The contest has been scheduled for Friday night at 8 p.m. at the Antelope Valley High stadium. The game will mark the third straight CIF playoff tilt on the road for coach Bob Baiz' Saints.

A big 4A semifinal game to be played locally Friday will match Sierra League powers Los Altos and West Covina at Mt. San Antonio College at 8 p.m.

Royal, Broyles step down following game

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Rapid Raymond Clayborn's two 46yard punt returns and Russell Erxleben's three field goals propelled Texas to a 29-12 Southwest Conference victory over Arkansas Saturday night in a double farewell by Texas Coach Darrell Royal and Arkansas' Frank Broyles.

Broyles ended 19 years of coaching with a dramatic pregame announcement that he wanted to concentrate on just being athletic director for the Razorbacks.

It was ironic that Royal and Broyles, two successful and colorful coaches who dominated the SWC for almost two decades, picked the same evening to retire from the sidelines.

Royal, too, will remain as his school's athletic director.

Royal avoided his first losing season as the Longhorns and Razorbacks each finished 5-5-1. Texas was 4-4 in SWC play and Arkansas 3-4-1.

Royal had two national championship teams in his tenure and Broyles one.

With the victory in the 58th meeting of the archrivals, Royal finished with a 14-5 edge over his old golfing buddy— Broyles.

The game seemed almost anticlimactic to the decisions of the two men, both of whom have served as president of the American Football Coaches Association.

Royal was visibly moved before the kickoff, giving the Hook 'Em Horns sign when the band played the Texas alma mater and wiping tears away from his eyes before he donned his headset.

A paltry crowd of 49,341 rattled around in the cavernous 78,000-seat Memorial Stadium to watch the finale between the two coaching legends.

Royal finished his Texas career with a mark of 167-47-5. He was third on the all-time winning list behind Bear Bryant and Woody Hayes.

Broyles had a 139-53-4 ledger at Arkansas.

Claremont runnerup

The Claremont squad (17-1) lost to champion Mira Costa, 13½-9, in the title match at the Claremont Tennis Club.

No. 1 singles player Kathy Claussen won three games and No. 2 Connie Elwell won a pair. The No. 1 doubles team of Karen Claussen and Kathy Brandt also won two games out of three.

'Gades go to JRB

BAKERSFIELD (AP) — Quarterback Steve Denman threw two touchdown passes and Scott Dye tacked on two field goals Saturday night in the Potato Bowl as Bakersfield College downed College of the Sequoias 27-8 and earned the right to play in the Junior Rose Bowl.

The Renegades, 10-1, will face unbeaten Ellsworth Community College of Iowa next Saturday in the Junior Rose Bowl, matching two of the best junior college teams in the nation.

Cards play their best game

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jim Hart threw two touchdown passes, Jim Otis ran for 107 yards, but a beleagured St. Louis defense basked equally in the euphoria of a 24-17 Cardinals victory Saturday over the Baltimore Colts in the National Football League.

"I don't think we've played any better all year long," said 6-foot-5, 250-pound John Zook, a Cards stalwart at defensive end.

"Considering the field position they (Colts) had all day and the kind of offense they have, I know it was," Zook exalted of labors restricting Baltimore to touchdowns in the first and final quarters plus a field goal.

"It had to be one of our better efforts. We needed desparately to win," Coach Don Coryell acknowledged of a St. Louis triumph which kept Cards playoff hopes alive.

"At any time they could have exploded and blown us right off the field," Coryell contended. "It just took some super performances to keep it from happening."

While boosting its record to 9-4, St. Louis moved a half-game ahead of the Washington Redskins, 8-4, in the scramble for a National Conference wild-card berth in NFL playoffs.

Meanwhile, Baltimore, the league's top offensive club, dipped to 10-3 and watched its division lead in the American Conference East shrink to a half-game over the New England Patriots, 9-3.

Colts Coach Ted Marchibroda saluted St. Louis for an explosive start which sent the Cards to a 21-10 lead during the opening 30 minutes.

"But the real story of the game was our turnovers," said Marchibroda, whose team lost four fumbles and suffered a last-minute interception.

"Any time you turn the ball over to a team like St. Louis that often, you can't expect to win," Marchibroda contended. "We just didn't have a good day and they had an exceptional first half."

Capitalizing on a opening kickoff fumble, St. Louis scored in the game's opening four minutes on Hart's five-yard pass to tight end J. V. Cain.

Baltimore rebounded to a 7-7 tie, but the Cards surged to their 21-10 lead on a 41-yard Hart pass to Terry Metcalf and Steve Jones' four-yard touchdown run before intermission.

A 22-yard field goal by Toni Linhart represented Baltimore's additional scoring through the opening half, and the Colts pulled to 21-17 midway through the third quarter on Bert Jones' 30-yard pass to Raymond Chester.

A fumble by Don McCauley thwarted a later Baltimore bid, however, and the Cards converted Jones' bobble in the final period into a 22-yard Jim Bakken field goal in the final three minutes.

The hard-running Otis rambled for 107 yards on 29 carries, Hart completed 13 of 22 passes for 206 yards.

USC loses

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Jordy Hultberg led a balanced Lousiana State scoring attack that came from behind and upended Southern California 87-76

Six LSU players were in double figures, with Hultberg's 20 points the top performance by any of the Tigers.

Southern Cal led 60-52 with just over 11 minutes remaining in the game, but LSU fought back and knotted the score 6262 four minutes later on a three-point play by Hultberg.

Kings break slump

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Marcel Dionne scored one goal and assisted on three others and goalie Rogie Vachon turned back a penalty shot attempt by Detroit in the final period to help Los Angeles snap a 13-game winless streak with a 4-1 National Hockey League victory over the Red Wings Saturday night.

The victory was the first for the Kings since Nov. 3, during which span they struggled to a 1-7-6 record.

With the Kings holding a 2-1 lead with 12:18 left to play, referee Andy Van Hellemond awarded a rare penalty shot to Detroit's Dennis Polonich when the Kings' Frank St. Marseille fell on the puck in the crease.

Polonich skated in on Vachon and fired high over the net from 15 feet away to miss the shot. It was the fifth time in his career that Vachon had turned back a penalty shot attempt.

Dionne, who leads the NHL in assists with 29, set up all of the Kings' goals and then drilled his 14th score of the season with 5:20 left to play on a Los Angeles power play to ensure the victory, Los Angeles' second of the season over the Red Wings.

The Kings scored on a power play early in the first period to take a 1-0 lead on Butch Goring's 11th goal, a rebound past Red Wings goal Ed Giacomin.

Detroit tied it at 1:03 of the second period on Bill Lochead's first goal of the year, a 35-foot slap shot.

The Kings took the lead with 5:15 left in the second period when Gene Carr scored from 30 feet away. They added an insurance tally shortly after Detroit's penalty shot failed in the third period when Dave Schultz scored his fourth goal of the season, with a drive from behind the net that bounced in off the skate of Giacomin.

Leos nip Westmont

La Verne College scored its first cage win of the year in exciting fashion Saturday night in the Supertent, besting Westmont 82-79 in overtime.

Mike Winze came off the bench to toss in five points in the overtime session to spark the Leopards. Winze finished with 18 points, as did Leo center Mike Sharp.

Westmont had a 13-point lead in the game early in the second half but the Leos fought back to tie it at 75-75 in regulation play on Winze's three-point play with 14 seconds left.

La Verne is now 1-4 on the year, as is Westmont. The Leos won't play again until Friday, when they will travel to Point Loma for an 8 p.m. contest.

Scot runners second in CIF 3A

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

Upland High's cross country team rallied halfway through the 3A finals Saturday afternoon at Mt. San Antonio College to notch the runner-up position behind Costa Mesa.

Both Walnut and Alta Loma in quest of the 2A championship in the CIF Cross Country Finals failed to make their title hopes come true.

Claremont's girls' team finished 10th in the 4A Girls division as Bishop captured the title with 52 points. Sue Atencio (27th) 13:35 and Cherry Henry (28th) were the only Claremont girls to finish in the top 40 positions.

The Highlanders were paced by Roger Innes and Mark Trilevsky. Innes' time of 10:25 was 12 seconds better than his qualifying time of 10:37 in the prelims but Darrel Cessor captured the individual title at 9:59.

Innes finished sixth in 3A competition after getting off to a slow start. Trilevsky placed 11th.

Upland ran the first leg of the two-mile race in the third and fourth positions. Halfway through the race, the Upland runners began advancing to the front of the pack. Upland finished with three runners in the top 18 spots (sophomore Gary Borbon was 18th) which earned them the second place finish.

Costa Mesa, which captured the 3A crown, placed first with 39 points. Joe Young and Bill Kolar led Costa Mesa to the title.

Upland's second place finish was the third time that a Bob Loney team has finished second in the CIF finals. Loney also has three championships to his credit.

Alta Loma's Joe Hope finished seventh with a time of 10:29 in the individual battle as the Braves edged Walnut for fourth place in the 2A race. Teammate Randy Brown finished right behind Hope in eighth place. His time was 10:33.

Walnut's crew was well back in the pack as Dave Mendoza was the club's top runner at 10:58. Mendoza placed 22nd while teammate Dave Allen was 26th at 11:01. Tim Ball's 11:04 time earned him the 28th spot in the race.

Tech shares crown

By The Associated Press

Texas Tech's eighth-ranked Raiders captured a share of the Southwest Conference championship, Akron and Montana State entered the NCAA Division II title game, and St. John's of Minnesota won the Division III crown in college football action Saturday.

Texas Tech raised its record to 10-1 with a 24-21 triumph over Baylor on two touchdowns by quarterback Rodney Allison, who also directed the winning scoring drive late in the game. Allison sped 77 yards for a score on Tech's first play from scrimmage and sneaked one yard for another first-period tally.

Baylor rallied for a tie on a two-yard touchdown by tailback Gary Blair, who collected 199 rushing yards in the contest, and a 50-yard pass from Sammy Bickham to Tommy Davidson. Brian Hall gave Tech a 17-14 lead with a 40-yard field goal, but Blair's one-yard scoring run forced Allison to guide the winning 89-yard drive capped by Larry Isaac's five-yard touchdown run.

Cotton Bowl-bound Houston, which already had clinched at least a tie for the SWC championship, rallied to beat Miami 21-16 as quarterback Danny Davis ran for four-and 25-yard touchdowns. Davis had thrown three interceptions and lost a fumble in the first half for the sixth-ranked Cougars.

Akron scored a dramatic 29-26 triumph over defending champion Northern Michigan in the Knute Rockne Bowl as quarterback Marty Bezbatchenko squeezed over from the one-yard line in overtime to put the Zips into the Division II title game next week. Akron's Jim Embick had forced the extra session by kicking a 35-yard field goal with one second left in regulation time.

Montana State, Akron's opposition in the Pioneer Bowl next week, bested North Dakota State 10-3 when freshman Butch Damberger caught a touchdown pass and freshman Jeff Muri added a 34-yard field goal at the Grantland Rice Bowl.

A 19-yard field goal by St. John's of Minnesota's Jeff Nirman with one second left canceled a 28-point fourth-quarter rally by Towson State in the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl which determined the Division III crown.

In National Association for Intercollegiate Athletics playoff action, Texas A&I recorded its 38th consecutive victory by thrashing Western State of Colorado, 57-14 in their semifinal playoff. The Javelinas, pursuing an unprecedented third straight NAIA title, will meet Central Arkansas next Saturday in the championship game.

Pearson picked as Driver of the Year

NEW YORK (AP) — David Pearson, who drives race cars with the same elan that Joe DiMaggio once showed center field, edged rival stock car veteran Cale Yarborough for Driver of the Year honors.

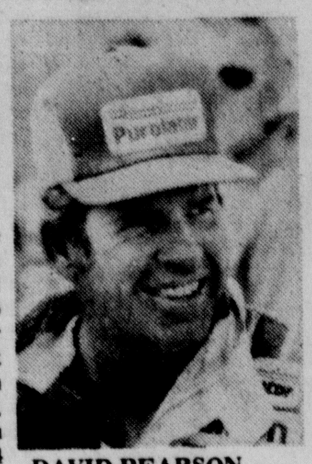
Pearson, a 41-year-old, $1.5 million career prize winner from Spartanburg, S.C., is the first two-time winner of the award based on selections by a panel of U.S. auto racing writers. He first won it in 1973.

Pearson, who will be honored at a luncheon in New York Friday, finished the season with 27 points to 25 for Yarborough. A poor performance in the first quarter of the season probably cost Yarborough, who was narrowly beaten out by Bobby Unser in 1974 balloting, the award.

"It's a great honor," Pearson said in a telephone interview. "Especially considering no one else has ever won it twice."

Pearson won 10 of 22 starts in NASCAR Grand National racing, while Yarborough, the season champion, took nine of 30. Pearson's achievements in 1976 included victories in all of NASCAR racing's premier events, the Daytona 500, World 600 and Southern 500. It was only the second time in history one driver has won all of stock car racing's Triple crown events in a single season.

Pearson said one of his biggest thrills of the season, though, was winning the Grand International class in the 24 Hours of Daytona sports car endurance race with his son Larry.



DAVID PEARSON . . . Driver of the Year

"It was something I hadn't done before," Pearson said.

Pearson hesitated for a moment before picking this year over 1973—11 victories in 22 starts—as his best.

"That was a pretty good one, you know," he advised. "But I'd rather tab this year because there were more superspeedway wins, and Daytona was involved."

Pearson, who has won 36 superspeedway races since teaming with the legendary Wood brothers in 1972, added, "Everything that could have been won that I hadn't won, I won.

"I don't know of anyone that's done anything to top us."

Pearson had high praise for the Woods, who have prepared cars for 61 superspeedway victories and one Indianapolis 500 triumph.

"They've always done what I asked," he said. "If I want to try something, they'll try it. On the other hand, if they want to try something, I'll try it. If it doesn't work, we'll try something else.

"And they work so hard to prepare the car and get you in and out of the pits during a race. If you get behind, you always feel like they can get you back in it with a good pit stop."

"That's what a lot of people think," Pearson said. "But I'd say 75 per cent of it was handling as well as horsepower."

Eddings, Dixon top All-SAL selections

Ganesha High's Floyd Eddings and Garey's Ralph Dixon have been named Players of the Year in San Antonio League football.

Eddings, a 5-foot-11, 170-pound senior running back, was named Offensive Player of the Year and Dixon, a 5-10, 186-pound defensive back, was named the league's top defensive player for 1976.

Dixon led a Viking defense that was the best in the SAL. Garey allowed just 38 points in its six league games and 78 in nine games for the whole season, including a playoff game.

Eddings rushed for over 800 yards this season and scored 64 points in nine games.

Co-champions Damien and Garey dominated the coaches' All-SAL balloting with seven players each on the all-league first team. Third-place Ganesha was next with five first teamers.

Garey placed five players on the All-SAL first team defense, including Dixon, linemen Richard Saville and Eric Gutierrez and linebackers James Moore and Jim Stedronsky.

Damien and Ganesha paced the first team offense with three players each. Damien quarterback Dan Marconi and running backs Leo Burke and Jason Wight were selected, as were Ganesha center Bob Huffman, quarterback Joe Madrigal and Eddings.

Five juniors made the first team: Marconi and teammate Gil Garcia, Chino's Alton Rivera, Montclair's Kent Gurney and Moore.

Chino's Sam Beebe, named to the second team as an offensive linemen, was the only sophomore selected to either the first or second team.

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

There can be no doubt any longer as to the excellent caliber of local AYSO and high school soccer.

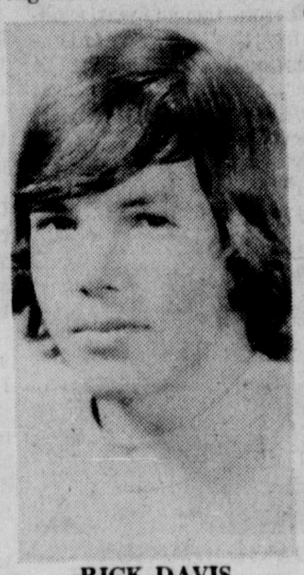
The outstanding nature of valley "round ball" was proven recently when former Damien High star Rick Davis was offered a pro contract by the Tampa Bay Rowdies of the North American Soccer League.

Davis, currently a freshman at the University of Santa Clara, was an all-star performer on the U.S. Junior National team this fall in the CONCACAF Youth Tourney on Puerto Rico.

Davis helped the underdog U.S. squad to a third-place finish in the tourney, as the Americans just missed qualifying for further competition in the Junior World Cup games.

Based largely on his performance in the CONCACAF Tourney, Tampa Bay, the New York Cosmos and the Dallas Tornado all expressed interest in Davis. In fact, Tampa Bay went as far as offering the 17-year old resident of Claremont a pro contract, a remarkable development in light of his age and his lack of college experience.

"Yes, Rick was offered a contract by Tampa Bay," confirmed Rick's mother, Mrs. Richard Davis. "He seriously considered signing with them. It (playing pro soccer) is something he's set his sights on for a long time.



RICK DAVIS

"However, after considering their offer, he decided to go ahead on to school at Santa Clara," Mrs. Davis continued. "He felt it was important to get in a couple years of schooling before playing pro soccer, and he also wanted to keep his amateur status for a while."

Mrs. Davis explained that this year's U.S. Junior National squad was considered the basis for the U.S. Olympic team going to the 1980 Olympics at Moscow.

"He's got a good chance of playing on the first Olympic team ever, and I'm sure that had something to do with his not turning pro. Besides, he feels that the pro offer will still be there once he has graduated from college, as long as he stays healthy," Mrs. Davis said.

Two other former Damien booters, John Evans and Tom Fahey, were also slated to play for Santa Clara this fall but both missed the season due to injuries. Yet another ex-Spartan soccer star, Mike Hunter, played this fall as a freshman on the Bronco J.V. squad.

"Rick is really happy at Santa Clara," Mrs. Davis notes. "I guess the people up there really like their soccer, Rick said it wasn't unusual to have a crowd of 6,000 to 8,000 people at a game on a Saturday afternoon."

Davis started his soccer career as a 9-year-old in the Claremont AYSO program, and was a four-year varsity starter at Damien, where he was also a standout as a football and tennis player in San Antonio League competition.

Apparently he doesn't have to worry about the pro offers vanishing, for since he has been playing for Santa Clara the local San Jose Earthquakes of the NASL have expressed interest in signing him.

It's rather amazing to think that a local product could make it to the professional soccer ranks right out of high school, and no one was more surprised than Rick's parents.

"Dick (Rick's father is a physican in Claremont) and I were very, very surprised when Tampa officials called here and told us about the contract offer," Mrs. Davis recalls. "We just could not believe it. It's something we just never imagined."

The way soccer is growing in the valley, the pro offer to Davis may well be only the first of many extended to local players.

Willie Pep attributes championship to running

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Willie Pep, now 54 and just 10 years past his last fight, does "a little walking" these days to stay in shape. But he says it was running that made him a champion.

Pep does not look like a man who won 229 of 241 professional fights, many of them as featherweight champion of the world. Now 30 pounds over his fighting weight of 127 pounds and a state boxing commission member, he is strong and healthy and presides over his office with wit and grace.

"I could run like heck," Pep says of his 29 years in the ring. As a 15-year-old amateur growing up in Hartford's tough East Side, he says he got a good piece of advice.

"This guy said, 'Did you ever have a cop chase you? Well, run in the ring like a cop is chasing you and don't get caught.'"

With that counsel, he fought more professional bouts than any man living and became the first to win a title without a defeat. Evidence of his speed: he promised a writer he would win a round in a 1946 fight without throwing a punch. All three judges gave the round to Pep.

"The cops never caught me when I was a kid and they never caught me in the ring either. And I'm all right, except when I hear a bell. Then I get a little shaky," he adds with a laugh.

He took the title in 1942 from Chalky Wright at the age of 20 and held it until Sandy Saddler knocked him out in 1948. Pep reclaimed the crown briefly in 1950. Those years included a broken back suffered during a plane crash that doctors said would end his career, but he fought again a month after the cast came off.

"It's a very nice life—when you're on top. But how soon they forget. Fame is fleeting," he says.

Pep adds, "I was very lucky" or "I was very fortunate" on nearly every sentence in describing his strings of 63 and 72 straight victories.

"I got knocked out, but I never took any beatings," he says. "I never got punished for 10 rounds.

Pate, Stockton in 'Cup

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Jerry Pate and Dave Stockton, representing the defending champion United States, face stiff competition for the favorite's role this week in the 48-nation World Cup golf tournament.

Johnny Miller and Lee Trevino won the prestigious trophy for America last year, but, according to the traditional formula for chosing the U.S. representatives, aren't competing this time.

The American team is made up of the current PGA national champion, Stockton, and the current U.S. Open champion, Pate. Stockton broke a slump with the acquisition of his second PGA title this summer while the youthful Pate stormed into the front ranks of the game's great stars with his triumphs in the American and Canadian opens along with a major foreign victory.

"I'm naturally thrilled to be representing the United States," said Pate, a certain winner as rookie of the year.

"It's one of the great honors of golf," said Stockton, who teamed with Trevino for a fourth-place in the 1970 World Cup.

Although they will be competing only for a trophy in this 24th annual event, there's the chance for a shot at golf's biggest prize. Scores are kept on both a team and individual basis. The winner of the International Trophy, the individual competition, automatically qualifies for the 1977 World Series of Golf and its $100,000 first prize.

Among their chief opponents in the 72-hole medal play competition that begins Thursday on the 7,000-yard, par-72 Mission Hills Country Club course are Spain, South Africa, the Republic of China, Japan, Scotland and Ireland.

This will be the first American appearance for Seve Ballesteros of Spain, the 19-year-old sensation of the European tour this season. Ballesteros finished second to Miller in the British Open, won the Lancombe tournament in France, took the Holland Open and a Belgium event. He will be paired with Manuel Pinero, twice the Spanish professional champion.

Bobby Cole and Dale Hayes, American tour regulars and World Cup winners in 1974, represent South Africa. Hsu Sheng-San, the current winner of the Asian Order of Merit, and veteran Kuo Chie-Hsiung form the Chinese team while Takashi Murakami, who has an outstanding World Cup record, and Yoshitaka Yamamota will play for Japan.

Ireland Eamonn D'Arcy and Eddie Polland and Scotland is represented by Sam Torrance and big Brian Barnes, who won two head-to-head matches against Jack Nicklaus in the last Ryder Cup matches.

The traveling tournament is being played in the United States for the third time. In the other two American tournaments, the home team won.

Football king in Oklahoma

By The Associated Press

It has been said that the two dominant religions in Oklahoma are Baptists and football—not necessarily in that order.

And just as good Southern Baptists fully expect to go to Heaven, Oklahoma football fans fully expect their teams to win.

A winning season at the University of Oklahoma means an 11-0 mark in the regular season and a victory in the Orange Bowl.

There were some grumblings this year when Coach Barry Switzer, playing only four seniors on the starting teams, finished 8-2-1 and wound up in the Fiesta Bowl.

Coach Jim Stanley at Oklahoma State almost lost his job after the 1975 season because he "merely" posted his third straight winning season (7-4), the first OSU coach to do so since 1959, but failed to have a first-division finish in the Big Eight.

Stanley's job is secure now. His team has finished the regular season at 8-3 and is a Big Eight co-champion with Oklahoma and Colorado. Both state teams are going to bowl games.

But the cost is high.

In a special report for the November issue, Oklahoma Business magazine took a look at the amounts the two state schools shell out for winning football.

The amounts given to the magazine by the respective schools for football were surprisingly moderate—$1.9 million in fiscal 1975-76 at Oklahoma and $1.6 million for OSU in the same period.

However, both schools admitted the amounts depend upon which figures are listed under which columns. For example, all revenues from Big Eight TV and bowl games are put into the "general" category at OSU.

So it is more accurate to look at the entire sports budget which comes to $5.1 million at Oklahoma and $2.7 million at OSU.

Improved Yanks may be meetings' biggest traders

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Baseball's free agent talent auction is just about over, and with many clubs redesigned by the addition of some expensive new players, trading priorities at this week's baseball meetings will be altered, too.

Among the teams most strengthened in the free agent sweepstakes were the New York Yankees, who came away with two of the biggest free agent jewels, pitcher Don Gullett and outfielder Reggie Jackson.

Originally, the Yankees had been interested in free agent infielder Bobby Grich to plug their perennial shortstop problem. But then they switched priorities to Jackson, and that means they will try to trade for a shortstop at the meetings.

A top candidate could be Toby Harrah of Texas. He's expendable since the Rangers came out of the free agent marketplace with shortstop Bert Campaneris.

With the addition of Gullett and Jackson, the Yankees have pitching and outfielders to spare and could arrange a tidy package of Oscar Gamble and Dock Ellis, for example, to lure a Harrah away from Texas.

The Rangers also have been discussing outfielder Jeff Burroughs with several clubs. Burroughs, the American League's most valuable player in 1975, suffered through an off-season in 1976. Among the teams known to be interested in him are the Atlanta Braves.

World champion Cincinnati now must replace Gullett in its pitching rotation and may decide that it is time to unload 34-year-old first baseman Tony Perez. The Reds have Dan Driessen available as an immediate replacement for Perez and could be convinced to part with Perez for the right pitcher.

Detroit, shut out in the free agent market, is looking for a second baseman. Pittsburgh, which also came up empty in the player auction, needs a third baseman to replace departed Richie Hebner and a catcher after surrendering Manny Sanguillen to Oakland as part of the price for new Manager Chuck Tanner.

The A's, of course, are expected to be active in the player marketplace by necessity. The free agent escape hatch cost Oakland owner Charles O. Finley six regulars—shortstop Campaneris, third baseman Sal Bando, outfielders Don Baylor and Joe Rudi, catcher Gene Tenace and reliever Rollie Fingers.

Houston, which dealt pitcher Larry Dierker to St. Louis for catcher Joe Ferguson last month, is looking for some outfield punch, but the Astros have plenty of company. Most teams are on the hunt for hitters to juice up their attacks.

The meetings begin Monday with the annual draft of minor league players. The draft offers some familiar names but seldom is a major source of player talent. Among the eligibles are former major leaguers Wayne Granger, Milt Wilcox, Geoff Zahn, Oscar Zamora, Tom Hilgendorf, Fred Beene, and Eddie Watt. Each carries a purchase price of $25,000, paltry by today's free agent standards.

Garey seeks another title

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Garey High coach Mike Wells has won four San Antonio League basketball titles and a CIF 3A championship in his five years at the school, and doesn't plan to alter his course now.

"I'm looking for another league championship and so are our kids," said Wells, who was disappointed with his squad's 72-60 loss to Muir in Garey's opening game Wednesday.

"We've got a lot of improving to do but by the time league rolls around we'll be in there," Wells said. "We're in three good tournaments (Upland-Montclair, Banning and Orange) so we'll get better."

Wells has four players back from last year's varsity team, including 6-foot-7 center James Lofton, an all-league and all-valley selection as a junior last year, when Garey posted a 20-8 record.

But the player he's highest on at this point is Herbi Banks, who assumed a starting role midway through last season's league schedule.

"He's really improved," said Wells. "I think that he and Bill Duffy (of Damien) and James Verdon (of Ganesha) will be the best three players in the league. Herbi had a bad game against Muir (12 points) but he scored 48 in one of our scrimmages and 35 in the other."

Banks, the team captain, played a forward spot last year but has moved to guard for this campaign. At 6-3½, he's a good rebounder even from the guard spot.

Kenneth Ottrix and Craig Snyder, Garey's other two returning varsity players, are starting at the forward positions. Both are 6-3. Chris Davis, a 5-10 playmaker, will be the other guard, but he injured an ankle in the Muir game and may miss the Upland-Montclair Tournament, which starts Tuesday.

Devi Parks, the only junior on the squad, and Robert Nowden are the sixth and seventh men. Both are 6-5. Al Clay, a good shooter, will also see quite a bit of action.

"The one thing we lack this year that we've had in the past is a leader," assessed Wells. "We've had Greg Ballard and Reggie Jordan, and then Billy Evans, and Gary Carpenter and Kent Jordan last year, but we don't really have anyone to take over this year. Once we get a little more leadership and a little more aggressiveness, we'll be all right."

Wells doesn't overlook any team in the league.

"They all seem to play their best against us," he said. "Even if they're 0-7, they'll really play tough because if they beat us, their season's complete."

The team that appears to have the best shot at dethroning the Vikings is Ganesha (18-9 last year), the only squad to interrupt Garey's SAL championship monopoly in the last five years. (The Giants won the title in 1974.)

Coach Gary Fulkerson has the league's most experienced, and potentially most talented, front line in 6-10 junior center George Hawthorne, 6-5 senior forward Les Harris and 6-4 junior forward Verdon, all of whom started last year. Verdon was the only sophomore on the all-league team and the Progress Bulletin's All-Valley team.

James Dowe, Floyd Eddings, Anthony Johnson and Steve Polee are also returning varsity players for the Giants, and Fulkerson expects sophomore Floyd Williams to help a great deal.

"The potential for a great team is there," Fulkerson said, "but our success will depend on the attitude of the team as a whole."

The team with the most returning varsity players is Upland, although 10 of the 14 cagers on Paul Trautwein's roster are juniors.

Trautwein has plenty of size, with 6-7 Brian Patterson, 6-5 Kent Byer and 6-5 Brad Todd, all juniors. Patterson and Byer had varsity experience last year, as did seniors Bob Coughran, Perry Engle and Rich Stout and juniors Steve Davenport, Steve Hanson and John Scheerer.

"Probably most of the teams in the league will have one or two players better than any of ours," admitted Trautwein, "but we'll have more depth than anyone else.

"We were balanced last year, but everybody would get four, five or six points per game. This year we hope to be balanced at around 13, 14 or 15 points per game." Upland was 3-20 last year.

Chino's Bob Elder also has experience on his team, with Joe Pickens, Roger Hairston, Barry Higgins, John Jones and Robert Andazola all back from last year.

But the Cowboys (10-14 last year) are totally lacking in size. Gene Campbell, a junior, is the biggest player on the roster at 6-2½ and 180 pounds.

"We'll have to play good defense to be competitive in the league," said Elder.

Damien coach Bill Roberts has a top major college prospect in Bill Duffy, but it remains to be seen whether his supporting cast will be strong enough for the Spartans to challenge Garey and Ganesha.

Duffy, all-league and all-valley as a junior, is being sought by Notre Dame and other top-notch universities, but he, 6-7 Ralph Paspal and 6-6 Howard Penwitt are the only Spartans with varsity experience.

Ed Carlson will play in the backcourt with Duffy, and Scott Bell, Scott Strohman and Ron Torrance will battle for the third guard spot in a three-guard offense. Damien was 15-10 last year.

Joining Britton on a team composed half of underclassmen 6-6 Kelly Gordien, the SAL record holder in the high jump, 6-3 Kevin Rullman and 5-10 Roger Beebower, Claremont's top JV player last year.

Coach Jack Smith expects his squad's strength to be rebounding, but fears that the Wolfpack may lack scoring punch.

Pomona coach Curtis Donaldson welcomes back Elwyn Fowlkes, William Warren and Louis Cole from last year's varsity team, which was 7-16. Junior Vann Andrews, at 6-5, is the biggest player Donaldson has had in two years.

Seniors Kevin Sanders and David Moore are also expected to help the Red Devils improve on last year's 7-16 record.

Returning varsity players Bruce LaVallee, Scott Arthur and Darrin Pierce are expected to lead Montclair's efforts this season, and coach Lanny Moore is hoping for Todd McGuire, Tom Weaver, Mike D'Agostino and Eddie Salazar to help out. Montclair's record was 4-19 last year.

PGA School: a tough teacher

By PHIL ROCHE
PB Staff Writer

Two Australian sharpshooters, Graham Marsh and Jack Newton, head a class of 372 golfers competing for playing privileges on the 1977 PGA Tour at the Fall Qualifying School starting Thursday in Brownsville, Texas.

At least two area players, Bob Risch of Diamond Bar and Dave Brownlee, are shaping their games for the "toughest test ever."

Marsh, 32, has won tournaments in Australia, Europe and the Far East but has never tried to qualify for the U.S. Tour. Newton, who now lives in London, lost an 18-hole playoff to Tom Watson in the 1975 British Open. He entered the Spring Qualifying School, but failed to get a card.

The competition consists of six rounds, but the big field will be cut to 120 players after the third round Friday. A second cut, to approximately 70, will be made after the fifth round. Following the six-day event, graduates will attend PGA Business School at Rancho Viejo for two and one half days.

Among the young American players who are well known are Curtis Strange, Jay Haas, Keith Fergus and Jack Renner.

Alhambra's Dick Oberdalhoff fired a sensational 68 last Friday at San Dimas Canyon to win the annual James Jones Company tournament "going away." Oberdalhoff, firing the best round of his life according to official scorer Ed Paul, won not only low gross honors but low net as well.

Art Talley of Newport Beach was closest to the pin on No. 10, and Ken Wright registered the fewest putts for the event. Ray Starr hit a boomer of "some 300 yards" on 18 to take long-drive honors.

Zara Cross shot an 84 net to win the women's division. Forty players turned out for the sixth annual tournament.

Thursday's alternating ball event at La Mancha was won by the team of Barbara Kohn and Josie Ochoa. Second in the low gross category were Bonnie Woodrow and Virginia Block.

Low net was won by Lassetta Hieb and Alterta Pace with Doris Allen and Lillian Smith the runnersup.

I talked briefly with friendly Dave Cink at Mountain Meadows recently and he's enthusiastic about the way the course is coming along. Like most area courses, Mountain Meadows had a great turnout the Friday after Thanksgiving, which is rapidly becoming the most popular day of the year for golf.

Cink is anxiously looking forward to the time when the new clubhouse can be built. Bids are expected to be in sometime in December and work on the $372,000 structure should begin in March.

The design is essentially the same as Diamond Bar, a fine building from the standpoint of beauty and practicality.

Kevin Sullivan, a 9 handicapper, fired a net 70 to win the recent individual medal event at Los Serranos, North Course. Other top finishers in the 0-13 bracket were John Dangleis, Lynn Blanton, William Nichols and Jack Burger.

Fred England, a 21 handicapper, shot a 90 for a net 69 to win a $50 gift certificate in the 14 and over group. Other top scorers were Gail Henley, Al Fitzgerald, Fred Shumate and Hal Gallion.

Bruce Poynter (80-7) with a 73 net won the 0-12 division on the South Course. Other high finishers were Melvin Lashley, Bob Ward, Chuck Gillanders and Milan Jablan.

Leo Jensen (88-15) with a 73 net won the 13 and up event. Other leaders were Don Reetz, Robert Bergen, Peter Carter and Robert L. Davis.

Thirty- four -year-old Ray Floyd, Masters champ, has officially entered the tenth annual Andy Williams San Diego Open golf tournament set for Jan. 26-30 at Torrey Pines.

Floyd, a native of North Carolina, was rookie of the year in 1963 and has a total of eight career wins including the 1969 PGA championship.

The gals are going to play for a $50,000 purse on Jan. 14-15 at Mission Hills C.C. in Palm Springs when the third annual Triple Crown sponsored by Colgate is held.

First prize is $15,000 plus a 1977 Chrysler and the Colgate Triple Crown.

The PGA Tour paid off handsomely during 1976 with no less than 24 players hauling home more than $100,000, and four more fellows joined the $1 million career group.

It was a year when Billy Casper finished 59th on the money list, and he won only $47,931.

Lyn Lott, ex-Georgia Bulldog, became the tour's new ironman. He entered 39 tournaments, played 128 rounds and earned $57,358 for his trouble.

Hale Irwin has the longest no-cut streak going. He now has 41 in a row. Jack Nicklaus' streak ended at 105 when he missed the cut by one shot at the World Open.

Don January was the "comeback kid" of the year. He has not missed a cut in his last 40 starts.

Jerry Heard dropped to 79th on the money list with $28,236 is still having serious problems with a slipped disc.

NEW YORK (AP) — Three members of the Ladies Professional Golf Association—Judy Rankin, Donna Young and JoAnne Carner—passed the $100,000 mark in official winnings this season, the first in history to do so.

The LPGA made the announcement Wednesday in releasing the season's final figures. Overall purses were doubled with the ladies playing for $2.4 million this year compared with $1.2 in 1975.

Miss Rankin, winner of the rich Dinah Shore Winners Circle and five other events, led the money list with a record $150,734. She also was named Player of the Year.

Mrs. Young was second with $106,553 and Mrs. Carner third with $103,275. Then followed Jane Blalock, $93,616; Sandra Palmer, $88,417; Patricia Bradley, $84,288; Amy Alcott, $71,122; Jan Stephenson, $64,827; Kathy Whitworth, $62,013, and Chako Higuchi, $57,389.

Angels' home opener is against Seattle Mariners

ANAHEIM — Following a nine-game road trip, the California Angels open their 1977 American League home schedule by hosting the expansion Seattle Mariners at Anaheim Stadium on Friday night, April 15. Game time is 8 p.m.

With the Toronto Blue Jays joining Seattle in baseball's latest expansion, the A.L. now is formed into a pair of seven-team divisions. As a result, the Angels' home schedule is comprised of 45 games against West Division opponents (Chicago, Kansas City, Minnesota, Oakland, Seattle and Texas) and 36 games vs. East Division teams (Baltimore, Boston, Cleveland, Detroit, Milwaukee, New York and Toronto).

Each opponent will play a weekend series at Anaheim and visit the Big A twice during the season.

California's 81-game home schedule features three Sunday doubleheaders against Texas (June 26), Chicago (Sept. 11) and West Division titlist Kansas City (Sept. 25) plus a pair of holiday dates with Oakland on July 4th and Milwaukee on Labor Day, Sept. 5.

California won't meet Kansas City at home until a three-game series, on June 27-29. The last meeting between the two clubs marks the final home series of the year, a four-game set Sept. 23-25.

The well-balanced schedule includes 12 games in April; 11 in May; 15 in June; 15 in July; 13 in August and 15 in September.

Starting times will remain the same as last year with night games beginning at 7:30 p.m. and day games at 1 o'clock. The only exceptions are Opening Night (8 p.m.), July 2 (8:30 p.m.) and July 4 (6 p.m.).

Angels season tickets now are available. In addition, California is offering a special Christmas gift certificate good for six games (including Opening Night) for the price of five. For complete ticket information, fans are invited to call the Angels' ticket office at (714) 634-2000 or (213) 625-1123.

Simpson leads in commercials

By Associated Press

O.J. Simpson on one of his incomparable touchdown dashes, right? Well, not exactly.

You see, Simpson is wearing an expensive suit, not a uniform. He is carrying a suitcase, not a football. And he is working for a car rental firm, not the Buffalo Bills.

Simpson is perhaps the most visible of the well-known modern athletes. Not all of his popularity is due to his heroics on the gridiron, nor to his roles in motion pictures. In fact, Simpson is seen more often in television commercials than he is in National Football League action.

Many professional sportsmen are being featured in advertisements for a multitude of products. Just turn on the television set or open a magazine and you're apt to see Alex Karras sponsoring toys, Joe Namath pushing popcorn, Muhammad Ali waxing poetic on the fragrance of a men's cologne, George Blanda selling pickup trucks, Jimmy Connors guzzling a soft-drink, Jack Nicklaus endorsing a credit card, Jo Jo White promoting sneakers, or a batch of football players modeling underwear.

"Having someone who is easily recognizable representing your product is a great asset," says Allan Ford, director of advertising for Faberge, makers of BRUT, a men's fragrance. "We look for men in the news, at the peaks of their careers. Then we lean on a public relations angle.

"For instance, we signed up Jimmy Connors just before he won Wimbledon. When we shot the commercial, Connors was on all the sports pages. Everybody knew who he was when they saw him sponsoring BRUT."

Simpson's advertisements for Hertz have had a profound effect on the company's sales and advertising strategy.

"This is the second year we've used O.J.," says a Hertz spokesman, "and we have had a 36 per cent increase in the number of people rating Hertz as No. 1 in car rental.

"We base our entire advertising campaign on the speed and reliability with which we provide cars for businessmen. Close to 90 per cent of our clients are businessmen.

"To illustrate the theme of speed and reliability, we chose someone who is well known for those traits. O.J. is the first spokesman we have used for the company and he is the basis of our "Superstar in Rent-A-Car" advertising."

What Hertz is attempting to do is equate the best in one field—Simpson the football player—with what it considers the best in another field—Hertz the car renter. Other advertisers are taking a different approach while utilizing athletes in their promotions.

Ideal Toys uses Pittsburgh Steelers defensive tackle Mean Joe Greene to demonstrate the durability of one of its products, a toy truck. In the TV ad, Greene clobbers the toy as if it was an opposing quarterback, but he doesn't dent it. The company figures that consumers will buy the truck for their children, reasoning that not even a hyperactive kid could do more damage to an object than Mean Joe.

"We only use that advertisment in prime time," says Hal Levay, who represents the firm that made the commercial. "The National Association of Broadcasters prohibits us from showing it in the children's programming hours."

The NAB reasons that kids might badger their parents incessantly to buy them a toy promoted by a hero-worshipped athlete. Such a prohibition doesn't matter much to Ideal, however, since it is still the parents who purchase the toys.

"Television advertising has such a significant effect on the sales of our products," notes Levay. "When we used Greene, it was not the first time we've had an athlete represent us.

"What we can't do is use Evel Knievel to advertise his own toys. That is prohibited by the NAB. But we can use a personality like Knievel or Greene to advertise other products by Ideal."

"When we advertise BRUT, we have a particular target area, the 18- to 24-year-olds," says Ford. "We feel it is easiest to convince them of the excellence of our product by using sports celebrities.

'We began making the BRUT commercials in the late 1960s with Mickey Mantle, Willie Mays, Muhammad Ali, the biggest sports stars we could get. There was an attitude in the market at that time that men's fragrance was unmanly.

Christmas is...

Aside from the religious connotation of Christmas, the holiday holds a special magic for children — youngsters of all ages — with the aura of Santa Claus and his gigantic sack of toys.

As in years past, the stores are already crowded with shoppers and the children are leading their elders through a myriad of counters heaped with colorful toys, dolls, games, puzzles, books, cars and trucks.

Care should be taken in selecting toys to make sure they have no sharp edges, are flameproof, and are not stuffed with dangerous materials.

When selecting a toy try for something that holds for children the precious gift of imagination, the kind of toy made for a child's world and a child's unlimited way of thinking.

Breaking with a 45-year tradition of producing toys for preschool children exclusively, one company is introducing 11 toys in a new series specifically designed for youngsters 4 to 9.

Dolls come by all names. There are the traditional Madame Alexander, Barbie and various baby dolls that vie with the soft dolls like Raggedy Ann and Andy, an American classic, Holly Hobbie and the memorable plush, stuffed animals for top spot in the hearts of children.

A child's Christmas gift that is fun as well as educational is rare but many games and books fill the category. One new game, which incorporates the metric system and appeals to children from 6 to 12, qualifies. And, of course, this year, as always, books will find a warm reception under every tree. There are numerous new books on the list along with age-old favorites.

Christmas is a time of sharing, a time of giving, a time of remembering.

At Singer, you'll find all kinds of other gifts at all kinds of prices. From sewing books. To sewing baskets. (Even our quality vacuum cleaners.)

Of course, the best thing about them is the one thing they all have in common: The Singer name. And that's quite a gift all by itself.

VICTORY OR DEATH — The Americans burst into Trenton — it is early Dec. 26, 1776, and the Hessian outpost is surprised and routed amid a raging storm. The password for the attack was "Victory or Death." That about said it all. Washington gambled his army and independence on this bold stroke and he won. Trenton turned the tide of war. The battle took the entire month of December to plan.

EDITOR'S NOTE: "I have never seen Washington so determined as he is now," wrote a staff officer just before the battle of Trenton. It was a do or die battle, in the making all the month of December, and Washington finally won.

By SID MOODY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

December, 1776.

Before sailing for home leave in Britain, Lord Cornwallis warned Rall to "be on your guard against an unexpected attack on Trenton," and von Donop urged Rall to dig redoubts at the city's approaches.

Grant scoffed. He assured Rall that the Americans "are in fact almost naked, dying of cold, without blankets and very ill supplied with provisions. I could hardly believe that Washington would venture at this season of the year to pass the Delaware . . ."

And if he did?

"Fudge!" snorted Rall. "These country clowns cannot whip us."

On Christmas day, Rall posted a few pickets and went to the home of a local Tory to celebrate with some of his officers.

That evening a young man from across the river came to the house and asked to see Rall. A servant said the colonel could not be disturbed. The young man left a note. The next day the note was found in Rall's pocket, apparently unread. It mattered not. Rall was dead.

As Christmas and Grant's Hessians approached, Philadelphians left that nearby city in droves. Congress evacuated to Baltimore. Richard Stockton of New Jersey, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, even renounced the war and urged Americans to do likewise. His state's assembly disbanded so its members could save themselves.

Washington stood alone.

On leaving, Congress had voted the general "full power to order and direct all things relative to the department and to the operation of war." He was virtually military dictator.

But of what? Half his men were unfit for duty. Dysentery was epidemic. Many of the men had jaundice or venereal disease. There was a new ailment called "linen flame," a rash brought on by wet shirts. The men were unshaven and their hair so long they braided it.

Washington offered his men a bounty of $10 each if they would stay with him another six weeks and promised to pawn everything he owned to pay for it out of his own pocket. If they left him when their enlistments were up Jan. 1, he would be down to 1,200 men.

So he scoured the Jersey countryside for wayward rebels. He found Sullivan's wandering army of 2,000, and ordered them to spruce up and march into his dispirited camp with fife and drum. He found Col. William Smallwood, who went off to Maryland and recruited 100 more. He sent an aide to Philadelphia to fetch 5,000 men if he had to pick them off the streets. The aide fetched 100.

Near Princeton lived John Honeyman who ostensibly traded cattle but let it be known he also spied for the British. Actually he spied for Washington. Honeyman had been in Trenton, selling cattle, and noticed there were no redoubts at the head of the town's main thoroughfares, King and Queen streets. He arranged to have himself caught by two American officers as a suspected British spy. He was taken to Washington, and the two talked in private for an hour.

Next, Washington met with his chief lieutenants the night of Dec. 23. They discussed every potentiality and came to a conclusion:

All or nothing Christmas night.

Benjamin Rush had come up from Philadelphia to visit Washington and saw a scrap of paper on which the general had been scribbling drop to the floor. It was the password for the attack. "Victory or Death."

That said it all.

Trenton was a town of about 100 houses, all taken over by Hessians. King and Queen streets ran up from the river, almost converging where they intersected the road from the north. Cannon at the head of King and Queen streets could fire simultaneously down both. Rall might have had a redoubt there, but didn't. Instead, his six guns were at his headquarters halfway down King Street where they were to be used for a ceremony the day after Christmas.

Christmas day:

Instead of returning to their makeshift huts after a late afternoon formation, Washington led his 2,400 men and 18 cannon to McKonkey's Ferry where boats were waiting. All lights were extinguished except the ember boxes for the cannon fuses. Washington ordered any civilian seeing the crossing arrested. About 30 or 40 were.

First across were Virginia riflemen.

Washington crossed in a boat skippered by Capt. William Blackler, a Massachusetts fisherman, with Nathaniel Green, Henry Knox and 20 men. It hardly resembled the scene in Emanuel Leutze's famous painting.

By 11 p.m. snow, sleet and rain began falling heavily. The men plunged into the river to wade ashore and sat huddled on the river bank, their clothing turning to ice.

"It will be a terrible night for the soldiers who have no shoes," a staff officer wrote. "Some of them have tied old rags around their feet, but I have not heard a man complain ...

"I have never seen Washington so determined as he is now. He stands on the bank of the stream wrapped in his cloak, superintending the landing. He is calm and collected but very determined. The storm is changing to sleet and cuts like a knife."

Not until 4 a.m. was everything landed.

At dawn, Washington's column halted at the branch of the road five miles above Trenton. He will take a column down one road; send another column down the other. He had one parting word:

"Soldiers, keep by your officers. For God's sake, keep by your officers."

The two columns parted, arranging to arrive simultaneously at the upper and lower ends of town. A captain inspects the men's weapons and finds the powder wet. Will that change the plans?

"Tell the men to use the bayonet," says Washington. "I am resolved to take Trenton."

At 7:10 a.m., first light,

Ultimate yacht race

'Round-the-world' in one-man boat

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — There are yacht races and there are yacht races. Now someone is organizing what may be the last word in yacht races: 'Round the world in a single-handed boat.

"That, I suppose, is the ultimate boat race," said Bob Lengyel, a swarthy 50-year-old seaman who plans to enter that race in 18 months in a 26-foot, single-masted Dawson-26. It's the same boat Lengyel used in the England-to-America run ealier this year.

"It'll be lonely out there," he said a bit wistfully. "It'll take about seven months, with four stops for rest." Details haven't been worked out, but Lengyel can wait. The sea is his life.

Lengyel, unlike most other skippers who enter such races, is not wealthy. In fact, he's a throwback to another era, a character out of a John Masefield poem or a Joseph Conrad novel.

"I own my boat, the 'Prodigal'," he said, "and all of this," pointing to a weathered canvas bag. "That's it. Everything I own. I don't need more than that, do I?"

Single-handed yacht racing isn't an afternoon lark. Thirty-eight of the 125 boats that started the Observer Singlehanded Trans-Atlantic Race last June 5 withdrew. Two persons died, many were injured.

Lengyel was the last of 73 skippers who finished in under 50 days, and some of the veteran racers said he should never have made it because he raced with almost no sophisticated ocean gear.

"The sea is my life," he said. "I mean, it's like a woman you love but you can't trust. I've been at sea all my life, since I was 16 when I lied about my age and joined the Merchant Marines.

"I love her, but I know she can kill me, Yeah, I know, I'm romantic as hell. But I don't think people today think the same way about the sea as they used to."

He looks the part. His gnarled hands have knots of abuse at the knuckles; his skin is dark and leathery; his beard looks like one that Richard Henry Dana or Ernest Hemingway had in mind; his muscular arms are scarred; and his eyes never seem to focus on anything close.

"I suppose you might say it's like being in love with a punch in the mouth," he said. "I can't explain it, really, but I haven't thought about it in real terms. It's just that today, 1976, people don't have the same romantic images about the sea as they used to.

"I like being alone out there. But it's good to get back to land every now and then, even if I do feel ill at ease."

Lengyel isn't exactly the prototypical seaman with a girl in every port, but he said, "My love life is good. Very good. I know women all around the world and I usually end up having a pretty good time.

"I lived with a woman in San Francisco for a long time — we have three kids. My 17-year-old girl doesn't have much use for the sea, but my two younger ones, a 14-year-old boy and a 10-year-old girl, they can't wait to go sailing at sea."

He never married.

"Next year, I'll enter the Newport to Bermuda race. That's about 630 miles and I think it may be even rougher than the Atlantic crossing. I've heard skippers say it'll break up some boats. I know we'll go through the Bermuda Triangle, but that's no problem. I'm not looking for something supernatural to happen. It's just the sea that'll do it."

So pervasive is his passion that he has crammed his weatherbeaten wallet with bits of paper on which are scrawled sayings, poems, prose and lyrical thoughts dedicated to the sea. Most are old, worn, barely readable. "Here. Here's one you'll like." It's by a man named W.H. Davies:

"I know not why I yearn for thee again;

"To sail once more upon thy fickle flood.

"I'll hear thy waves wash under my death-bed,

"Thy salt is lodged forever in my blood."

"Look, let's face it," he said, eyes still sparkling. "I know I'm not what you might call a productive citizen. I'm not contributing anything to society. I'm not like the eight-to-five guy who wears a suit and drives home in the traffic.

Capt. Thomas Forrest, a Philadelphian, spies a man out early cutting firewood. He asks where the Hessian pickets are and the man points to a lone figure huddled on the ground. "He is asleep," the man says. "I walked by his nose and he never saw me."

The rebels burst into the guard post and scatter the Hessians' arms.

Just after 8 a.m., Washington's two columns charge into the town. The men have kept their rifles dry, wrapping them in oily rags. They get off one round, break into houses, rout out the enemy, reload and fire from the windows. Knox wheels his cannon into place at the head of King and Queen streets.

Young Alexander Hamilton spots some Hessians trying to unlimber the guns in front of Rall's headquarters. He touches off a six-pounder and Sgt. Joseph White charges the cannon. The Hessians run for their lives.

Rall, strapping on his sword, rallies the Hessians streaming from houses and tries to line them up in an orchard. Rall falls, struck by a rifle ball, then another. His men mill in confusion. Washington orders Capt. Thomas Forrest to spray them with cannister, but Forrest turns the wick away from his cannon.

"Sir, they have struck."

"Struck?" says Washington.

"Yes, their colors are down."

Washington looks through his telescope. "So they are."

For our finale about that 1930 match, we have selected a hand that shows one of the improvements we have added to bidding in 45 years of play.

At both tables in that 1930 match South opened one spade. Everyone passed and both Wests opened the jack of hearts.

The play went queen, king, ace and a heart was led right back. West won and shifted to the five of trumps. It went jack-king-ace. Then South led and ruffed a heart.

East and West played carefully from then on, but there was no way to keep South from winning four of his five trumps and his two side aces plus that one ruff in dummy for a total of seven tricks.

Why does this hand show the advantage of modern bidding? Because any modern East would reopen with one notrump after the bidding went one spade-pass-pass. This reopening notrump does not show anything like 16-18 points. With that sort of hand East reopens with a double. Instead it shows a hand just like East held. Maybe a point or two higher — maybe a point or two lower, but something between 10 or 11 and 15 points.

Continuing our answer on revokes, a revoke may be corrected before the offender or his partner plays to the next trick. If a declarer's revoke is corrected an opponent who has played after the revoke may change his play without penalty. If a defender revokes declarer may change his play.

Kent artist rates notice

KENT, Wash. (AP) — When it comes to sculpture, Roland Winbeckler takes the cake. He also takes butter cream and chocolate frosting.

Winbeckler, 30, is among the world's leading cake sculptors. His status was certified last month when he picked up two gold medals at the World Culinary Olympics in Frankfurt, West Germany.

"It's really rare for the judges to award more than one gold medal," Winbeckler said. "I think they especially liked the pound-cake crab and the chocolate paintings."

His fame preceded him. Winbeckler, who never thought about sculpture in any medium until he took a bakery job five years ago, has done hundreds of cakes for groups and personalities around the country.

When the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus ordered a cake for their lion tamer's birthday, it featured a life-size Bengal tiger jumping from the center.

Winbeckler said he's also been asked about doing birthday cakes for entertainers Lucille Ball and Sammy Davis Jr.

But in 1971, Winbeckler was just an unemployed baker who was offered a job at The Fantastic Cake Box bakery here decorating cakes. Customers soon noticed his imaginative work, and he began to think about a career.

Winbeckler, who is married, still spends most of his day at the Cake Box. He said he's glad the bakery has remained community-oriented, despite national attention for his creations.

He'll turn out a specialized sheet cake for $15 and a poundcake bust portrait for $50.

For his sculptures, Winbeckler starts with a scale design. Then he builds a supporting structure. With the cake on its foundation, Winbeckler does his carving, then uses brushes to apply designs and pictures with various colors of frosting.

The most expensive cake he ever made — a $4,000 job for the circus with life-size statues of two midgets who married — was two-thirds pound cake and one-third plywood and styrofoam.

Sutter's Yule party was success

Christmas 1847 was a happy time for Captain John Sutter.

Sutter, known throughout California as a gracious host, decided to have a Christmas party, and invited over two hundred guests, including former Commandante, General Mariano Vallejo.

Christmas Day, people arrived from all parts of the valley — some from as far away as San Francisco.

After dinner, the party danced to the strains of a violin, guitar and piano 'till the sun lengthened the shadows to the peaks of the mighty Sierra. As the Christmas party ended, General Vallejo, impressed by the energetic and industrious Americans, predicted that because of them the future of California would indeed be bright.

Only a month later, his prediction came true . . . for gold was discovered.

Mexican land reform: President Portillo vows economy measures, but balked by peasant property demands

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jose Lopez Portillo became Mexico's new president last week, promising austerity measures to restore confidence in the wobbling economy. But land reform remains one of the nation's biggest problems. Here is a report from an area of Mexico where peasants still demand land and owners refuse to give it up.

By VICENTE MORALES
Associated Press Writer

CULIACAN, Mexico (AP) — Sixty years after a bloody revolution that established land reform in Mexico, hundreds of thousands of peasants still await the small farm plot they hope will lift them from the impoverishment handed down through the generations.

About seven million acres of land have been allotted to peasants since the 1910-17 uprising that brought the Institutional Revolutionary party to power. The party has remained there ever since, with land reform through expropriation a basic part of its policy. Its line of presidents was extended last Wednesday with the inauguration of Jose Lopez Portillo in Mexico City.

He succeeded Luis Echeverria, who on his last day in office gave official titles to 1.1 million acres of land to 32,000 peasants expropriated in various parts of Mexico since the revolution. In addition he ordered the expropriation of 8,668 acres of land to be divided into 60,200 plots for peasants' homes.

Echeverria's land-reform policies came under heavy criticism from conservative elements in Mexico, and Lopez Portillo appeared to soothe them somewhat in his inaugural address. He said that while agrarian reform is basic to the Mexican revolution and his party, there are "real limitations to land distribution."

There is very little good land left, except that which is in private hands, and private land produces most of Mexico's crops.

On Nov. 19 Echeverria expropriated 243,000 acres of farm and ranch land in the neighboring state of Sonora in northwest Mexico and announced the land would be given to 8,000 peasant farm families. Immediately about 200,000 peasants here in Sinaloa state had their hopes raised that their demands for land expropriation would be met before Echeverria left office.

But Echeverria's expropriation moves led to a confrontation between landowners and peasants. The latter threatened to seize privately owned land if the government didn't act by last weekend. Owners vowed to fight if they did. Both sides then agreed to wait until after Lopez Portillo's inauguration.

"Now we have to wait again," said Guadiano Ortiz, a peasant who says he first filed for a land grant 20 years ago. "The bad part is that now no one around here will give me a job."

Thousands have lost hope they might get land. Some have received land so poor they cannot make it pay. All of these work as hired hands in the rich vegetable fields of Sinaloa. Some have found a year-round job, free housing and a future.

But the majority get only two or three months' work and live in conditions as bad or worse than their ancestors long before the Mexican revolution.

Their employers, the land owners, who produce threefourths of Mexico's crops, claim communal farms that produce the other quarter are neither efficient nor productive.

"There is land everywhere, but not everybody can make it produce," said Manuel Couthier, who runs a vegetable farm near Culiacan. He says it is about 650 acres. Mexican law limits individual holdings to about 250 acres. He says he inherited about 120 acres from his father. The rest, he says, is in the names of his children. The eldest is 16. Peasants claim he has 2,500 acres.

"If they take away my land I've got some place to crash," Couthier said. "I won't die of hunger. But what about the people who work for me?"

On a far edge of his land a small group of peasants had moved in with makeshift tents to "invade" his property after the government decided to delay action. But there was no violence and no interruption of the farm work.

"We won't move from here until they give us land or drag us out," said Serafin Junco, leader of the peasant "invaders." "They have been promising us land for five years. But we can't live on promises."

'Cloaked in secrecy'

Carter sluggish filling top jobs

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter's spokesman says his boss is being slower than most incoming presidents, about naming top-level jobholders — but the process is moving with greater speed than meets the eye.

The selection process is not claiming as much attention as it might because most of it is cloaked in secrecy, with Carter and only a handful of close associates privy to the details.

Already, for example, Carter has collected individual dossiers, running 15-20 pages each, on leading candidates for at least half a dozen cabinet-level positions.

"It is certainly true," Press Secretary Jody Powell said, "that we are not making announcements as rapidly as was done in the past."

Powell was quick to attribute this to the care Carter is taking in reaching personnel decisions, and the fact that he attaches extra importance to the process because he is pledged to give his Cabinet greater authority than have most recent chief executives.

Carter presumably won't even come close to resigned President Richard M. Nixon's speed record, which saw Nixon introduce all his Cabinet nominees at a televised extravaganza on Dec. 11, 1968.

In fact, the President-elect said this week he does not anticipate announcing any substantial number of top appointees for another week or two.

President John F. Kennedy named his first Cabinet nominee on Dec. 1, 1960 — Abraham Ribicoff to be secretary of health, education and welfare.

Although Powell told reporters that Carter's "chief concern now is appointments," the president-elect has not confined himself this week to the talent search.

On Wednesday, for example, he spent 5½ hours, relieved only by a coffee break, discussing just about every aspect of the economic outlook with 16 bankers, businessmen and economists. Rarely has an incumbent president spent so much time at one sitting on any topic.

Carter's economic meeting ranged far beyond generalities, moreover, and got into such nuts-and-bolts questions as the timing of economic decisions early next year in relation to the expected availability of key economic statistics.

Another item on the conference agenda: trying to develop the outlines of an anti-inflation strategy with next year's collective bargaining timetable in mind.

Earlier Wednesday, Carter found time to confer with advisers about the perquisites he and his staff will inherit when they move into the White House Jan. 20.

One question being researched by an outside adviser, for example, is whether Carter, who has said he wants to shun many of the trappings of his new office, should abandon the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md.

Nixon made a gesture of that sort when he took office, ordering the sale of the presidential yacht. But once the boat was sold, Nixon took to cruising the Potomac aboard an equally luxurious Navy boat that, in effect, has become the new presidential yacht.

All week long, Carter spent several hours daily on the telephone discussing potential Cabinet nominees, sometimes with the candidates themselves.

As he described the process in a Monday interview, once the list of potential nominees for a particular job has been reduced to four or five, "we go into their background in great depth." At that point, Carter said, "an individual book of 15 to 20 pages" is prepared for him on each individual involved.

The selection process also involves asking those under consideration to name others they regard as qualified for the same job.

Said Carter: "I'm sure at this point the future secretary of state has already been asked who he or she thinks should be secretary of state and has already given me a list of names."

The subject of another special conference here this week was the preliminary drafting of proposals to try to avoid conflicts of interest among leaders of the new administration. Also discussed were ways to discourage all federal workers from using government jobs as a training ground for employment in the private sector that would find them exploiting their government contacts.

Carter advisers are consulting closely with the staffs of some key congressional committees on these topics, and the fruits of the meeting here were carried back to Capitol Hill and to the Carter transition headquarters in Washington for further refinement before the president-elect takes another crack at them.

In his Monday interview, Carter acknowledged for the first time that rivalries have arisen among his own associates — "not too much, but enough," he said.

Carter reported "there have been inevitable differences of opinions" and tough debates among his advisers. But he guessed about 95 per cent have been resolved without requiring him to assume the role of referee.

Perhaps as a result of these rivalries, Carter said he sees "no rush" about assigning post-inaugural jobs to Hamilton Jordan, Stuart Eizenstat and Jack H. Watson, Jr., the transition coordinator who has reportedly been at odds with Jordan.

Carter said Powell was named promptly as the prospective White House press secretary because press relations occupy an important position in the transition period.

Similarly, he said he was in a hurry to name a director of the Office of Management and Budget because of the need to get a quick start on planning whatever amendments he may want to submit to the 1978 fiscal year budget that outgoing President Ford will submit next month.

In campaign to clean up America

Federation seeks effective route

EDITOR'S NOTE: The 3.5 million member National Wildlife Federation recently resigned its membership on the advisory council of the country's biggest anti-litter group, Keep America Beautiful, Inc. NEA asked the Federation to explain why it quit KAB.

By THOMAS KIMBALL

The news that the National Wildlife Federation (NWF) was quitting Keep America Beautiful, Inc. (KAB) must have startled a great many people across the country. Did this mean that the nation's largest conservation organization was not "anti-litter"? Did it mean that the NWF condones the continued desecration of our scenic areas by trash?

No, our withdrawal didn't mean that NWF is abandoning the struggle to clean up and keep America beautiful. We are as dedicated as ever to the goals of KAB.

What it meant was that NWF wants a more effective campaign to eliminate litter and we decided, reluctantly, that such a campaign cannot be led by an organization, such as KAB, which is dominated by the beverage, container, and packaging industries.

For years, we have maintained that the quickest way to cut down on litter in the U.S. would be to cut down on the production of billions of throwaway containers each year. We have argued that the anti-liter campaign, while certainly desirable, attacks only the symptoms of our solid waste problem and ignores the principal cause — the growth of the throwaway ethic in America. The throwaway ethic not only produces a lot of litter but wastes a lot of precious energy.

KAB's slogan reads, "People start pollution, people can stop it." We concur in this, but we feel that the accompanying campaign should not concentrate entirely upon litter. People can also stop pollution by not producing so much trash and by using products that minimize pollution in their production.

In fact, KAB's approach shifts public attention away from this real gut issue, almost condoning the wasteful practices by implying: "Throwaways are okay so long as you dispose of them properly."

Keeping America beautiful should be more than just cleaning up afterward. We think that the public should be urged not to use items that are designed exclusively for the convenience of throwing them away. We think the public should be educated about the costs of wasteful consumption practices.

These costs can be found in the prices of many consumer goods, in our staggering waste disposal bills, and crucially (though this cost is often overlooked) in the depletion of our limited resources.

In an age when we hear constant complaints about increases in the cost of living, we feel the public should be fully aware of the costs of their consumer goods. When a consumer purchases a soft drink in a throwaway can or bottle he is paying for that container. However, when the consumer purchases a beverage in a returnable container, he pays only a deposit for borrowing the container. The deposit is returned when the consumer brings back the container.

How much do consumers waste each year? A recent study by a private consulting firm for the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) projects that a national beverage container deposit law could save consumers $1.8 billion annually.

Currently it costs us an average of $26 per ton to dispose of the trash once it is picked up. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) estimates that this figure will be $50 by 1985. In 1975 we threw away over 150 million tons of this stuff. At the current growth rate, it is estimated that we could have 300 million tons to dispose of by the year 2000.

What about recycling? Despite all of the publicity about recycling in recent years, we are currently recycling a lower percentage of our resources than ever before in our history. While we need to increase our recycling efforts, there is a more urgent need to re-examine our consumption habits. We feel that the most fundamental kind of recycling is to purchase products that can be used over and over again and products that can be produced without unnecessary waste of materials and energy. An obvious form of waste is overpackaging. Packaging activity has grown at an alarming rate in recent years. Between 1963 and 1971, for example, the consumption of food in America increased by a meager 2.3 per cent. In the same period, however, consumption food packaging increased a whopping 46.5 per cent.

In 1971 — the last year for which figures are available — 5 per cent of our total industrial energy — consumption went into packaging. That year packaging accounted for approximately 47 per cent of all paper production, 14 per cent of aluminum production, 75 per cent of glass production, 8 per cent of steel production and about 29 per cent of plastic production.

Chaffey to show carousel figures

The Christmas exhibition at the Wignall Museum-Gallery at Chaffey College, a collection of 25 hand-carved wooden carousel figures, will open with a reception from 2 to 5 this afternoon. Admission is free.

The opening reception will be hosted by the Museum-Gallery Auxiliary which will serve popcorn, cotton candy, and pink lemonade.

The pieces in the exhibit range in dates from the 1880's through the 1920's. Also shown will be work by the Looff Carousel Co., the only carousel makers on the West Coast, located on the Santa Monica Pier.

Not only figures of horses, but an ostrich, pig, rabbit, lion, and other period carvings of the early carousel will be on display, installed to give the feeling of the merry-go-round amid lights and music.

During the opening, and daily at noon and 7 p.m., a color film from the Henry Ford Museum will be shown. The film, entitled "When America Was Young," depicts the restoration of a carousel.

New stage books on yule lists

NEW YORK (AP) — Read all about them. Mary and Josh. Howard and Buck. Chuck and Ruth. Larry and Dick. Earl and the Cab. Noel, of course, and for old times' sake, fierce Edmund.

For theater fans and gift-hunting friends at Yuletime, the array of new books about stage greats this season is brisk, bright and uninhibited.

Most center upon different Broadway celebrities of the present and recent past, but the supporting casts of characters overlap and intermingle. Anyone with enough time and cash can have an intriguing game of cross-checking details from tome to tome.

Top spot in the name-dropping list probably belongs to "Remembered Laughter: The Life of Noel Coward" by his long-time companion Cole Lesley (published by Knopf). Claiming access to letters and other material previously unavailable, Lesley surpasses in intimate detail all the other books that have appeared since the death in 1973 of the elegant, eloquent entertainer.

Highly rewarding also are autobiographies by two grand dames of Broadaay fame.

In "My Side" (Harper & Row), Ruth Gordon — who is 80 but writes with the vivacity of an under-30 — recounts just about every feat, dido and conquest of an acting career that took her from Quincy, Mass., to top rank in the international whirl.

Traveling down memory lane with demure wit and discreet candor, Mary Martin tells plenty in "My Heart Belongs" (Morrow). The girl whom Billy Rose advised to stay in Weatherford, Texas, recalls at 63 all those SRO triumphs that were topped for her with "Peter Pan" — and admits having snubbed many other prime roles.

The man who directed some of the greatest Martin hits, Joshua Logan, has just issued reflections of his own in "Josh: My Up and Down, In and Out Life" (Delacorte). Lusty reading.

The creative team that contributed largely to the fame of Miss Martin, Logan and many others is saluted by Cornelia Otis Skinner, another emient thespian, in "Life With Lindsay and Crouse" (Houghton Mifflin).

Partnerships in show business are rarely serene, but "that was a salient aspect of the remarkable quarter century collaboration of Howard Lindsay, actor, and Russel "Buck" Crouse, journalist, who first teamed for "Anything Goes" and wound up with "Mr. President."

A more typically uneasy partnership, which turned out unforgettable musicals, is the subject of anecdotal recall in "Rodgers & Hart: Bewitched, Bothered and Bedeviled" (Putnam's).

Samuel Marx, a veteran trade reporter, and Jan Clayton, a musical star herself, went on multiple interviews to compile a report more gossipy than the above-listed texts. Richard Rodgers, they declare, gave "half-hearted approval" to their description of how he, a disciplined composer, and his rakish lyricist, Lorenz Hart, wrote 28 musicals, eight movies and 500 songs in 24 years.

Marx and Miss Clayton devote much attention to Hart's homosexuality, a character aspect that his sister-in-law, Dorothy Hart, avoids in "Thou Swell Thou Witty" (Harper & Row). Large in format and lavishly illustrated, the volume has been edited by Mrs. Hart as a chronological melange of laudatory reminiscences by eminent friends along with many of the troubled poet's intricate, perky rhymes.

The homoerotic predilections of another theater great — also concealed until now from public view — are a main topic of "Charles Laughton: An Intimate Biography" (Doubleday). Written by Charles Higham, the book has a preface by Elsa Lanchester justifying revelations now about her late husband.

Raunch highjinks of other order stud "Of Minnie the Moocher & Me" (Crowell). Cab Calloway, in collaboration with Bryant Rollins, tells of the long, hard scramble from the back alleys of Baltimore to showbiz triumph with fierce, comic, earnest gusto.

The bootleg gin era from which the king of "heigh-de-ho" emerged is vividly chronicled in two other recent volumes: "The Body Merchant: the Story of Earl Carroll" (Ward Ritchie) and "The Vaudevillians" (Macmillan).

Ken Murray, who was on hand for a lot of the action, evokes the garish public and private deeds of Carroll, the producer who outdid Ziegfeld with girlie extravaganzas and went to jail.

Murray appears again in "The Vaudevillians" by Bill Smith. A trade journal veteran, Smith compiled the book by going on a countrywide search for comedians, singers, hoofers and acrobats of vaudeville's golden era. Among those who recall are Edgar Bergen, Milton Berle, George Jessel, Rudy Vallee and, far from least, George Burns.

For theater buffs of more historical bent, solemn reading can be had in "Edmund Kean; Fire From Heaven" (Dial). The fiery, fractious tragedian who dominated early 19th century drama has prompted five previous biographies. Raymund FitzSimons calls his book an effort to unravel previous contradictions about his hero's enigmatic private life.

Also in high scholarly vein is "Sartre on Theater" (Pantheon), a synthesis of comments by the famous existentialist about his own major plays, as well as the work of Ionesco, Brecht and Beckett. The documentary assemblage was compiled, edited and annotated by Michel Contat and Michel Rybalka.

There's something for every taste and degree of theatrical interest on the new drama book list.

LEWIS HOMES-GLENDORA, SAN DIMAS

By Lewis Homes

New developments slated for Glendora, San Dimas

Lewis Homes, credited as a major factor in popularizing the Pomona and San Gabriel Valleys as centers of attractive homes, has placed two new residential developments under construction, it was announced.

One of the sites in which the homes are taking form is at Glendora Avenue, one block south of Gladstone Street in Glendora. The other development is at Base Line Road and Walnut Avenue in San Dimas.

"We have started our sales program at this time to provide early bird buyers with the fullest possible choice of lot locations," said Lewis Homes president Richard A. Lewis. He noted that "homes in our company's developments are usually snapped up even before they're completed.

Lewis predicted a quick sellout of the homes, noting that a large number of home seekers camped overnight at the development site to be first in line when sales started last weekend.

Lewis Homes-Glendora prices are from $54,400. The homes are being constructed in single-level and split-level elevations and with floor plans measuring from 1,540 to 2,194 square feet of liveable area plus a two or three-car garage.

Interior refinements being built into some of the homes include powder rooms, sunken living rooms, dressing areas with luminous ceilings and wet bars.

The development site may be reached from the Foothill Freeway (I 210) by turning south at Grand Avenue exit to Gladstone Street, then east (left) to Glendora Avenue and south (right) to the Lewis Homes sales trailer. Another suggested route is via Foothill Boulevard and Alosta Avenue to Glendora Avenue, then south to the site.

A few miles away, Lewis Homes-San Dimas has procedded in its construction to the framing stage at Base Line Road and Walnut Avenue. Here homes with three or four bedrooms, two full baths and two or three-car garages are priced from $43,900.

One of the plans from which buyers may choose at Lewis Homes-San Dimas and which is expected to intrigue viewers is a split-level styling. The home has an unfinished basement that requires only a few wall partitions to divide into enclosed areas for an additional bathroom and recreation room.

Lewis Homes-San Dimas can be reached from Foothill Boulevard by turning south on San Dimas Avenue to Base Line Road, then east (left) on Base Line to the development's sales trailer. An alternate route is via the 210 freeway to the San Dimas Avenue exit, then north to Base Line and east (right) to the homes.

Environmental planning

'Shade' trees draw public

DAVIS — Spreading shade trees and masses of shrubs will do more to encourage the public to use neighborhood parks than will open areas without vegetation.

That is one finding of Seymour M. Gold, associate professor of environmental planning at the University of California at Davis, who recently completed a two-year study of park vegetation and its relationship to user satisfaction.

Gold surveyed visitors to six neighborhood parks in Sacramento to determine how park users respond to different styles of park landscaping.

The study is the first of its kind in the nation and is designed to give park planners scientific data to use in designing landscapes that will bring the greatest enjoyment to park visitors and encourage optimum park use.

Sponsoring the study were the University of California Agricultural Experiment Station in cooperation with the City of Sacramento Recreation and Parks Department and the environmental planning and management research group of UC Davis's department of environmental horticulture.

Gold's research staff selected Sacramento's McKinley, Portal, Tahoe, Curtis, Warren and Henschel Parks for the study. He emphasizes that his findings are applicable around the country.

Researchers interviewed 200 park users for their primary data and collected other materials, including aerial photos of the parks, color slides of landscaping, maps of park vegetation, interviews with maintenance crews and observations of park-use patterns.

Gold explains that the six parks were chosen because they represent three distinct design types ranging from the lushly landscaped to the nearly devoid of vegetation other than grass.

McKinley and Portal Parks, he points out, have many large trees, shrubs and beds of flowers, providing extensive shade and color and a sense of quiet seclusion and contact with nature.

At the other extreme, Henschel and Warren Parks are characterized by open expanses of grass, few trees and little or no shade, resulting in a lack of seclusion and in higher temperatures.

Among the significant findings revealed in the study report are:

—Park users prefer mature shade trees over all other landscape features. Open areas, play apparatus, sports facilities and organized recreational programs are less important to park users.

—Park visitors stay longer, come from greater distances and use parks more often in the parks have a relatively natural landscape character, such as that found in McKinley and Portal Parks.

—People respond in the same positive way to park vegetation, regardless of their age, sex or occupation.

On the basis of these and other findings, Gold's report lists 30 design and management concepts that could contribute to better park planning and management. One suggestion is to plant more trees and shrubs of various varieties for providing more shade and seclusion. Such plantings, he adds, should stress naturalistic qualities rather than straightline, formal design.

He also suggested that parks be less "manicured" in appearance, that irrigation not interfere with daytime park use, that leaves be raked less often, and that citizens be encouraged to participate in the planning and maintenance of neighborhood parks.

Gold termed the study a "pioneer" effort that "could make a major contribution to helping improve the quality of life and the environment in Sacramento." He believes the most important outcome of his findings would be acknowledgment by public officials and citizens that levels of landscape quality can be improved in most parks.

"We are very pleased with the study," says Wisham.

Real estate

Hosted by Hawkins

Visit by Japanese set

Herbert Hawkins Realtors will host 18 Japanese real estate and advertising executives on December 14 for an all-day tour of their Corporate Headquarters in Temple City and several of the firm's franchise offices in Orange County.

This Real Estate Property Distribution Systems Study Seminar has been dispatched to the U.S. by Mitsui Real Estate Company of Tokyo, a subsidiary of Mitsui Big Business Group of Japan, known world-wide for large-scale business activities.

Sponsor of the tour is Jutaku-Shimpo-Sha, Inc., publishers of magazines, text-books and reference books on real estate in Japan. Shohei Fujimaru, publisher, will act as coordinator and interpreter for the tour.

The group will study real estate franchise operations and promotion in California and will be welcomed by Hawkins executives including Herbert Hawkins, president, Earl Jorgensen, Director of Franchise, Jim Papararo, General Sales Manager, and Thelma Schultheis, Administrative Assistant.

Herbert Hawkins Realtors operates both franchise and company-owned sales offices in five Southern California counties, with expansion into Northern California expected in 1977. Administrative offices and warehousing facilities are in Temple City with Regional Headquarters in San Diego, Fountain Valley and Northridge.

Thinking smaller

More and more people are moving away from the country's largest cities, The Conference Board finds. But few are heading back to small towns. Most of the shift is from the largest cities (those over two million) to areas with populations of between 500,000 and two million.

Valley realtors support reform

Copies of the petition for voters to sign are available at the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors office at 665 N. Garey Ave., or the office of any Realtor.

The initiative, if passed by a vote of Californians, would amend the state constitution to limit property tax to one and a half per cent of market value after exemptions. It would remove the costs of social welfare programs and education from the property tax base. And it would increase the residential property homeowners exemption to $20,000 of full value which would be adjusted annually to reflect changes in the cost of living.

The initiative also proposes to require that any increase in pay or expenses of state or local elected officials be approved by the voters.

SOLUTION ON PAGE 41

It is well known throughout the Pomona and San Gabriel Valleys that Lewis-built homes win buyers fast — usually even before the homes are completed. That's because the Lewis Homes trademark has become a symbol of quality in construction and decor. You can expect the same quick sellout in our two new Lewis Homes communities in San Dimas and Glendora, now in construction. We suggest you visit the development sites and select your most preferred lot location right now. Before somebody else speaks up for it first.

Lewis Homes
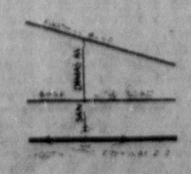
from $43,000

3 & 4 bedrooms, 2 full baths, family room, 2 or 3-car garages.

Foothill Blvd. to San Dimas Ave. South to Base Line Rd. East (left) to sales trailer. Or take Foothill Frwy. (210) to San Dimas Ave. North to Base Line. East (right) to homes. Telephone (to come).



Lewis Homes
Glendora
from $54,400

3 & 4 bedrooms, 2 full baths, family room, 2 & 3-car garages. One and two-story and split level homes, up to 2,194 sq. ft. of liveaole area.

Sales information available at both development sites daily until dusk. More than 8,000 satisfied families now live in Lewis-built single-family homes. You should too.

Weekly Wall Street

Market shaky, sluggish, drops

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 6.07 points lower at 950.55 when it was over. Its wavering up and down during the week reflected the market's indecisiveness about the economy and the new President.

The market's largest move of the week, as measured by the Dow, was the 6.57-point decline on Monday, when investors were anticipating that the government would report that its economic forecasting index declined in October for the third straight month.

"It's a very tentative, transitory kind of market without conviction either way," Wachtel said. "Throw out a news item and the market will appraise it and respond to it."

The market was down again Tuesday, when Sen. Russell Long proposed $30 billion worth of fiscal stimulus for the economy, a level of activity many on Wall Street felt would be inflationary.

The government said factory orders rose .8 per cent in October, and revised the negative September reading to a gain. Factory orders are considered a clue to the capital spending plans of industry.

Further, the Commerce Department's index of leading economic indicators, its forecasting tool, was reported to be flat in October. And bond prices soared, dropping the yields on some key issues below 8 per cent for the first time in years.

But the market was down again Thursday, when Rep. William Moorhead, D-Pa., warned that the steel industry's price hikes could lead to wage and price controls.

Carter dispelled the notion that he would consider controls, except in a national emergency, in an early morning television interview Friday. That reassurance, plus the bond market's continuing rally after a sharp drop in the money supply was reported late Thursday, encouraged the stock market.

London Bridge buyer retiring

NEW YORK(LENS) — C.V. Wood, the American oilman who bought London Bridge for $2.4 million in 1968 and later said he thought he was getting Tower Bridge, has called it quits on real estate. Wood gamely transported the dismantled Thames river structure to a desert in Arizona, where he built a lake for the bridge to go over and a housing development called Lake Havasu city, for it to go to.

Eventually his real estate projects included six others from California to Texas. But now McCulloch Oil, the corporation which he heads, has decided to write off a $59 million loss from real estate ventures and to withdraw from the land development business.

Wood's communities, among the most publicized of the late 1960s and early 1970s, were typical of the extravagance of a boom era marked by overbuilding and underfinancing. When the 1974-75 recession hit, many of the high-flying developers bit the dust. Even today the construction industry is one of the weak spots of the economy. Individual house construction has picked up in the past few months, but the rest of the property business — especially apartments and office buildings — is still depressed.

One problem is financing. Many of the real estate investment trusts that once put forward the capital for such developments are in actual or potential bankruptcy. The banks are still digging out of a backlog of bad real estate loans. Office space is in oversupply in most American cities, especially in New York. The Tishman brothers, who once seemed about to gain a monopoly on office construction in Manhattan before they had to retrench, are now converting from a public corporation to a partnership.

The financial collapse of the real estate developers has brought a shortage of new houses and apartments, especially in fast-growing areas of the country like southern California. Hence the intense bidding to buy the Irvine Company, one of the few land developers left on its feet.

DEAR POLLY — I buy two small hand brushes with handles on the top at one time and keep them near the sink. One is used for cleaning silverware and pots and pans with cleanser and saves my hands and nails. The second brush is for cleaning vegetables. — A.A.

DEAR POLLY — Job seekers who are given one application blank to fill out should ask for two and, by having carbon paper with them, can have a dated duplicate of all applications. Some smart soul may give you a job because you are using your head and showing some initiative. If you should call back and find they have disposed of your original application, they will be impressed when you come up with your duplicate. — VI.

DEAR POLLY — I think the best way to remove gum is to simply spray the article with hair spray, as it "freezes" the gum and it becomes stiff and flaky. It will brush away, leaving no trace off gum or spray. This works on materials, hair, etc. — LAVONNE.

DEAR POLLY — When I read a good joke I clip it out and the next time I am writing to someone I think might enjoy it, I paste the joke at the top of the sheet and feel it will surely bring a smile. — JOANNE.

DEAR POLLY — To keep my recipe file cards clean of cooking splashes, I iron them with a warm iron and waxed paper. This puts a coat of wax on the cards and splashes wipe off with a damp cloth — BARBARA.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

MARGARET MARTIN OF CHARLOTTE, NC, ASKS:

"WHY DO FISH HAVE SCALES?"

MOST FISH ARE COVERED WITH A LAYER OF THIN PLATES CALLED SCALES. THE HARD SCALES HELP PROTECT THE FISH'S SOFT BODY. EACH SCALE IS COVERED WITH A THIN SKIN THAT GIVES OFF A SLIME THAT COVERS THE FISH'S SKIN AND HELPS PREVENT INFECTION. A FISH DOES NOT SHED ITS SCALES. AS THE FISH GROWS, THE SCALES GROW LARGER BY ADDING RINGS OF NEW SCALE MATERIAL.

CELEBRITY
Star Portrait
featuring Jackie Onassis

PRESENTED BY THE AMERICAN ASTROLOGICAL ASSOCIATION
"The Nation's Largest Astrological Society"

Millions of words have been written about Jackie. But you won't really know her until you've read about her horoscope.

By Tom Kennedy

Jackie Onassis, possibly the most famous woman alive today. On July 28, 1929, she entered this world as all of us do, a helpless little baby. But Jackie was not destined to be an ordinary individual. Astrologers examining her natal horoscope clearly agree, her only possible fate would be wealth and fame. Now at age 47 this prediction has become more than true. Let's take a look at her natal chart and see why.

Jackie's Cancer lays in the cusp of her eighth house. This indicates that she will marry a man connected with water. Her first husband, the late President Kennedy, was a PT boat captain in World War II and also enjoyed sailing. And of course her second husband, Aristotle Onassis was a superwealthy shipping magnate.

Her Sagittarian rising sign shows that she prefers foreign countries and people. Her late husband, Aristotle, was Greek. And Jackie is known for her jet-setting image.

Finally, the planets Jupiter and Venus symbolize money. The fact that these two planets fall in her seventh house, the house of partners, indicates that she will have a wealthy husband. John Kennedy and Aristotle were both wealthy.

ASTROLOGY AFFECTS US ALL

Jackie Onassis is not the only person affected by astrology. Because you were born, you yourself have a unique natal horoscope, different from all others. I'll show you what it can mean to you by using celebrities for my examples.

Your Natal Horoscope can help you discover your hidden talents, and give you the confidence to use them. When you think of Marilyn Monroe, you probably picture the standard "dumb blonde" sex symbol. Her horoscope shows that nothing could be farther from the truth. She had the potential to be a tremendous actress and she knew it. Marilyn hated her sex symbol image.

Your horoscope can advance your career and bring you wealth. A comparison of Robert Redford's natal chart to Paul Newman's shows these two stars to be very compatible. In real life, they are very close friends. Their horoscopes also showed that a joint venture would be extremely profitable. BUTCH CASSIDY AND THE SUNDANCE KID and the STING certainly bear this out. On the other hand, the timing of the movie THE GREAT GATSBY and the movement of Robert Redford's planets were in conflict. Box office results were certainly a lot less than expected. If he had checked his horoscope, he could have avoided this disappointment.

Your horoscope can bring you love, romance, and improve your life. Henry Kissinger's horoscope showed that if he was confident enough, women would overlook his appearance. He used his sex appeal and dated some of the most beautiful women in the world. His horoscope predicted his marriage to Nancy Maginnes. What is more amazing, his chart indicated that if he stabilized his life through marriage, he would be more successful in his Middle East negotiations.

Tommy Smothers is an avid believer in Astrology. He compared his horoscope with his future wife's before proposing. He then got married at exactly 11:58 PM, following the exact instructions of his astrologer.

Sometimes a small change can make a big difference. In Telly Savalas' case, he used his head. His Natal Horoscope attributes his charisma to his head. He shaved his head for the movie, THE GREATEST STORY EVER TOLD. His TV stardom in Kojak followed sometime later.

THE TRUTH ABOUT ASTROLOGY

How does your Natal Horoscope work? An astrologer will chart the positions of the sun, moon and eight planets as they appear above your place of birth at your exact time of birth. The placements and angular relationships of these bodies make up your chart. This means that someone born at the exact same time as you, but in a different city, will have a different chart.

The written interpretation and analysis of your natal chart is called your Natal Horoscope. Astrology is not fortune telling and your horoscope does not cause things to happen to you. Your horoscope analyzes your personality, and then tells you what things are most likely to happen to you. But remember, your free will can override events in your life, if you put your mind to it. In Jackie's case, she wisely chose to let fate run its course.

As you've seen from the examples I've given you, some of the most famous people used their horoscope to reach success, but in other instances ignored it and faced failure. There are thousands of different ways to achieve wealth, love, success and happiness.

A good example is Gary Dahl, who made one million dollars in 90 days with his "Pet Rock" craze. Many people considered him odd, but his venture brought him wealth, success and happiness.

Each and everyone of us is good at something no matter how odd one's talents may seem to others. Your horoscope will tell you what you're good at. So why beat your brains out on an area that you're not talented in, when an equal amount of time spent on something you're good at would put you much farther ahead. Not only will you get ahead, but you'll be relaxed and happy while you're doing it.

Your horoscope will give you a comprehensive analysis of your personality. It will point out your strengths and show you how to utilize them. It will also discuss your weaker areas, and allow you to compensate for them.

Because your Natal Horoscope is such a sophisticated analysis of your personality, it will challenge your subconscious mind to seek out your hidden talents. These are the areas where you thought you had talent (writing, ESP, sex appeal, public relations, athletics, etc.) but were afraid to try. If you've been waiting for someone to give you a little push, let your horoscope be that someone. It will give you the confidence to start using your hidden talents.

Summed up, your Natal Horoscope will discuss your personality, love life, career, finances, and health. It will help you understand and accept yourself for what you are. It will then show you where your talents lie and set you on a course of self-improvement, self-fulfillment and true happiness.

As the old saying goes, "You only live once." Will you miss your success opportunities? Will you stumble into pitfalls you could have avoided, like Robert Redford with the GREAT GATSBY? Don't you owe it to yourself and to your loved ones to seize every precious moment of your life and make the best of it. Why not give yourself every advantage with the added edge of your personal Natal Horoscope.

During this special research project, you can get your personal Natal Horoscope for only a copying cost. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process – FREE. And you can use your horoscope for a full year on an absolutely no risk guarantee. The article below will tell you how to order your horoscope. For your own sake, please don't pass up this once in a lifetime opportunity. *

Special Research Project

How to have your Personal Natal Horoscope individually prepared for only a copying cost

By John F. Ford

Send me your exact time and place of birth. I'll cast and analyze your natal horoscope for research purposes. You may have a duplicate copy of your horoscope for only $3.00 to cover the cost to make your copy plus 50¢ postage and handling. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process FREE - because of the fact we must produce your horoscope for research anyhow.

Your natal horoscope will consist of 9 pages and 3,000 words and will provide you all of the following benefits: (Note: This is our new improved horoscope.)

- Your horoscope will help you understand and accept yourself. It will analyze your personality and explain your strengths and talents in detail. It will point out your shortcomings and advise you on how to improve.
- Everyone of us has hidden talents just waiting to be tapped. Your horoscope will discuss your hidden talents (sex appeal, ESP, writing, athletics, public relations, etc.) and show you how to cash in on them.
- Your horoscope will give you a penetrating analysis of your lovelife. Personally tailored advice on how to enjoy a more fulfilling sex life will be offered. You'll be told who you're compatible with and why and shown how to find romance. Once you find it, your horoscope will help you keep it burning hot.
- Your horoscope will instill confidence in you by showing you what you're good at. It will place you in the proper frame of mind to begin a program of all around self-improvement.
- The types of jobs and careers that you are best suited for will be listed. You'll be told which careers will bring you success and happiness and which jobs to avoid.
- Your financial future will be covered. Your attitude towards money and the best ways for you to make money will be discussed.
- Tips on dieting and health may be offered.
- Your marital and family relationships are analyzed with emphasis on getting along with your mate, your children, and your relatives.

There's no need to worry about finding out about unavoidable coming disaster through your chart. As mentioned, astrology deals in potentials. Your free will can override potentials, if you know about them. In any case, the policy of qualified astrologers is positive astrology. If there is something negative in your chart, you are told what you can do to make it positive.

When casting your horoscope we conform to the strictest scientific principles. First the longitude and latitude of your place of birth will be charted down to the tenth of a degree. Finally, your longitude and latitude and exact time of birth will be keypunched into an IBM 370–145 computer, which contains over 24 million bits of authenticated astrological information. You can be sure that your horoscope will not be preprinted like the worthless type found in paperbacks. Your horoscope will carry your name on every page and will be cast from your exact time and place of birth for you and you alone.

A similar horoscope could cost up to $250 if done by an astrologer. But, THERE'S ABSOLUTELY NO CATCH to this offer. I need this information for my astrological research. I'm looking for certain planet configurations from the people who mail in birth information. (People who fit this group can receive extra bonuses by filling out a research questionnaire.)

This research project has appeared in SUNDAY NEWSPAPERS, REDBOOK, McCALLS, WOMAN'S DAY and other publications. The response has been tremendous with over 500,000 people now enjoying their natal horoscopes. But that's what's so frustrating. We may never be able to run this article again. Inflation has pushed our computer, advertising, postage and printing costs almost to the point of no return.

So, we're gathering all the names we possibly can to finish our research project. If you would like to help us with our research and take advantage of this special offer by ordering natal horoscopes for yourself, for your family or your friends, simply do this: Send me the name, address, time, date, month, year and place of birth for each person on a piece of paper along with the $3.00 copying cost and 50¢ postage for each horoscope. (If you don't know your exact time of birth, we will use 12:00 noon.) If you have Mastercharge, BankAmericard, or American Express, you may charge your purchase by sending the following information: A. name of your credit card B. credit card number C. card expiration date.

Mail your orders to the AMERICAN ASTROLOGICAL ASSOCIATION, Research Division, Dept. G–726, 401 Market Ave. N., Canton, Ohio 44750.

Your natal horoscope is covered by a one year – 365 day – full money back guarantee. If you have any questions, call me, John F. Ford, President, the American Astrological Association. Telephone me at (216) 455-1390. To avoid a disappointment, why not order your horoscope right now, before you forget. Thanks.

'GREAT CAR CHASES'

When one thinks of recent detective programs, more often than not the shows are accompanied by a daring, dangerous high-speed car chase. Perhaps the first picture to popularize this automotive action was "Bullitt"; later came the classic pursuit in "The French Connection." Now comes the hilarious, equally exciting street scenes from "Goofy Takes A Holiday," an all-cartoon comedy on "The Wonderful World of Disney, on NBC, Sunday at 7PM.

Just as Steve McQueen in "Bullitt" soared over the streets of San Francisco, and as Gene Hackman raced the subways of New York by car, so too does private detective Johnny Eyeball lend his fearless performance on wheels to the screen. Eyeball is but one of several roles played by that versatile performer, Goofy, as he dreams his way around the world in one funny adventure after another, including a bullfight in Mexico and a tiger hunt in India.

When Eyeball goes on the case to "find Al," he soon find himself modeling the latest in cement overshoes. This and other events lead to a climactic car chase where three different autos pursue each other through all parts of the city. Goofy performs feats of daring that neither McQueen nor Hackman would think of doing. When the chassis of his car becomes separated from the body, the Goof carries the framework and continues the chase on foot until he can reunite himself with the rest of his auto. And if this isn't enough, this daring detective becomes a human bridge between two vehicles by locking his hands and feet into the bumpers of each car. This is no easy task, especially when the cops chase the robbers, and vice versa, across his outstretched body.

The three automobiles speed down the treacherous curves of a steep mountainside, through darkened tunnels and onto city streets. When the trio eventually ends up in a railroad trestle with trains fast approaching from opposite directions, a nifty bit of precarious perching allows the vehicles to escape catastrophe and resume the chase. Even a three-car pileup—vertically, no less—does little to stop the action.

Like most good detectives, the Goof gets his man. After running for his life, "Al" is finally apprehended and brought into custody...to his fiancee who, with the help of Johnny Eyeball, brought her man to marriage.

EMERGING SUPERSTAR AT 86

If fan mail is any indication of an emerging super-star, then Judith Lowry, the feisty, 86-year-old "Mother Dexter" on Phyllis is a prime candidate. "We're certainly impressed by what we've seen," said Ed Weinberger, producer along with Stan Daniels, of the comedy series. "If things keep up, she could well do for our program what The Fonz character has done for Happy Days. She fits in beautifully with our star, Cloris Leachman."

In the same vein, another executive added this insight, "Maybe we'll soon be hearing Judith referred to as 'The Mother'." And this isn't idle talk coming from Weinberger. He's been featuring the tiny, dynamic, white haired Miss Lowry since mid-way through last season. "We originally contracted for Judith on a seven out of 13 show basis for five years," said the producer, "but we've been using her in practically every show. We think she's comedy dynamite."

In keeping with the Mother Dexter emphasis, Weinberger and Daniels have come up with a special two-part story depicting a hilarious courtship and eventual marriage between Mother Dexter and fellow octogenarian, Arthur Lanson, the latter played by 92-year-old Burt Mustin. The two-parter begins with Part I on Monday at 8:30PM. The concluding marriage episode will follow on December 13th.

"They have great faith in my longevity," smiled Judith. "I thought at first I'd be given a few lines here and there but it hasn't worked out that way. They've really put me through my paces and I love it. Over the past few years I've been used on television as a sort of gimmick. Commercial producers wanted me to do oddball things, like rock and roll dances and motorcycle stunts."

"Judith Lowry is a splendid actress," said star Cloris Leachman. "She's dedicated, disciplined and completely professional. Why, there are many times she puts us all to shame with her energy and never failing spirit of cooperation."

Judith puts her longevity down to "sensible" living and a diet of vegetables, cottage cheese and yogurt. "I don't smoke or drink," she said, "and I keep my own diet." She doesn't touch liquor, although a few drops of whiskey is credited with saving her life. "I was a premature child," she said, "and was close to death at birth. My mother told me that for three weeks I was fed drops of whiskey to keep me alive. That was the last time I ever touched the stuff. I've literally never had a drop since."

There's never been a moment in her life when Judith thought of retirement. "I think working keeps you alive," she said. "Once you stop, you're dead. I never want to stop working and sit around sewing or making quilts. And if I ever think that I'm too old for this business, I'll just look over at dear Burt and think, I'm really one of the young ones."

Music & Drama

"America Salutes Richard Rodgers: The Sound of His Music," with hosts Gene Kelly and Henry Winkler—a tribute to the composer whose 1,112 songs and 42 show scores have echoed around the world for 50 years—airs as a two-hour musical special, featuring performances by some of the most distinguished stars of the music world, Thursday at 9PM on CBS. In performances of selections from Rodgers' prodigious work, are guest stars Lena Horne, Peggy Lee, Vic Damone (pictured), Diahann Carroll, Sammy Davis Jr., Sandy Duncan and Florie Leachman. Special guest John Wayne narrates the classic "Victory at Sea" documentary. Included in the two hours of memorable music are numbers from such favorite Rodgers scores as "The Sound of Music," "Carousel," "The King and I," "South Pacific," "Oklahoma," and others, as well as film clips from motion pictures.

"Cat on a Hot Tin Roof"—the new adaptation for television of Tennessee Williams' Pulitzer Prize-winning play starring Laurence Olivier, Natalie Wood, Robert Wagner and Maureen Stapleton—airs on the NBC Monday Night Movie from 9 to 11PM. Ms. Wood portrays Margaret (Maggie the Cat), Wagner is her husband, Brick, and Olivier portrays Big Daddy. The play, set on Big Daddy Pollitt's Mississippi Delta plantation, focuses on the conflicts of his family and reveals the character of its members—from greed and opportunism to compassion and devotion—when most guts out that he is near death.

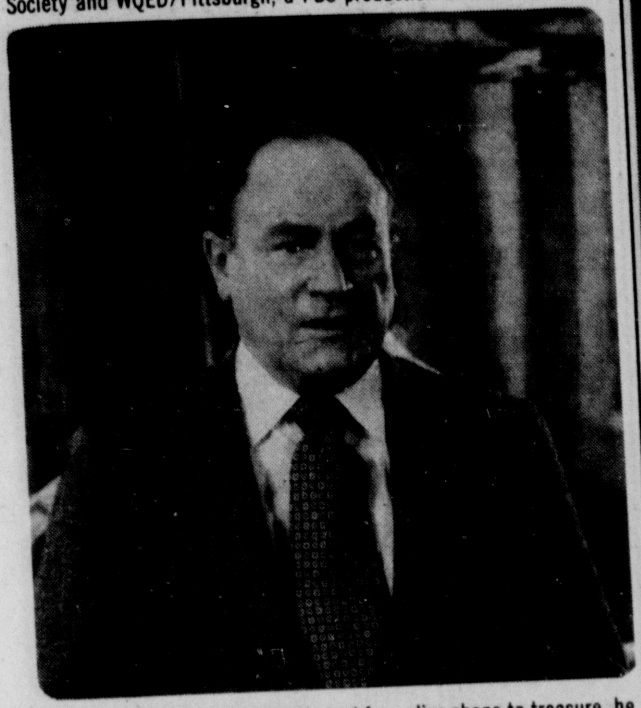
Hurricane winds struck the Florida Keys September 6, 1622, sinking the treasure-laden Spanish galleon "Atocha." Now,three-and-a-half centuries later, an ex-dive shop owner is bringing her millions of dollars in treasure to the surface, piece by precious piece. The story of Mel Fisher's quest for "Atocha" and her lucrative cargo—now worth perhaps $100 million—is the subject of Treasure!, a new National Geographic Special on KCET, Channel 28, Tuesday at 8PM. The hour-long documentary , hosted by E.G. Marshall and narrated by Alexander Scourby, is co-produced by the National Geographic Society and WQED/Pittsburgh, a PBS production center.



When Mel Fisher's interest turned from dive shops to treasure, he became one of the world's foremost treasure hunters. To be a great treasure hunter you also have to be a great optimist, and Fisher's search for the "Atocha" has taken six years. Obsessed by the lure of treasure, Fisher in 1963 staked all he owned on a find. In California, he sold everything and brought his family and crew east to Florida. There he joined a treasure salvage company, and he and his partners agreed to work without pay for a year—or until they found treasure. With rare good fortune, they did indeed make an extraordinary find within the year. "Once you see the ocean bottom carpeted with gold coins, you'll never forget it," Mel says of the experience. The salvors had struck a pocket of gold from Spanish ships wrecked in 1715.

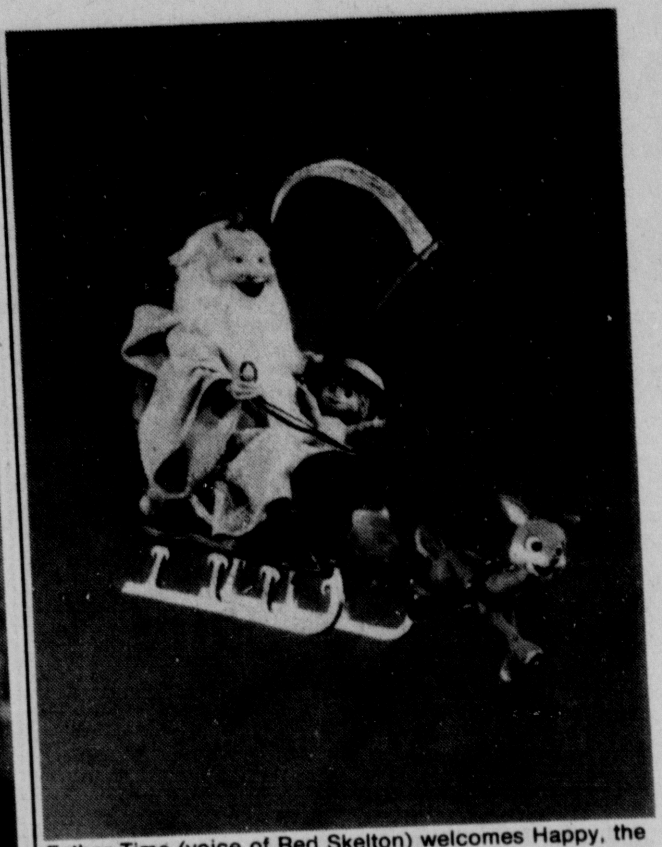
'TREASURE!'

When these shipwrecks began yielding less and less, Fisher turned his attention to the "Atocha," known to have been carrying cargo in immense value. Armed with information gathered in Spanish archives, he moved from Fort Pierce, Florida, to the Florida Keys. After fruitless searching, Fisher received new information from the Spanish archives, and moved his salvage vessels again to an area called the Quicksands, ten miles west of the Marquesas Keys.

Here, his years of tedious search were rewarded. Divers brought to the surface a musket ball, an anchor, three lengths of gold chain, even a flood of silver coins. But although they were interesting, none of these proved Fisher had found "Atocha." Then, on July 4, 1973, Fisher's teenage son and another diver came upon a startling find—a silver bar (looking much like a loaf of bread) and bearing the serial number 4584, weight 125 marks, 3 ounces, or a little more than 63½ pounds. A scale pre-set to 63.6 pounds awaited the salvage vessel "Southwind" as she docked, carrying the precious bar. The crew crowded around as the bar was set upon the scale; the arm wavered, and then settled squarely in the middle. They had found the "Atocha"!

Other finds followed: more gold and silver pieces, personal belongings of "Atocha's" wealthy passengers, and bars of silver and gold. Mel Fisher's oldest son Dirk discovered five of "Atocha's 20 solid bronze cannons.

For Mel Fisher, it seemed the tide had turned.



Father Time (voice of Red Skelton) welcomes Happy, the Baby New Year (in sleigh, right), when the young New Year returns after hiding out because he believed his ears were too big. Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer, joyously pulls the sleigh after a long and arduous search for Happy, in "Rudolph's Shiny New Year," an all new animagic-animated one hour special, airing Friday at 8PM on ABC.

CLOSE-UP

'The Angels'

Three identical $25,000 motor homes drive into the parking facilities of the Flintridge stables. Out of the chauffeur-driven vehicles step Kate Jackson, Farrah Fawcett-Majors and Jaclyn Smith. The Angels have arrived at their latest film location for the shooting of ABC's Charlie's Angels (airing Wednesdays at 10PM).

The three new television stars play the roles of Sabrina Duncan (Kate Jackson), Jill Munroe (Farrah Fawcett-Majors) and Kelly Garrett (Jaclyn Smith).

Starring with them on the show is David Doyle, who plays the humorous role of John Bosley—the cost-conscious aide of Charlie Townsend—who runs the detective agency in the absence of his boss. Each week, Charlie, whose identity is kept secret, phones his instructions in to the Angels while he entertains some pretty damsel. It's Bosley's job to stand by with funds, airline tickets and added information about their latest caper. It is also his job to bail the Angels out if they run into any difficulty.

Other than the unique premise of three female private eyes, the show doesn't appear too startling. However the looks and personalities of its stars have already captured audiences across the nation. According to the A.C. Nielsen's, the show's ratings average between the high fifties and the low sixties for their percentage of the audience for the time period.

The Angels also managed to capture both magazine and newspaper Sunday supplement covers. But success has taken its toll on the private lives of the three girls, and their free time is at a premium.

Kate Jackson, a veteran of The Rookies series for four years, was the first to be set for the new show even before the pilot was written. Executive producers Aaron Spelling and Leonard Goldberg had been looking for a project for their young star for a couple of years. Three angel figurines in Goldberg's office had inspired the premise. Originally called "Harry's Angels," the title was changed as it was too close to Harry O, another ABC series.

Farrah, the darling of the commercials industry, was the second to be cast. She had managed to limit her activities to an occasional guest shot including an appearance on her husband, Lee Major's show, Six Million Dollar Man. She also had made the feature film, "Logan's Run," which was just breaking in Los Angeles, when she began filming her new series. "I don't spend as much time as I want to at home but I try to make my presence known to Lee by doing those little things for him like fixing a special salad for dinner or seeing that there are always fresh flowers around the house," Farrah said.

Jaclyn Smith, like Farrah, is a Houston, Texas-born actress who has been extremely successful in commercials. Jackie started studying ballet at the age of three. She has been doing commercials for the same company that has Farrah under contract. Because her TV credits have been limited, she was the only one of the three girls to be tested and she managed to win the part of Kelly Garrett over several other Hollywood beauties.

'NO OVERNIGHT SUCCESS'

Greg Mullavey has not become an actor overnight. He has been around for a number of years now. He is a good actor and a thorough one. Unfortunately, unless you have a television series, you are not often accorded the notoriety you may deserve.

The second season of Norman Lear's Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman began recently (on KTTV, Channel 11, weeknights at 11PM) with regulars Mullavey, Louise Lasser, Dody Goodman, et al, resuming the excruciating five-show-a-week taping schedule. Greg now has that series and an ever increasing notoriety as Mary's troubled, baseball-capped, hard-drinking, on-again/off-again husband, Tom Hartman. As work got underway for the season, the taping schedule seemed much less hectic, more orderly and controlled, which gave Greg some time to reflect on the show, his character and himself.

Greg feels Norman Lear, Mary Hartman's creator/producer, is an enormous talent and creative genius. Greg was cast for the series after he guested on an All in the Family segment for Lear, in which he portrayed a friend of Mike's, an intellectual chess player. That's part of the reason Greg loves Norman Lear. "He could cast me as a very intellectual chess player, an introverted kind of guy, then turn around and cast me as Tom Hartman."

"Norman gives his actors an enormous amount of freedom to work on their own character," says Greg. "Participation and feedback are essential." Greg believes you have to be commited to something otherwise you cannot fulfill your potential. This is why he became involved in Mary Hartman. Also, he wanted a chance to play opposite gifted Louise Lasser.

'HOW NOT TO WRITE A HIT'

Theatrical history is full of stories about artists who started out to create the hit of the century only to come up with a pretentious flop. But there are two show business giants who assembled a show with all the elements of a dud—and turned it into one of the hits of this or any century. The giants were Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II. The show was "Oklahoma"!

The basic rules of how not to present a musical production are outlined by Gene Kelly in his narrative portrayal of Hammerstein in "America Salutes Richard Rodgers: The Sound of His Music," two-hour musical salute to the famed composer, Thursday at 9PM on CBS. First, open your show with one of your best songs and sing it while the audience is still getting settled.

Eliminate the girls chorus line, and if you must have some dances, put them in long dresses so no one is distracted by shapely legs.

Find a lyricist who hasn't had a hit show in eleven years, a choreographer whose claim to fame is one single ballet and a production company that's ready to go out of business.

Strictly adhered to—and backed by the genius of a Rodgers and a Hammerstein—these rules just might result in a "failure" that could run five years on Broadway, attract SRO audiences for 2,212 performances, tour successfully for over ten years, survive unnumbered revivals in cities and hamlets around the world, be translated and performed in French, Norwegian, Danish and Italian, and finally emerge as a feature motion picture.

A newcomer just might make some of those auspicious mistakes. It took a couple of old pros to make all of them...While laughing all the way to the bank and whistling the score enroute to immortality.

'TOYS FOR PORTERVILLE A LABOR OF LOVE FOR MANY'

KABC-TV's Dr. George Fishbeck once more is inviting everyone to join him in making this a merry Christmas for the patients of Porterville State Hospital by dropping off gifts of toys at any Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream store.

The Baskin-Robbins people are just one link in a heart-warming chain that—over the years—has resulted in countless thousands of toys at Christmas time for the children at the Porterville facility for the mentally-retarded. Hard-working volunteers from REACT (a CB radio public service organization) spend their Christmas season weekends picking up toys from Baskin-Robbins and depositing them in a large van at the ABC Television Center, from where they are finally driven to Porterville in time for Christmas. The van and driver are donated by Mr. Bill Maxwell of Ace Atlas Moving Company of Long Beach.

And this year the Southwestern Novelty Company of Los Angeles has helped kick off the "Toys for Porterville" campaign by donating a "mountain" of toys. Baxter Ward began the "Toys for Porterville" project many years ago when he was anchorman at Channel 7. And Dr. George Fishbeck has carried on the tradition, with the help of a great many people.

But the most important person is you!

The Neff family of Southwestern Novelty Company present a mountain of toys to Dr. George Fishbeck for "Toys for Porterville" campaign kick-off. Surrounding Dr. George are Edith, Joseph and Lon Neff.

REACT volunteers Harry Couch (left) and Ron Hamlet load toys on trailers for delivery to Porterville patients. Hamlet is president of San Gabriel Valley REACT.

'TEN WHO DARED'

Anthony Quinn makes a departure from his usually rugged roles to act as host of "Ten Who Dared," a docu-drama series to be syndicated in January of '77.

It would be easy to imagine Quinn swathing his way through West Africa or the Congo, braving the rigors of the South Pole, or alongside the ten adventurers whose epic journeys into the unknown are portrayed on the BBC-Time-Life series he narrates.

In some 40 years, Quinn has starred in over 140 strong, diverse parts calling for both physical strength and courage as an actor. He's explored roles that would look like Mount Everest to most performers—in "Zorba the Greek," Viva Zapata," "Lust for Life," "The Guns of Navarone," and "La Strada," to name just a few. He also will star in Franco Zeffrrelli's "The Life of Jesus," airing on NBC next spring.

"In real life, I am perhaps ten different people at the same time," says Quinn. "I'm an actor, a sculpter, a painter, a director, a father, a husband, even an architect. I sing. I write books. My own life must be full—full to the maximum. Maybe that's why I'm able to play so many different types of characters in films."

Certainly he's had one of the most versatile careers in all media, including television. He starred briefly in a series, "The Man and the City," toured in "A Streetcar Named Desire" for two years, starred in other theatrical productions, and appeared in such films as "Attilla the Hun," "The Brave Bulls," "The Magnificent Matador," "Ulysses" and "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

At 21, he was given his first small role as a convict in the 1936 film "Paroles for Sale." Even though it was a non-speaking part, his performance was mentioned favorably by the Hollywood trade papers.

"But at the beginning, I had no great ambitions to be an actor," Quinn relates. "I took film parts and did other work only to pay for my studies at an architecture school.

His first big break came when he won a part as a Cheyenne Indian in Cecil B. DeMille's "The Plainsman," and at the same time met the film producer's daughter, Katherine, whom he married Oct. 2, 1937. They had five children and were divorced in 1957. He married again in 1962 and became the father of three more children. He and his wife Iolanda live in Rome.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR BETTY ROLLIN, author of First, You Cry

● The peculiar thing about my surgery is that I felt in perfect health up to the day I had it, and that's exactly how I feel today. I was never prone to viruses or minor ailments, and, thankfully, my record is still unblemished. However, my operation is not the kind of thing one can easily forget; after all, I see the scar twice a day. So I'm sure that for the next couple of years, there'll be a slight concern in the back of my mind. But I can truthfully say the whole ordeal was not as bad as I had expected. Even after surgery, the pain was not agonizing; all I felt were wound aches, something like having a cut. That was the biggest and nicest surprise—knowing one can survive a mastectomy and end up fit and rarin' to go.

FOR PETER FRAMPTON, British rock star

Did you get where you are today through your good looks or talent?—K.M., Jackson, Tenn.

● Wherever I am today I got from serving a long musical apprenticeship. I've lost count of the number of bands I played with. When I started getting popular, I didn't believe it. I thought fans paid more attention to my face than to my music. I became a bit more sure of myself when my first album sold well. I realized that when my record is on the turntable, people are listening to me, not looking at me.

FOR PATRICIA NEAL, actress

You overcame your massive stroke so well years ago. How did you do it? What advice do you have for stroke victims?—Mrs. Leonard Krause, Joliet, Ill.

● Mental rehabilitation should start the first possible moment after brain damage has taken place. I started work on my speech disability 10 days after recovering consciousness. Every day or week lost affects the final result because the patient's recovery decelerates with the passage of time. The first six months are the best, achievement-wise. The next six, results are slower.

FOR JOHN WAYNE, star of The Shootist

When have you been most disillusioned with yourself?—J.H.S., Hollywood, Fla.

● Every April 15—I.R.S. Day—always was, is, and I'm sure always will be a time of disillusionment for me. I've never been as good a manager as I am an earner.

FOR PETE ROZELLE,
Commissioner, National Football League

● The N.F.L. opposes such legalized gambling because we do not believe it to be in the best interests of the game, the players, the coaches or the true fan. When the day comes that a fan is more interested in how many points a team wins by, rather than the fact of whether it wins, pro football will have become no more than a betting vehicle.

FOR SANDRA HARMON, author of A Girl Like Me

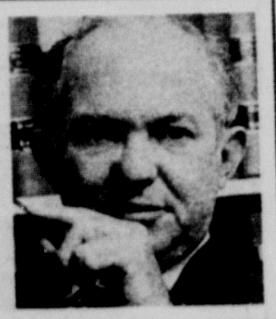
Since you're pretty and smart, I bet you get many compliments. How seriously do you take them?—H.M., Galveston, Texas

● Usually with a pinch of salt, but I must say my first sincere compliment changed my life. I wanted to be a writer and got my first break when I landed a job working for TV's Dick Cavett, where a woman with whom I worked said I "turned out good stuff." I'd never received this kind of professional encouragement before, and it worked wonders.

FOR DINAH SHORE

Your outfits are super. Who designs your clothes?—Mrs. Nancy Schwander, Grand Rapids, Mich.

● My wardrobe consultant, Marianne Ryan. She goes to stores and boutiques and picks things she thinks I'd like and that would look good on me, off the peg.



FOR JAMES KILPATRICK, columnist

Do you and Shana Alexander just naturally disagree about everything or are you assigned to represent a particular viewpoint on TV's "60 Minutes" Counterpoint segment?—Mrs. Jane C. Reynolds, Savannah, Ga.

● Yep, we just naturally, honestly, sincerely and emphatically disagree on almost every major issue that comes along—but we try not to be disagreeable about it.

FOR PAUL ANDERSON, listed in the Guinness Book of World Records as the strongest man in the world

Were you an unusually strong child?—M.N., Colorado Springs, Colo.

● No, quite the reverse. I was a normal kid until I was seven, when I got nephritis, and I remained sickly until age 12. To rebuild my health and get myself in shape for playing football, I became interested in exercise and nutrition. By 14, I was on my way towards a 59-inch chest, a 36-inch thigh and a 23½-inch neck.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

I've a talent for facts and figures, and, while I doubt I can become another Sylvia Porter, I'd like to know whether there's a future for women in finance.—Joan Hirstrom, Washington, D.C.

● These days there's a future for women in everything. Look at Mary Brook, Director of the U.S. Mint. One who'd surely back you up is Myrna Liebowitz, President of the Women's Stockbrokers Assn. She's presently conducting a series of seminars aimed at women—"Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Finance But Were Afraid to Ask." She's kicking off her campaign in the East. Said Myrna: "Women own more than half the total wealth in the U.S. but are not keeping pace with men with regard to finance." She begins her seminars with this tip: "Don't buy stocks on advice from hairdressers, butchers, bakers or cabbies. Most of them are sure losers."

Tar/Taste Theory Exploded.

Taste-science breakthrough gives low tar MERIT the flavor of cigarettes having 60% more tar.

By locating certain flavor-rich ingredients in cigarette smoke, ingredients that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar, researchers at Philip Morris have disproven the theory that cigarette flavor depends on the amount of tar that goes with it.

Tests Verify Taste

In taste tests involving thousands of cigarette smokers like yourself, MERIT was reported to deliver as much—or more—taste than current low tar leaders.

What's really startling is that these brands have up to 60% more tar than MERIT.

A CONSUMER'S GUIDE TO SUCCESSFUL SURGERY

By Dr. Seymour Isenberg and Dr. L. M. Elting

- 2.4 million unnecessary operations were performed in this country in 1974.
- 11,900 of these patients died.
- Cost of this surgery was more than $3.9 billion.

Frightening figures, aren't they? But now you can protect yourself and your family if you remember this advice from Dr. Seymour Isenberg and Dr. L. M. Elting, two osteopathic surgeons whose book helps to eliminate the guesswork from prospective surgery. Isenberg and Elting have worked as a surgical team for close to a decade and have trained and operated at leading hospitals throughout the country.

H. Armstrong Roberts

How To Choose A Surgeon

Choosing a good surgeon is the obvious first step in protecting yourself, but most of us give less thought to this than to the choice of a bathrobe.

It's wisest to begin by consulting your family doctor. Hopefully, you will then be able to start your search with a recommendation you can trust. Remember, too, that once you get home from hospital surgery, you will be in your family doctor's hands.

Should you choose a "name" surgeon? If nothing less than getting the best is all that will satisfy you, that is what you should do. But you may be disappointed.

For one thing, unless the surgeon is around the corner, the operation will probably involve traveling, possibly a great distance. Also, the time and availability of famous men are spread so thin, you may not get to see much of the original. Your care probably will be done via duplicate—another doctor on the staff.

Once you've made the trip to see your surgeon for the first time, here are a couple of considerations you might keep in mind:

Where he went to school won't necessarily have any bearing on his efficiency. Medical schools are no longer graded and broken down into classes. The age of the surgeon is often no indication of experience or knowledge. Whether your surgeon is a member of your race or religion doesn't make him a star in the operating room. (Incidentally, don't be impressed by the number of certificates papering the wall. They're not a definitive indication of high-quality care. Hung high enough, Rotary Club affiliations look equally imposing.)

Your First Visit

It is important, initially, to notice how the surgeon talks to you. Is it in a friendly, relaxed manner or like an interrogation? Do you feel like a criminal or an equal? Is it a rushed situation with the phone constantly ringing and assistants parading in and out? How welcome are your questions? In short, how does the surgeon respond to you?

Next, general questioning may start with routine queries, such as: how long will the bandages stay in place? Will the removal of the stitches hurt? How long will I be in the hospital? How long before I can get out of bed at home? Drive a car? Sit in the sun? Will I bleed easily? Will the wound take long to heal?

How long will I be out of work and will the operation affect what I do for a living? If you're a ditch digger and you have a hernia repair, your convalescent period will be longer than if you are an office worker.

How much will it cost? Get this straight right off. Many patients hesitate to question a doctor about his charges; others feel it's none of their business because their insurance will cover it. Both attitudes are wrong. Unless one surgeon has such an extensive reputation that he can charge what the traffic will bear, the fees of most surgeons in a given area are usually standard for a particular operation. Remember, though, that the surgical fee has nothing to do with the hospital fee. The surgeon's fee also will probably be above what your insurance pays. In some instances, your surgeon may ask that you pay him first and then be reimbursed by your insurance company.

Are you going to do the surgery, doctor? In a teaching hospital, your chosen surgeon may not put a glove on you; he's there as an instructor to the residents. You may not care as long as he's guiding the procedure, but then again, you may. You are paying him, not an underling. In a community hospital you stand a better chance of having the surgeon you choose perform the operation.

Who will assist your surgeon? The first assistant must be a doctor who could take over should something happen to the surgeon. Insist on this. Never should the first assistant be a registered nurse, no matter how capable. In small hospitals, your family doctor may assist. Even if he doesn't, you may want him at the table. He is entitled to bill you for this service.

Where will the incision be? You obviously want the smallest cut possible in the least noticeable area. While the surgeon cannot commit himself to the exact number of inches, he should be able to indicate to what extent you will be carrying his mark. The less cutting, the less chance for an ugly scar.

What kind of healing can I expect to have? Fortunately, most people heal normally and rapidly, and wounds, regardless of their size, mend within a week. But there are individuals who form keloid scars—large, unsightly ones—and there is no way to stop this. You should also let your surgeon know if you have ever had any difficulties in healing, and if you have any other health problems. If you are a diabetic, for instance, this can affect the way you heal.

Who will be responsible for my aftercare? More patients are lost after an operation than in the operating room. You don't want to be one of them. If your surgeon is merely going to perform the operation, you have a right to know beforehand. So even if the surgeon assures you that he will be responsible, find out what—if any—responsibilities are distributed, and to whom. An associate? The resident or intern? The nurses? Your family? While you don't expect the surgeon to hold your hand every postoperative moment, you should expect to see him at least once a day to check you over. You aren't just paying him for the surgery proper.

Getting Another Opinion

The surgeon may tell you he would like another opinion on your case, even though he feels pretty certain about what to do. But if he doesn't, or fails to answer any questions to your satisfaction, tell him you want to check his recommendation for surgery with someone else and ask to whom he can refer you. If you do see a consultant, be sure he gives you his opinion directly, not relayed through your surgeon. Some consultants will spend time with you and, when they are finished, will say, "All right, Mrs. Jones, I've examined you and gone over your reports, and I'll get back to your doctor with my opinion." Forget it. That's not why you went. If you can't get the opinion of a consultant firsthand, you're right back where you started—with only one opinion.

Doomsday revisited. A few years ago, predictions were rife that the world was running out of resources, and that pollution would soon ravage the earth. The doomsayers' solution: put the brakes on economic growth. We've always taken issue with such dire prophecies, believing that orderly economic growth is the path to a higher standard of living for the world's underprivileged. Now, the U.N. has issued a summary report that reinforces our optimism. A three-year study by an international team of economists says man has the resources and the technology to improve human living standards - and, by the end of the century, can even reduce by half the gap between the rich and poor nations. The main limits to rapid and sustained economic growth, the study finds, are political and social restraints on the economy's ability to develop. As Pogo might have put it, the future is really us.

Noah's Ark

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

Gifts from the heart are often those you make with your own hands.

Dick Schnacke, author-craftsman, has not only contributed significantly to the popularity of the "wihimmydiddie" (a wooden-propeller lie detector) and the "flipperdinger" (a breath-control gadget) but is largely responsible for carrying on a tradition of making children's historically authentic playthings. Some are known as "Sunday toys." (His book, American Folk Toys, published by Penguin Books, $3.50, gives detailed drawings and instructions for all kinds of folk toys.)

Just what are Sunday toys? They date back seventy-five to one hundred years. The toys depict famous stories from the Old Testament: Noah's Ark, the Pillars of Solomon and Jacob's Ladder.

These toys evolved from the strict Puritan ethics of America's early settlers, which rigidly determined the day-to-day activities of children, especially how they spent their idle time on the Sabbath.

Religious creed dictated that on the Sabbath, children were to pass their time playing only with toys related to stories from the Bible. This, it was thought, would not only re-enforce youngsters' knowledge and understanding of the Bible but would divert their idle hands from devilish mischief.

The Jacob's Ladder toy is made of thin blocks of wood and ribbonlike pieces of cloth. Through an intricate system of interweaving the ribbons, the toy creates an illusion of a continual flow of flip-flopping blocks. It creates a scene which isn't difficult to relate to the story of Jacob's vision found in Genesis 28:12. The verse describes a dream of a ladder extending from earth to heaven with God's angels ascending and descending.

Another toy with a surprising amount of humorous trickery is the Pillars of Solomon. The idea for the toy comes from 2 Chronicles 3:15-17, in which the pillars at Solomon's Temple are described as being connected by a chain. A trick routing of a rope through the toy allows the owner to convince his friends that magic keeps the rope together after it has been cut.

The Noah's Ark toy has no magic except in its apparent ability to occupy a child's mind for endless hours. Constructed roughly of wood, the ark has a removable roof that, when opened, reveals the animal kingdom. The popularity of the ark even today is exemplified by the fact that the toy greatly resembles a mass-produced item which can be found on the shelves of toy shops.

Schnacke, 57, is a former metallurgist who has been making toys all his life. After deciding to leave his engineering career and plunge into his own business in 1963, he recruited local residents near his home to produce the folk toys. Two years later, he had doubled his prior salary.

Today Schnacke employs 60 craftsmen in mountainous West Va. and ships their output, an assorted line of 116 different folk toys, to more than 500 outlets throughout the United States.

The Sunday toys which he dispenses represent the interesting folklore that is incorporated in all of his homespun items. Stories the toys represent have been handed down from generation to generation.

"There is something so satisfying in preserving the past," says Schnacke, "and doubly so when the skill of your own hands is involved."

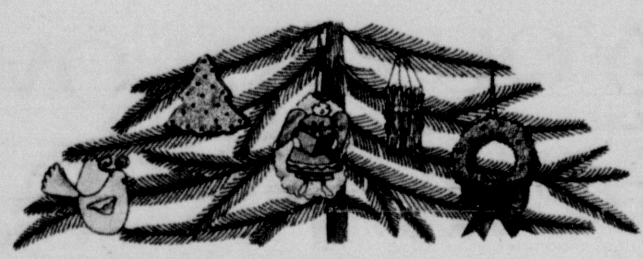
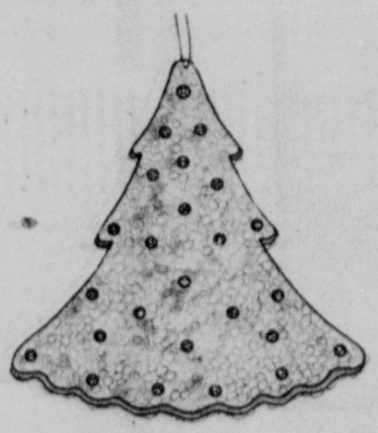
GIFTS TO MAKE

ANYONE CAN MAKE THESE PRETTY TREE ORNAMENTS

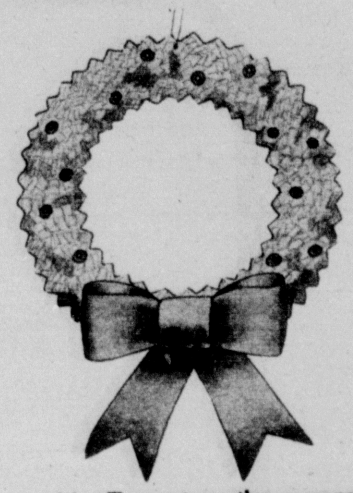


These eye-catching decorations can be made, for the most part, from things you already have around the house.

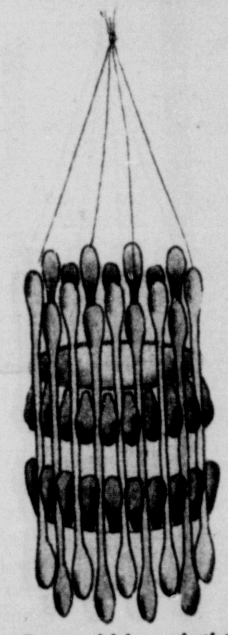
Choir Angel: To make this beguiling figure, you will need some cotton batting, a piece of fabric for the robe, a tiny piece of gold aluminum foil for the wings and a light tone of liquid makeup to paint the face, arms and legs, which are made of cotton swabs. Begin by cutting a piece of the cotton 2" x 5" for your base. The face: a 25¢-size circle of white cardboard. The arms and legs: use cotton swabs, such as Q-tips. Snip off one end of each swab. Paint the white circle face and the swabs with the makeup base. When the arms and legs are moistened with the makeup, gently shape them with your fingers. Let dry. For the robe, cut a 3" piece of fabric, fold at top and glue to cotton batting. Use gold twine or ribbon to gather the robe at the waistline. When arms, legs and face are dry, draw smile and eyes with ballpoint pen. Glue in place; let dry. The angel's book is a tiny piece of cardboard glued in place.



Snowy Christmas Tree: For this you will need about a dozen eggshells, a 6" piece of shirt cardboard, glue, such as Elmer's, plus a few sequins. On the cardboard draw, then cut out, a traditional Christmas-tree shape, 6" tall. Place your eggshells in a bowl, breaking them into small pieces with the back of a spoon, until all the pieces are about one-quarter inch. Place them in a paper cup and pour in enough glue to make a "batter." Apply thickly to cover one side of tree completely. Place the sequins on at the same time. Let dry for half a day. Make new "batter" and repeat the process on the other side. Dry overnight.



Yuletide Wreath: Would you believe this pretty wreath's main ingredient is split peas? You'll also need cardboard and a little spray paint. Draw a 7" circle on the cardboard; for center, draw and cut out a second circle, 5½". Combine peas and glue in a paper cup and make a "batter." Then apply to wreath. Let dry thoroughly. Repeat on the reverse side. Draw ribbon on white construction paper, cutting out and gluing for double thickness. Before glue dries, shape bow. Separately, spray wreath green, the ribbon red, with a glossy paint, such as Krylon. Glue ribbon onto wreath.



Lace Cage: Although this looks complicated, actually it's a cinch. All you need is a 2" portion of the cardboard center from a paper-towel roll, some swabs and fluorescent paint. Place about 16 cotton swabs on a piece of waxed paper. Paint them, using another swab as your brush. Give the painted swabs plenty of time to dry. Coat the roll with glue, then alternate swabs, as shown, and press in place. Finally, add the snipped-off tips of cotton swabs in between. Let dry thoroughly, about three or four hours.

Christmas Dove: To make this graceful Yuletide symbol, you'll need two pieces of white construction paper, a pencil and glue. Draw the dove's body, wings, tail and beak as shown, cutting out the shapes upon two thicknesses of paper. Glue the body cut-out together. For the other parts, be sure to shape by hand before glue dries. Make the curled feather crest by gluing together two thicknesses of a 2" strip of paper, then roll around a pencil. When dry, glue in place on head.

FROM FRENCH SCIENTIST'S PRIVATE FORMULAS —

Cosmetic Chemist develops home treatment that

IN JUST MINUTES

By Renée Bouchard
Beauty Consultant to Maison Cher

If you do nothing else today, please read these few paragraphs. They are vitally important if you have problem skin.

Recently in Paris, I saw demonstrated a simple home treatment that really wiped away blackheads, healed blemishes, tightened pores and made skin softer, smoother and younger looking. Results were almost breathtaking. In fact, I saw these dramatic improvements after just one treatment. With teenagers I saw pimples and blemishes virtually dry up and disappear immediately and with older women I saw complexions firm up and beautify with a smoother, tighter, more youthful, almost baby-like look.

AMAZINGLY SIMPLE—YOU DO IT YOURSELF

"MAGIC" STEP NUMBER ONE

After removing all makeup thoroughly, you start the treatment by rinsing your face thoroughly with warm water. Then you apply a special formula drawing lotion to the affected areas, now you simply relax. Within minutes, you can actually feel the blackheads, skin impurities and pimples powerfully drawn to the surface by the gentle emollient action. You then gently massage with fingertips for just 10 seconds to literally wipe away the loosened grime and impurities and you are ready for...

THE SECOND "MAGIC" STEP

Now you apply the amazing new Protein Menthol Masque with your fingertips and leave on just 10 to 15 minutes. You will actually feel the masque close the pores and tighten the skin. Now the "magic" ingredients go to work eliminating redness, reducing swelling of blemishes and leaving skin soft, moist and radiant. The secret of this special masque is that it contains no harsh alcohols or irritants but that it does contain protein that nourishes the skin and special anti-bacterial and antiseptic ingredients to promote purification and healing. There that's all there is to it! Believe it or not, you're finished as you simply rinse the masque off with warm water.

Important Facts About Our Products

Many leading salons in the United States and Europe sell facial care products similar to ours but at double or triple our prices. This is also the first time these Maison Cher skin care products have been available at any price and these products are so new in the United States, that they are not available in your neighborhood drugstore—only direct from "Maison Cher."

RESULTS ARE THRILLING

Many men and women will find the results hard to believe. Even those who have had problem skin for years will see a "miracle" happen in front of their very eyes. Skin will be more beautiful even after just one treatment. And with 3 or 4 treatments a week, you will see a really remarkable complexion improvement. After that, a single maintenance treatment weekly is probably all your skin will ever need to keep it clear of blemishes and glowing with a healthy and younger look.

See Marked Improvement After Only One Treatment

Step 2 You apply new Protein Menthol Masque. Leave on 15 minutes and rinse with warm water.

UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEED

Our guarantee is that you must see and feel a marked improvement even after just one treatment. Some of your skin blemishes and blackheads must be removed and all must be removed with further treatments or every cent you've paid will be refunded in full.

WOODY ALLEN: How His Misery Makes Others Laugh

John R. Hamilton/Globe Photos

Woody Allen: Still the total misfit—on screen and off

By Patricia Baum

Friends recall the time Woody Allen ordered a ticket for a dance benefit, saying he was looking forward to a quiet evening in the theater. But for Woody, simple events have a way of getting out of hand, and this evening was no exception because at the last minute he had agreed to escort Mrs. Gerald Ford.

Outside the theater, a nervous Woody, wearing a tuxedo and elegant black and white tennis shoes, ran into flashbulbs, bright lights and television cameras. Then, when he entered the auditorium with Mrs. Ford, the entire audience stood up and enthusiastically applauded. For the rest of the evening Woody felt besieged by thousands of staring eyes and spent the time in ulcerating agony, perspiring profusely and fearing that his stomach might growl. The trauma of that one excursion, he claims, took five pounds off his already wretchedly thin figure.

"I just can't handle that kind of thing," says Woody, seated in the living room of his New York apartment. And as he talks you realize that indeed, like the awkward heroes he has portrayed in such films as Take the Money and Run and Play It Again, Sam, he is barely coping. Off screen he wears a dolorous expression and sounds apologetic as he admits, "I'm not funny in private."

Considering his accomplishments, Woody's lack of self-confidence seems astounding. He has succeeded as a comedian, writer and director. He can boast of two Broadway hit shows, two best-selling books of humorous essays and seven successful films, all of which led one critic to acclaim him as "one of America's precious natural resources" to be preserved at all costs. But success and fame have not erased his timidity, nor eased his suffering. Nor have nearly 20 years of psychoanalysis made a notable difference. Although he has managed to reduce the number of sessions from five to only three a week, he still feels uneasy in any kind of social situation. As he puts it, "I don't relate well to people. I'm not gregarious. I have a few close friends, and that's it."

Attention of any kind can upset Woody, and he goes to odd lengths to avoid it. His favorite camouflage used to be a rumpled beige rainhat worn low over the ears. To further obscure himself he would pull up his collar, hold his hand over his face and stare at the top of his shoes.

Now, with all the publicity surrounding Woody's debut as a dramatic actor in The Front, he's seriously contemplating holing up at home. He would not suffer too terribly, considering the splendor of his surroundings. He may look like an errand boy, but he lives in regal magnificence and clearly enjoys the trappings. His duplex penthouse is elegantly decorated with Early American antiques and expensive art works and offers a breathtaking view of Central Park. His glass-enclosed sanctuary is ideal for writing comedy, practicing his clarinet, reading Camus and Kafka or indulging his fantasies of being Willie Mays, Marlon Brando or others on his endless list of idols.

Brian Hamill

Ex-long-time friend, Diane Keaton

does not provide him with the security he craves. Once Woody arrived home to find the FBI staked out there to monitor a Presidential parade. Another time lightning zig zagged across his terrace, shaking the building and sending slabs of concrete hurtling to the pavement, while Woody and Diane Keaton sat frozen in terror on the living room couch.

Diane, although a close friend and co-star in several of his films, is no longer Woody's steady companion. And now, at 41, Woody leads a bachelor's existence of "short flirtations." He's tried marriage twice. When he was only 19, he wed Harlene Rosen, a college student. She proved a great subject for jokes ("My wife cooked her first dinner for me, and I choked on a bone in the chocolate pudding."), but they divorced after five years, and she sued Woody for the first-wife one-liners in his nightclub act. Then, on Groundhog Day, 1966, Woody married Louise Lasser, who now is the star of "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman." That union dissolved after four years.

Woody's personal life doesn't exactly coincide with his Jewish middle-class upbringing. But as Allen Konigsberg of Flatbush, Brooklyn, he gave fair warning of his unusual destiny to his parents, for he was anything but a typical boy. For one thing, he was victimized by an inordinate number of fears—not only of death, kidnapping, water, boats, heights, the dark, but dishwashers and flushing toilets as well. He was also extremely shy and introverted. Unable to bear being called on in class, he would knock pencils off the desk, then bend down pretending to look for them until the bell rang. He loathed school, making grades that varied between below average and way below average.

His sensitive antenna was tuned in elsewhere. Woody was absorbed in magic, which he practiced diligently, spending six to eight hours a day standing in front of a mirror with an array of coins, cards, handkerchiefs and hats. He was addicted to watching comedy, too, either in the movie theaters or the local vaudeville house, where he studied the routines, and then went home and copied them.

By the time Woody was in high school, his comic gift was not only apparent but lucrative. Woody was writing down the gags and jokes that irrepressibly sprung from his creative mind and selling them to newspaper columnists. Before long, he was regularly writing sketches for Sid Caesar, Buddy Hackett, Art Carney and other well-known comedians.

But performing his material was not as easy as writing it. Woody was so terrified and inhibited when he began that his friends had to physically force him onto the stage. His fears were unwarranted, for nightclub audiences responded wildly to his self-deprecating wisecracks and autobiographical jokes, such as "My family didn't have the money to buy me a dog, so they got me an ant; I called it Spot."

Adding directing to his growing repertory of skills, Woody made Take the Money and Run and thus began the long string of popular films which he wrote, directed and starred in. Their success has led many critics to label him as the comedian of our age and to place him in the exclusive ranks of great screen comics like the Marx Brothers, Charlie Chaplin and Buster Keaton.

How does Woody himself account for his enormous professional success? "What success I do have," he begins in a typical self-putdown, "I think has to do with people identifying with me and seeing in me some of the awkwardness and problems they themselves have. I think it's also related to the fact that I'm always experimenting and diversifying in an attempt to grow, rather than repeating a workable formula." Woody describes his newest movie, to be released early next year, as a contemporary romantic comedy and the most realistic of all his films.

In many of Woody's movies, students and critics have claimed to find deep meanings and social comments. Love and Death, for instance, has been viewed as an attack on the sexual mores of the period, and Sleeper as a satire on advanced technology. Woody himself is amazed by such interpretations because "any meaning is purely accidental and unintended. I've basically been struggling just to get laughs and entertain."

And quite a struggle that is, according to Woody. In fact, he describes it as "sheer anguish" which he endures only for the feeling of accomplishment he gets at the end in having created something permanent that hopefully will play around the world.

"I know I could make a good old-fashioned comedy tomorrow that would be a surefire success," he says. "It would have a strong plot and contain no ideas that question or threaten our middle-class values. But this doesn't interest me any more. If anything, I would like to make comedies that are less and less 'comfortable' to the point where I can use comedy to express the social and philosophical ideas that men like Bergman and Antonioni express in serious films. Then I think I would like to make a film that is altogether serious."

Woody is certainly taking on heavy challenges. But perhaps meeting them will lighten his burden. Maybe the man who has so often said that "my only regret in life is that I'm not someone else" will at last be satisfied to be uniquely talented Woody Allen.

Norman Rockwell's Joys of Childhood

Snap closure; 7 X 4" folded size. Order today!

"I love children. And I like to show them in the happiest moments of their lives—when they're having fun and doing the things that children have loved to do almost since time began. I hope my work brings back a lot of fond memories to men and women who remember the joys of their own childhood too."

NORMAN ROCKWELL, America's best-loved artist, has recently completed ten original works of art portraying his favorite subject—children. These beautiful new Rockwell designs will be interpreted exclusively in the distinctive medium of fine porcelain. These are the first porcelain figures ever designed by Norman Rockwell. They were created expressly for this collection and are being made available only by Franklin Porcelain, a division of the world-famous Franklin Mint.

These fine porcelain figures will not be sold in any art galleries or stores. Only those who enter direct subscriptions for the collection will be able to acquire these unique limited edition works of art.

The magic of Norman Rockwell

With that special genius that is his alone, Norman Rockwell has captured the joys and pleasures of childhood for this collection.

A little girl in pigtails happily plays hopscotch. A young angler hooks a "big one" and cries out with excitement "I gotta bite!" A baseball player chases a ball in the outfield, only to have it whisked away by a mischievous puppy. A little girl dresses up in her mother's clothes and admires herself in the mirror. A small boy rides a hobby horse and pretends that he's a real old-time Western cowboy. A child plays nurse and lovingly cares for her "patient"—a pet dog. A young boy proudly rides his homemade scooter down the street. A marble champ proves once again that he's a whiz with the immies and cat's eyes. A child in a clown costume and mask eagerly prepares to go "trick or treating" on Halloween night. And a barefooted boy in dungarees walks on stilts—to the astonishment of his pet terrier!

Each of the original works of art created by Norman Rockwell will be captured with meticulous and exacting detail in these handsome porcelain figures. And every subtle nuance of Rockwell's art will be faithfully portrayed. The spurs on the cowboy's boots. The fishing pole held by the young angler. The flowers on the bonnet of the girl dressing up. Even the carved-out teeth of the Halloween pumpkin can be readily seen. Every feature – every precise detail – is depicted with remarkable fidelity.

A great deal of hand-crafting will go into the creation of these remarkable figures. Each will be individually hand-cast and hand-finished to assure that it is flawless in every respect. Moreover each figure will be crafted in exquisite Bavarian porcelain with the pure white bisque finish traditionally reserved for the finest porcelain sculptures. This lovely bisque is the finish preferred by many collectors and curators when selecting choice porcelains of fine sculpturing and subtle detail.

Each figure will stand on its own integral porcelain base, which will carry the title of the work, the signature of Norman Rockwell and the identifying hallmark of Franklin Porcelain. A Certificate of Authenticity will also accompany the collection, certifying that it has been authorized, designed and approved by Mr. Rockwell.

A highly prized collection

As an owner of Norman Rockwell's Joys of Childhood, you will possess works of remarkable beauty and rarity, in a great collecting tradition. Fine porcelain figures have been among the most treasured works of art for centuries–prized by individual art connoisseurs and housed in the permanent collections of many leading art museums.

This collection will be all the more desirable to own because it consists of the very first porcelain figures ever designed by Norman Rockwell. It is a collection that will be displayed with pride and admired by all who appreciate fine works of art. A collection that will become a beloved family heirloom as it is handed down from generation to generation.

A strictly limited edition

These ten beautiful porcelain figures will be produced solely for individual subscribers, and may be acquired only by direct subscription. The total edition will be forever limited to one set for each original subscriber, one for Norman Rockwell's personal collection and one for the archives of Franklin Porcelain. The original issue price for each fine porcelain figure is $120, which will be billed in convenient monthly installments.

Subscription deadline: December 31, 1976

The subscription rolls for this single limited edition will be permanently closed on December 31, 1976–and Norman Rockwell's Joys of Childhood will never be made available again. RHETT AND SCARLETT
Tomorrow is another re-make

The Plots Thicken: The creative genius of Hollywood continues to amaze. Already announced are such exciting major productions as Jaws II, The Exorcist II and Gone With The Wind II. Now comes word of The Bad News Bears II and Airport 1977—this last one to follow the adventures of Airport and Airport 1975. And the producers of The Omen, which has grossed more than $40 million since its release this summer, plan to start shooting The Omen II sometime next year. Omen II will be followed by Omen III, which in due time will be followed by Omen IV. No joke.

Rekindled: Thirty-five years ago, Maurice Kingston, a lonely British sailor, danced with Neoma May Ricks at Sweet's Ballroom. Kingston's ship had been hauled into Mare Island Navy Yard (California) for repairs. While on shore leave, he and Neoma danced at the ballroom, went to movies and tried to forget about the war. Three months later, Neoma waved goodbye from the jetty as Kingston's ship sailed for Britain. Maurice met and married a girl in England. Neoma also married and settled down. They lived their lives thousands of miles apart and forgot about each other—until one day in 1974, when a recording of Glenn Miller's "Chattanooga Choo Choo" awakened Maurice's memories of the American girl. He wrote a letter to a California paper, and it was printed on page one. "My one wish in life has been to return to Oakland, where I met a lovely young girl, Neoma May Ricks," Maurice wrote. "We had a wonderful time together." Neoma saw the letter, and they began corresponding. She had been divorced from her husband for many years. Maurice's wife had died years earlier. So, pretty soon Maurice sent a tape-recorded message: "Would you like to marry me?" Neoma replied, "Yes." They will be married January 29.

Have Young People Really Changed? "Many experts are saying we've come full circle. Students are not like they were in 1970, but they're much more like they were in 1965," says Dr. Patricia Rueckel, psychiatrist and Vice President for Student Development at Georgetown University. "Students are seeking more structure and more direction," she says. "The tension between college administrators and students is over. The students are less innocent, less dependent on elders for choices and decisions. Consumerism has had an effect on them. Professors in the classroom are being questioned constantly about what they teach—the content, the underlying assumptions in it—and most of all about the grade they'll assign for a mastery of it." While suicide is the second-largest killer of college-age students in the U.S. (auto accidents are first), Dr. Rueckel says, "Psychiatry is accepted now; 10 years ago, students worried about parents and friends finding out that they were receiving treatment." What's ahead for the student population? "By 1985, the median college age will be 25," predicts the psychiatrist. "Students are dropping out and 'stopping out' in increasing numbers."

COMPATIBLE?
Which dogs are best with kids?

It would be easier to describe which children are better for your dog. Is your child gentle, aggressive, hostile, pubescent, devoted, infantile, introverted, extroverted? These are only some of the factors that determine which is the best breed of dog for your child. There are some general guidelines: Do not get a toy breed (Maltese, toy poodle, Chihuahua, etc.) for a young child. They're too fragile for rough-housing. Certain herding dogs, such as the Great Pyrenees, Old English sheepdog, collie and Shetland sheepdog, are ideal for all children. You must ask yourself if the dog is to be a protector, companion or playmate. Among the sporting dogs you can live with are the Labrador retriever, the golden retriever, the English setter and the German shorthaired pointer. The Siberian husky, the Samoyed and the standard poodle are thought by many experts to be absolutely the finest dogs for children as playmates and companions.

A birthday for Pooh

Incredible though it may seem, the lovable Winnie-the-Pooh is celebrating his 50th birthday this year. It goes without saying that this is an occasion of considerable importance wherever the English language is read or spoken. For Winnie, the most famous Teddy bear of our time, is a unique blessing of the 20th century. It is impossible to do more than suggest the impact that Pooh has made on the world in which he has confidently conducted himself during the last half century. The beneficial influence of Pooh on his admirers has often been noted by observers of human behavior; few, however, have expressed this thought better than the Christian Science Monitor which declared in a widely quoted editorial: "Private research has convinced us that few people in responsible positions in society today have reached eminence without the influence of Pooh . . . and we hope that a great many six-to-ten year-olds, as well as anybody above that age who has not made Winnie-the-Pooh's acquaintance, will follow his adventures that lead, as years go by, inevitably from whimsy to wisdom."

"I RECOMMEND THESE FOODS AS MEDICINES FOR ALL THESE AILMENTS..."

Yes, foods which Dr. Morrison has found to have the same pharmacological actions as medicines themselves, but without the dangerous side effects!

This Special Report by Marsh Morrison—the "Dean" of American chiropractors—is by far the most widely employed single piece of information he has ever distributed to his fellow chiropractors! Over 1300 copies have been asked for from practicing chiropractors all over the world! And now it's yours, in this special limited offer, for only $2.00 complete . . . to give you ALL THESE Marsh Morrison recommendations—

THE FOOD-MEDICINE which contains an ingredient that acts like a bronchial antispasmodic. That dilates the bronchial tubes in asthma attacks quite naturally, in the same manner that the MD's drug acts artificially.

THE FOOD-MEDICINE that is "vastly helpful," both in cases of constipation and diarrhea.

THE ONLY FOOD-MEDICINE known to contain salicylic acid—the active ingredient of virtually all pain-killers. Therefore, from this day on, reach for this delicious food instead of drugs, and escape their brutal side-effects!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE used lately with "good effect" in cases of glaucoma and general inter-ocular pressure!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE that is best for detoxifying the system!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE that tends to cleanse the bile duct, and relieve associated pain!

THE "PEP-ME-UP" FOOD MEDICINE that contains a natural sugar content of over 20% . . . therefore providing highly-energizing snack without the distressing side-effects and over-all harmfulness of ordinary candy bars! Called by Dr. Morrison: "easily as 'medicinal' as such drug-and-pharmaceutical items as the fancily touted 'Elixers' and 'Iron Compounds'! . . . but yet costs only pennies to their dollars"!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE he considers "extraordinarily useful" for sore throats! Since it "digests away the diseased or useless throat tissue, while not affecting the healthy livmeat of the throat"!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE he points out has been used since Biblical times . . . and is used today by Europeans "who live to age 100 while active and regularly employed"! Reported to relieve intestinal gas, cure skin diseases, induce the expulsion of phlegm and mucus, reduce high blood pressure and especially alleviate the distressing choking sensation of the heart problem known as angina pectoris!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE that not only enables the body to make the required quantity and quality of red blood cells, but also "protects against such nervous and visual ailments as palsy, eye tic, diplopia, and even swelling, hyperthrophic arthritis, brusitis, and some forms of neuritis, like that suffered with burning feet"!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE "most useful to help the body burn up excess fat, by turning up the flame in your body's fat-burning oven"!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE he recommends for nerve-protection, and "power-drive energy that lasts and lasts"!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE that he reports has dissolved gallstones within the gall-bladder, as determined by before-and-after x-rays. Plus, he says, "the pains of gout have lessened and then altogether ceased. Even liver problems have given way—alcohol drinkers who suspect cirrhosis of the liver should be exalted . . ."!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE he recommends for those whose skin is sallow and lifeless . . . a "complexion improver" attributed by one of the queens of Europe, and her mother, as responsible for their internationally-famous fine skin!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE he states is "almost a specific for heart disease, particularly coronary artery disease, atherosclerosis, etc. Tests at the University of Miami revealed quite extraordinary decreases in total serum cholesterol when it was used as substitutes for ordinary fatty products"!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE he reports has these vital results: "Women who suffer painful menstrual periods are eased, and abnormally profuse menstrual flow lessens"!

THE DELICIOUS NATURAL-NUT FOOD-MEDICINE he recommends for "most people who are ill and seek to gain and maintain health. More than anything else within my knowledge, they contain the element that many sick persons need so desperately. As few as a mere dozen added to the daily diet have helped clear up a variety of ailments that nothing else seemed to reach"!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE he strongly advises for deep-seated colds, since it "cuts the mucus, relaxes the tissues and soothes at the same time . . . not only shakes almost every cold out of existence . . . but also works near-marvels in cases of prickly heat, giving relief in as little as half an hour . . . and also effects wonders, it appears, in cases of puffy eyelids"!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE useful for thyroid cases and those with deficient energy!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE he calls "Nature's own natural antibiotic"! "Even when applied to open wounds," he says, "the possibility of blood poisoning is avoided."

ABOUT MARSH MORRISON, D.C., Ph.C.

Let us give you just a few of the most outstanding facts:

He has been recognized, by his profession, as one of its most prominent leaders, for decades! His teachings have been hailed, in print, by hundreds of chiropractors. Thousands of chiropractors have flocked to hear him during his lecture tours in 35 major cities of the United States—plus Montreal, Toronto, London, Brussels, and other world capitals.

Chiropractic doctors have repeatedly and gladly paid $60 to $120, just to attend one weekend seminar with him. Some of them, unable to attend have paid $15, simply for a 20-page copy of his lecture notes.

Now Marsh Morrison has decided that teaching chiropractors how to take away pain . . . how to start natural healing again—is just not enough! Despite the vast good that these dedicated men and women do all over America, there are still millions of people who are not reached by them! And they should have the right to benefit from these secrets too!
